

PARTY POLITICS ADJOURNED---TO INDIANAPOLIS

Vice President Permitted to Toy With Fates at Home; Champ Clark Tempted by Mullen's Call.

Washington Bureau of The Omaha Bee,
1311 G Street.
By EDGAR C. SNYDER.

When the president announced to congress in all seriousness, on May 27 that, "politics is adjourned," a broad smile illuminated the faces of that body of 500 men. That it did not break into a loud guffaw was prevented only by the self-restraint of those representatives and senators.

That "adjournment," however, is the subject of many a quiet chuckle on the part of democrats and republicans alike when they meet and talk over the events of the past few months.

One witty democrat, who would raise an awful row if he knew he was being quoted, said to a friend in the lobby of the house the other day, "It is true politics has adjourned, but not as to time, simply as to place, from Washington to Indianapolis. We sent Scott Ferris, chairman of the national democratic committee, over to stage the affair at the Indiana state convention. Vice President Marshall wanted to make a speech and we thought he could do as little damage in Indianapolis as anywhere. Then we had ex-Governor Ralston do the Marc Antony stunt of offering the crown for the third time to the moreen Julius. We thought it the part of wisdom to have it offered at that particular time and place, following the recent disclaimers as to re-election. It might not have been wise to have offered it nearer in point of time or place, for had it been closer our modern Caesar might have grabbed it."

Arthur Mullen Has His Way.
So much for Indiana! Then again Champ Clark, speaker of the house, in the latter part of May, announced that he would make one speech in Ohio and that was all he would make in this campaign, but when Champ listened to the siren-voiced Mr. Arthur Mullen of our own Nebraska democracy, telling what a rousing ovation the "uninterrified" would give Champ if he would deliver the keynote speech at Hastings, the speaker yielded to the seductive influences and agreed to go if congress was in recess at that time.

All of which leads up to the question "has politics really adjourned or is somebody trying to camouflage the American people?"

The League of National Unity agreed upon a definition of loyalty which was approved by the heads of both republican and democratic national committees. It was based upon the records of candidates subsequent to the declaration of war, whether then in or out of congress. It is interesting to observe how the public considered this definition in the nomination of candidates already made.

Lenroot Overcomes Opposition.
Lenroot of Wisconsin was nominated for senator in the face of strong opposition. He was first opposed by McGovern, who challenged Lenroot's right to nomination because, before the war, Lenroot had voted for the tabling of the McLemore resolution and favored prohibiting the shipment of munitions to Europe. McGovern, who was an ultra war man, was convinced of his error and withdrew from the race.

This left Lenroot opposed by Thompson, who was against war measures, and especially objected to the economic means which had been taken to finance the war. On this, the republicans turned him down, showing that they were in favor of supporting the war financially.

At the election the full power of the administration was used to defeat Lenroot for his failure to come up to the "acid test" which the president based upon a record made by Lenroot before the war. The answer was a substantial majority for Lenroot.

A heavy fight was made on Congressmen Johnson and Dillon, republicans, in South Dakota, because they voted against war. Johnson was nominated by a three to one vote. Dillon was defeated by a scratch. His opponent lives in Sioux Falls, the largest city of the state, and they stormed the district that day, the light country and village vote operating the undoing of Dillon.

Haugen and Hull Big Winners.
In Iowa fights were made upon Haugen and Hull, republicans, because they voted against war and conscription. Haugen was nominated by a four to one vote, and Hull by several thousand majority. A contest was made on Woods, republican, who

Governor and Madame Guerin Address State House Thrift Society

From a Staff Correspondent.
Lincoln, July 6.—(Special.)—The state house thrift society held a meeting today addressed by Governor Neville. The society at present has 180 members and will probably reach much greater proportions later.

Madame Guerin, a French woman, who has been speaking over the country in behalf of the French orphan fund, gave a brief talk.

had not been back to visit his district for six years. He was defeated. His vote on war was said by himself and his colleagues not to have been an issue.

Ramsayer was assailed because he voted against conscription. He was nominated by nearly 3,000. All of these men voted for the completed army bill and the revenue measure.

Fights were made on Volstead and Steenerson of Minnesota, who had voted for war, Steenerson having voted against conscription. Both were nominated by good majorities. Bitter fights were made against Davis and Knutson, both of whom had voted against war and Davis against conscription. Davis was nominated by over 6,000, and Knutson by over 2,000.

Minnesota Member Defeated.
Lundeen, a new Minnesota member, who was not in congress before the war came up, voted against war and against the completed army bill. Apparently he was either opposed to prosecuting the war, or his judgment was that we could fight Germany without an army. They evidently considered his judgment. He was defeated.

Van Dyke, Minnesota democrat, although voting against war and conscription, but supporting the war measures, was nominated.

Young and Norton, republicans of North Dakota, both voted for war and conscription and war measures, generally. Young was nominated, Norton defeated. Baer, who was not in congress when war was declared, or the early war measures passed upon, was nominated by a close vote.

In Florida the only fight was on Kehoe, who had voted for war. He was defeated.

McLaughlin, republican of Pennsylvania, voted for war, for conscription and other war measures, but was defeated.

Of the eight who voted against war, fights having been made on them for that and various other reasons, three were defeated. Of the seven who voted for war and against whom a contest was made, three were defeated. One only, whose nomination was contested, who had voted against having an army, Lundeen, was defeated.

What is Real Acid Test?
Among congressmen, if one were to take the consensus of judgments as to what is being held of importance by the people "back home," I believe we would find:

Did you vote for the army bill as finally prepared and passed?

Did you support the tax measure to support the army in the field?

Some one said that the "acid test," if it had been defined by Grant, McKinley, or Roosevelt, who knew what fighting meant, would have been directed to the question as to how you conducted yourself after being in the fight rather than how you got in.

Of one thing rest assured, the statement of "Politics, Adjourned" has deceived no one. "Too proud to fight," "Peace without victory," "Kept us out of war," and all other phrases have hardened the Washington public. They do not buy stock, politically, of the attractively-ornamentally-printed-and-ribbon-bound certificate. They consult the actual market.

Bohemian Farmer Takes
His Life in Jefferson County by Shooting

Fairbury, Neb., July 6.—(Special Telegram.)—Ladislav Pivonka, a Bohemian farmer of the northern part of Jefferson county, is dead at his home from the discharge of a shotgun in his own hands. The charge blew the top of his head off. He and his wife had returned from the milk house and while she stepped to the well for some milk crocks he seized a shotgun from its place on the wall and fired. The family had had no trouble and no cause has been assigned for the deed.

Varsity Romance Terminates
In an Elaborate Wedding

Fremont, Neb., July 6.—(Special Telegram.)—Miss Eva Irene Miller, daughter of Mrs. Eva Miller, and Lt. George E. Grimes, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Grimes, of Omaha were married at the First Congregational church here this evening.

Rev. W. H. Buss read the lines, the ring ceremony being used. Miss Ortilia Herman, cousin of the bride, and Ralph Thorp of Nebraska City were the attendants.

About 200 guests were present. A reception followed at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Lee.

Lieutenant Grimes and his bride left for Battle Creek, Mich., where they will make their home until Lieutenant Grimes is called for overseas duty. He is now stationed at Camp Custer.

During the last semester he attended school he was editor-in-chief of the Daily Nebraskan, Mrs. Grimes holding the same position for the semester preceding. Lieutenant Grimes is a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity and Mrs. Grimes is a member

Corn Growing Rapidly;
Wheat Yields 28 Bushels

Beatrice, Neb., July 6.—(Special.)—Farmers report that corn is growing rapidly at the present time, and during the past week many fields have been laid by. With one good rain during July and another during the month of August, a bumper crop is assured.

John Huttenmaier, living three miles east of the city, threshed his wheat crop yesterday and the yield was 28 bushels to the acre. It tested 61 pounds to the bushel.

Grand Island Council And Power Co. Disagree Over Consolidation

Grand Island, Neb., July 6.—(Special.)—The city council and the officers of Central Power company, who are confronted with the request of the national fuel administration to conserve coal by merging the electric manufacturing plants, are involved in a deadlock, the outcome of which is yet doubtful. After several conferences between the engineers and managers of both plants it was unanimously agreed that no coal would be saved simply by a merging of the steam plants, and that conservation, as designed by the national fuel administration, could not be attained by the combined use of the Central Power company's hydro station, at Boelus. It develops, however, that since its construction the water power plant has been out of commission by the undermining of quicksand and upon three separate occasions and has only within ten days been connected up for the first time in five or six months. City authorities are inclined to regard reliance upon the water power as very doubtful and the Central Power company is reported to have been opposed to the city's purchase of current from the power company, the distribution to be made by the city. Just before the council meeting the Central Power company yielded with a supplementary proposition, which the council's committee, however, has asked for time to investigate.
