THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

If I knew you and you knew me—
If both of us could plainly see,
And with an inner sight divine,
The meaning of your heart and mine,
I'm sure that we would differ less
And clasp our hands in friendliness;
Our thoughts would pleasantly agree,
If I knew you and you knew me.

Surprise Wedding.

A little surprise wedding took place Monday morning at Trinity Cathedral when Miss Gretchen Langdon, daughter of Mrs. Don T. Lee, became the bride of Lt. Hugh Henderson Drake. The young couple kept their wedding plans so secret that even the bride's mother did not know of the ceremony until after it had taken place.

Under crossed flags over the altar the young couple took their marriage vows, their two closest friends, Dr. and Mrs. Glenn H. Fritz, the only person present at the ceremony. Rev. Hancock read the marriage lines.

Lieutenant Drake was only granted a short leave of absence, arriving from Camp Funston in the morning, after a little wedding breakfast at the Fontenelle and his pretty bride left for Manhattan, Kan.

Mrs. Drake is a graduate of the Central High school and also of Hamilton college at Lexington, Mo. She is a most attractive young woman and has won an enviable reputation with her solo dancing.

Lieutenant Drake, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Royal P. Drake of Kearney, Neb., is a graduate of the Nebraska university. The young officer served on the Mexican border for several months. Lieutenant Drake is a member of the 41st infantry and was stationed at Fort Crook for some time, recently being transferred to Camp Funston.

Coulter-Randall Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Bessie Randall to Dr. Frank E. Coulter took place Friday in St. Joseph, Mo. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. D. Dohyans, and Dr. and Mrs. Coulter were the guests of Dr. C. R. Woodson, while in St. Joseph.

Dr. and Mrs. Coulter left Saturday for California, where they will remain for some time. Dr. Coulter is one of the most prominent specialists in Omaha and his bride was head of the Visiting Nurses' association for a number of years. Mrs. Coulter severed her connection with the association about five months ago.

For Fying Cadets.

Mrs. C. A. Mallory, the charming hostess who has given so many delightful affairs for the Fort Omaha men, has planned another dancing party, which will be given this evening at Hanson park for the flying cadets. Some of the prettiest girls will be there and it promises to be a very jolly affair.

Patriotic Card Party.

A series of card and knitting parties will be given by a committee of the members of the D. A. R.'s, the first one to be given Friday at the Country club. Those wishing a little relaxation from days of strenuous war work will welcome these little affairs for they will be assisting the organization, as the parties are given to raise some money to carry on the work. The hostesses on Friday will be Mrs. E. W. Clark and Mrs. James E. Hudson.

N. W. H. A.

The Young Women's Hebrew Association will hold the first meeting in their new rooms in the Lyric building, Tuesday evening. Election of officers will be held.

For the Future.

The Columbian club will give a card party Wednesday afternoon at their hall, at Twenty-second and Locust streets.

Hats Off to the Farmerette!

THE farmerette has captured our hearts, as surely as the big outdoors of which she is so important a part these days, when our women must "carry on." Thousands of girls are finding health and happiness in this branch of work for Uncle Sam. The costume for farm work is necessarily important, because comfort means less fatigue and more efficiency. This slip-on coat is developed in khaki. The neck opening may finish with a lacer or be worn with a sailor tie. The lacer is cooler because of less bulk around the neck. However, a tie of khaki may start from just under the collar without extending around the neck. The bloomers are like riding breeches, buttoned with a cuff over the knee. Khaki leggings similar to those our soldiers wear, protect the legs from brush and briar, and are worn over stout-heeled shoes, Oxfords or high shoes. A wide straw hat is the best and coolest protection from the mid-day sun.

Mrs. J. E. George has been named chairman of the information desk at the Masonic temple Red Cross work rooms. Some one of her committee will be at the desk from 9 a. m., until 5 p. m., each day.

An intensive drive will be conducted this week to sell tickets for the automobile to be disposed of by the Red Cross workers to raise funds for the Nebraska hospital No. 49, which organization will soon sail for overseas service.

On Monday the ceremony to designate the winner will be held at the state Red Cross headquarters in the Wead building. Tickets may be purchased at any drug or cigar store, or from Mrs. Fred Hamilton or Guy L. Smith.

Women of the First Baptist church will devote their Mondays from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m. at reclamation work for soldiers' clothing to assist the members of the National League for Woman's Service, who have organized this branch of war relief work.

Workers to complete the remodeling of the 2000 shirt quota are needed at the public shop. Any one who has taken the instructors' course will be welcome to help with the work on Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

Advice to Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Selfish.
Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I am 17, my father died when I was 4, and mother and I lived together until recently.

When I was about 12, mother married a man with seven children. We lived together about one year. She wanted to get along with the children so mother left him. For three years they were separated, and now she is again going to live with him.

The girl nearest my age came up from Brooklyn to see me Sunday. We lived together, and I introduced her to some of my friends. She was all right with the girls, but the language and actions she used with the boys was something dreadful.

I told my mother that I couldn't go out with her if we lived together, so mother told me I will have to live outside.

H. A. G.
My dear girl, you have had a loving mother to bring you up. Rose is one of seven, and the busy father supporting them has had no time or opportunity to teach her the things your mother has taught you. Don't you think it would be only decent and kind and fair to give Rose her chance?

One of your aunts, your mother left her second husband—now she is going to live her own life and go back to him. And, selfish little girl that you are, you are demanding that your mother give up her husband because you don't like your step-brothers and sisters. Suppose you consider other people for a change and forget yourself. Go and live in your mother and step-father's household and try to look upon yourself as one-tenth of the family—not the "whole show!"

Cheering a Lonely Soldier.

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I am 18 and correspond with a cousin of mine in the army. He is six years my senior. While on a visit he told me my letters had interested a friend who is in the same camp. He asked my cousin if he would please write me if I would like to correspond with him also.

I would like to know if it is proper for me to write to him.
This is an unusual situation, which the war is making usual. The high commanders have made us all recognize how important it is that our soldier lads receive cheerful happy letters from home. So it seems to me that for you to write to your cousin's friend will be a nice little bit of war work. Don't look on this boy as a possible lover or sweetheart. Don't write him love letters. Instead adopt him as another cousin or a brother and without telling him the position you have selected for yourself, write him the cheery, friendly letters you would send to such one in your own family. Let mother see your letters and his. Keep the whole thing on a high key plane, and then enter in. Ordinarily I would tell a girl not to write to a boy, of whom she knew so little. But I think each one of us ought to try to cheer the lonely soldiers and to make them feel that there are loyal friends at home depending on them to be good soldiers!

Work!

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: Through misfortune my husband has lost considerable money which he inherits from his father. For the last five years he has had a position with a firm in Wall street. He started in with $10 a week and in the past two years has been earning $25 a week. My little family consists of four—husband and self and two children. My husband's people give him the upkeep of the upkeep of my children. I do the greater part of my laundry work, yet I find it quite impossible to get along easily on this stipend. We pay $3 a month rent. I cannot manage to get even ordinary apparel for myself. Would you advise me to go out to earn my own living? I have a profession at which I can earn $25 a week. I really do not know what to do. I am ill and most unhappy.
E. OLSEN.

Yours is a problem of economics—not love. And yet I suppose that unless the economic condition changed, love will go. Evidently you are not the "manager" type of woman, and in the process of trying to get along on your $40 a week you are making yourself unhappy and cutting yourself off from being the right sort of a wife and mother. Since for from $5 to $8 you can get a maid to do the work you dislike, why not go out and earn the $25 a week, which will probably enable you to work out a far more satisfactory family budget? Work will probably let you find yourself again, make you contented and well, and enable you to bring stimulation and interest to your family. I am afraid you feel bitter, abused, a struggle. And if you do, it will react badly on your husband and children. Show him the wisdom of a change—the wisdom of your taking up a gainful occupation which you like, instead of struggling with your household job for which you do not feel fitted. Don't let him think he is a failure or reproach him. Instead, make him see that you believe in him and want to be more of a help than you are now.

It Wont Do.

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I recently met a young gentleman through flirtation. I was very much infatuated with his personality, and would like to know how I could further our acquaintance. You have put yourself in a dangerous position. You say you are infatuated with this man. Don't see him again, and don't meet any more men in this way. You are throwing yourself away. You don't know one thing about the man, except that you like his looks. He may be a very dangerous character. Won't you believe me and guard yourself a little better?

"Dreamland Adventures"

By Daddy—The Beautiful Stranger

A complete, new adventure each week, beginning Monday and ending Saturday.

CHAPTER II.

The King Proves a Hero.
(Yesterday it was told how Peggy was called to the far Northland by the King of the Wild Geese and there asked to aid him in finding his lost love, the Beautiful Stranger.)

"BEFORE I can help you find the Beautiful Stranger I must know more about her," said Peggy.

"Alas! I know so little," sadly answered the King. "But I will tell you my remarkable story."

"Some days ago—I do not know how many, for the Sun runs around in such a queer way up here that he's not much good as a timekeeper—I had wandered from the flock seeking a better feeding field. I had found this pleasant marshy lake where we now are and was scouting around looking for the ground over for possible enemies before bringing my people there. The place seemed deserted and safe."

"Suddenly the silence was shattered by terrorized honks for help. 'Instantly I took quick flight, for self-preservation is the first law of the Wild Geese—a selfish law of which I do not approve but necessary if our species is to live. As I rose into the air, however, I felt it was cowardly to run away, so I turned back to see if I could give aid.'

"The honks of distress were coming from behind a clump of overgrowth close to the water's edge. As I flew over this clump a fearful sight was disclosed. There struggling in the dreadful clutches of a cruel Mink was the most beautiful Goose I had ever seen—a Blue Goose of a species utterly strange to me.

The King paused for a moment, while big tears rolled down his face. "The Beautiful Stranger! Oh, how awful!" sobbed Peggy.

"Yes, it was the Beautiful Stranger," continued the King. "The Mink had evidently surprised her while she was resting. She had taken flight, but was a moment too late. He had leaped and seized her by the web of one foot. As I arrived she was struggling bravely in an effort to break away, but the Mink held on tight, knowing that in a moment she would be exhausted and then would be easy prey for him."

"I knew that to go to her rescue was risking death. I knew, too, the stern, heartless law of the Wild Geese—'flee from danger.' All my instincts told me to save myself and leave the Beautiful Stranger to her fate."

"Oh, but you didn't you didn't!" cried Peggy. "I know you didn't."

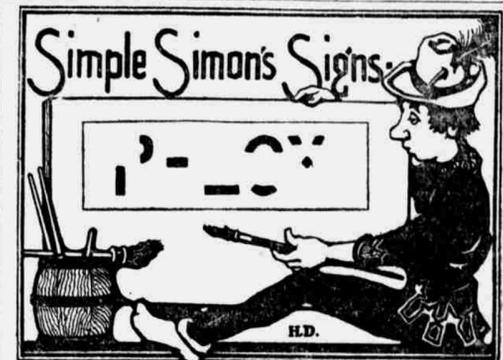

"No, I didn't," the King smiled sadly. "The minute I saw her I knew that I would willingly die to save her."

"I thought fast. I had no weapon that would avail against the teeth and claws of the Mink, but if I could force him to turn to attack me he would let go of the Blue Goose and she would escape."

"Honking to her not to give up, I dashed into the face of the Mink, buffeting him with my wings. He was a wise, crafty old Mink, however, and knew her strength was almost gone. To him a Goose in the mouth was better than two in the air, and he tried only the harder to drag her down."

"Fired by the terror in the face of the Beautiful Stranger, I made a bolder attack. I went right for the eye of the Mink with my beak. It gave him a chance at my neck—but quick snip meant my death—but it was the only way to save my beloved."

"He saw me coming and knew what I meant to do. He was ready in an instant. Letting go of the Blue Goose, he struck savagely at me. His sudden move caused me to miss his eyes, but my beak caught him squarely on the nose. The beak was hard; the

LEMON JUICE TAKES OFF TAN

Girls! Make bleaching lotion if skin is sunburned, tanned or freckled

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quart of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.—Adv.

Cocoon Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulified cocoon oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulified cocoon oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—Adv.
