Thought for the Day

CRITICISM.

You do not know the burden Of the one you criticize; You may not face his hardships, Nor hear his silent cries For deliverance from sore trials, Which are heavy like your own. Critic, close your lips, then, And for this sin atone!

War Garden Parties Will Now Supplant Lawn Fests and Teas

The day of the garden party and the lawn fete is past and no longer does the lady don a filmy gown and a wide hat trimmed with pink roses and black velvet streamers that she may be "among those present" at some Japanese lanterned function. For the up-to-date hostess invites her friends to a war garden party. Fruity punch and delectable ices are supplanted by the tender green things from the garden, which has been carefully planted and tended by Mrs. Social Leader, herself. Indeed, this is not a mere fete, but it is an act of loyalty and patriotism, for the food criterion has laid the ban on afternoon teas, receptions and lawn fetes. There are many wonderful war gardens in and about Omaha and one has visions of these affairs at one of the many attractive country homes. "Aloha," the country home of the A. L. Reeds, boasts one of the largest gardens, and there you might find Mrs. Reed in her garden togs working diligently every day.

Mr. Myron Learned is very proud of his garden at "Walden Wood," where everything from the smallest radish to the largest potato is given excellent care. Will the organy frock give way to feminalls at these next-to-Nature parties? In this day of conservation and economy we would almost expect to find the guests garbed in the blue and white garden costume, now acknowledged to be the badge of service for those who, by the hard toil of their hands, are doing their patriotic bit.

Warsop-Wyant.

The wedding of Miss Fay Wyant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Wyant and Mr. George Warsop, took place Wednesday evening at the Benson Presbyterian church, Rev. A. J. McCung, officiating.

Miss Gladys Gaines was the bride's only attendant and Mr. Russell Seacat was best man. After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Warsop will make their home in Omaha.

Jirak-Gettys.

A quiet home wedding took place Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Gettys, when Mr. Gettys' sister, Miss Verna N. Gettys, became the bride of Mr. Edward J. Jirak. Rev. Estelle Reed Leonard read the marriage lines.

The bridal couple were unattended and only a few close friends were present at the ceremony. The young couple will not take a wedding trip at present and will make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Gettys.

Summering at Estes Park

Mrs. W. H. Pruner, Mary Elizabeth, William Henry, Jr.

Mrs. William H. Pruner and children, Mary Elizabeth and William Henry, are summering at Estes Park. They will be joined later by Dr. Pruner.

PERSONALS

Miss Jess Carey will do governmental work in Washington, D. C., reporting for duty July 15.

Omahaans stepping at the Hotel McAlpin in New York last week included: Mr. and Mrs. C. Werploss, Mr. Lester Drishaus and Mr. C. B. Helmer.

Miss Dorothy Weller will return to Chicago in September, as she has accepted a position to teach in the kindergarten at the Bohemian Settlement House. Miss Weller's work will occupy her mornings and she will take a post-graduate course at the Elizabeth Harrison kindergarten school, in addition to her work at the Settlement.

Miss Grace Gholson, Director Nebraska "Y. W." Opens Campaign Here

Miss Grace Gholson, newly elected director for Nebraska for the Young Women's Christian association war work is in Omaha. At the meeting of the members of the local board and staff on Wednesday, she fired the first gun in the forthcoming four months' drive for war funds to be held by that organization and the Young Men's Christian association. A three months' preliminary campaign is just opening. Miss Gholson will direct the work in this state. She will go to Lincoln Friday, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Offutt, local president, to outline the work for that district. The state is divided into 19 districts. Miss Gholson will divide her time between them.

Neither Nebraska's or Omaha's quota has been announced. The national quota for both societies is $112,000,000. The Young Women's Christian association will raise $15,000,000 for their war projects. The members also heard a talk given by Mrs. C. H. Bigelow of St. Paul, Minn., who with Miss Clara Anderson of Grinnell, members of the war council of the north central field, who are traveling in the state in the interest of war work with girls.

Mrs. Bigelow is promoting the co-operation of the association with the Besick war camp service work. "Omaha has shown splendid result of the Fostick work, conducted here by Miss Frances Range," she said. Every phase of war emergency for women may be met by the machinery of the Young Women's Christian association, if the various departments are intensified and extended.

Motor Parties.

Motor rides are made even more enjoyable when one can stop for a delicious chicken dinner at Bellevue college and every evening there are numerous parties in the attractive dining room at the college. W. W. Fisher had nine guests in his party Wednesday evening. W. Farnam Smith had seven and Paul Gallagher four.

Extension Society.

Mrs. Martin Dineen will be hostess for the meeting of the Extension society at her home, 938 North Twenty-sixth street, Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Duryea Honored By Five Nations For Work In War Relief

Mrs. Nina L. Duryea, of New York and Paris, has added a medal from her own country to those decorations presented to her by the governments of France, Belgium, Russia and Montenegro. The National Institute of Social Sciences, which presented her with the honor, pays her in an accompanying letter a high tribute for her war relief work.

Chairmen's Meeting Faithful.

Rest for the weary, at last the Red Cross workers are to have a whole month's vacation, beginning August 1. This announcement was made at the meeting this morning of auxiliary chairmen held at the Young Women's Christian association.

Before the vacation days come which will close every shop and work room, there are many dozens of shirts to be finished. Countless difficulties beset the path of the workers who have been called upon to drop their handiwork rolling for the task of remodeling 50,000 army shirts.

"An average of 75 per cent of the shirts turned in must be ripped," Mrs. Frank Carmichael, chairman of auxiliaries, said. The shirts must be sewed up the back, opened down the front, and a soft collar put on instead of the stiff shirt band.

"Button holes" was the subject of the talk made by Mrs. O. C. Redick, director of the supply department, while two machines are kept going continually at the Masonic temple making button holes, the capacity is only about 145 a day. Each shirt must have nine button holes in the front and one for each sleeve. The workers may take home the shirts to work the button holes. The services of one who is able to make a neat button hole is requested.

Miss Margaret Smith, assistant chairman of hospital garments explained some of the questions asked by the chairman after admitting that when the quota was given to the Omaha chapter that the only thing she knew about shirts before that time was "that men wore them."

No shirts will be given out to auxiliaries after July 20. All must be returned by July 26. The entire number must be folded, tied, packed and shipped by July 31.

For Chicago Guest.

Mr. George Wilson was host at a jolly luncheon party at the Omaha club Thursday in honor of Miss Marion Pierce of Chicago, who is his guest of Miss Dorothy Weller.

McClure-Austin.

Announcement of the marriage of Mrs. A. T. Austin to Mr. A. McClure, which took place Sunday morning in New York City, is made today. Mr. and Mrs. McClure will return next week to make their home in Omaha.

Barnett-Frantz.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Frantz announce the marriage of their daughter, Marjorie Lee, to Willard C. Barnett Wednesday evening. Mr. Barnett leaves for the United States navy next week.

after her straight toward the guns of the hunters, Peggy with a quick dive that carried her out of the flock followed him.

(Tomorrow, after another thrilling episode, the story of the Beautiful Stranger will be brought to an end.)

Advice to Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

A Soldier's Reasoning.

Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: After reading the troubles of Kitty K. and others, I am taking the liberty of writing a few words also. To Kitty K. I would advise that if she will let her own heart be her judge and adviser, and not listen to or think about what others will say, she will find true happiness. Yet I always feel sorry for the soldier who leaves that little sweetheart that he has left at home, because it always seems more or less to me like murder. The nursing of a great love and faith. When a boy loves a girl truly and voluntarily goes a fight for his bride and the other world, which he is doing when he answers our country's call for men to fight for democracy, why, don't you think that is rather a sticker if all she thinks about is that since Bill has joined the army that she must find someone else to have a good time with, and that she will make good use of her time to believe that she really loves this other fellow, who isn't likely to have a manhood and treat her as she would like to be treated by both of them? The draft will get many of such fellows as that, but that will make any difference to the girl who has a manhood and is just as good as a manhood, not at first, anyway, perhaps after we come back from "over there" many of us will be better men, clean, and we will marry such fellows as I just spoke of, what are you going to say in answer to your children of the future when they ask you for what did I care for my man? I am a soldier and have been in the army over a year. I left a little sweetheart at home and I think her as most seldom, and have done my very best in all things to try and win promotion and to honor to her and the other loved ones at home. This little sweetheart wrote to me twice a week and I did the same by her. After I had been in the army about seven months she asked me if I objected if she went to theater parties with other young people. I was rather surprised at such a request, but I gave her my consent, and about three months ago she was married to a fellow whom I know real well, in fact, too well. I have no hard feelings in my heart for what she did, because what real love really means, because love is God and God is right. Miss Fairfax, please don't think I have a heart for my man, because I haven't. I rank rather high at this time and expect to rank higher in the near future, but when a boy loses that which is the dearest to his heart, well, it is hard to take some of the flavor from that sweet feeling of success and sweethearts and mothers who have husbands, sweethearts and sons fighting for the old U. S. A., and for them I wish that they could just about gamble that their soldier boys will remain true to himself, to our country for which we are fighting and to the loved ones back home. At present our destination is Berlin, but when we arrive there our thoughts will turn back to home and the ones we love, and may God watch over and keep us steadfast and true.

A SOLDIER.

Don't Humiliate Yourself.

Dear Miss Fairfax: A certain young man, whom I have known for many years, has called on me many times, but he also calls on other young ladies, whom I know well, and seems to have no special preference. We have been very good friends ever since we met, until the previous year, when he has become acquainted with some of my friends, and seems to have lessened my friendship with him. Now, what I would like to hear from you is, whether it would be proper to call his attention to the fact that our friendship has to be ended, and see how he takes it, or would you advise me to keep quiet and stay away from him.

Your friendship is certainly not on a basis to justify you in making any demands. Evidently you are one of many friends in whom this young man is interested and it seems as if the friendship were lessening because of other interests that have come into his life. If you create a situation, I am afraid you will only put yourself in a position where the wrong sort of man might laugh at you and think you were making a fool of yourself over him. Truly, the wisest thing for you to do would be to find other interests and just treat this man as the friendly acquaintance he seems to consider you.

Troubled.

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: As I am in trouble I am writing to you for advice. Will you please answer in the next morning's Daily Bee the address of the girl's home where young girls go that are expecting to be married? I am 17 years old. Am I too young to get married? I have been going with a boy five years my senior for three years. He wishes to marry. We love each other very much. I say he is willing to share my trouble. Your answer will be appreciated. ANNIE.

I am writing you a personal letter which will answer your queries satisfactorily, I think.

Shunned by Friends.

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: Please advise me. If a girl was shunned by her friends, for reasons unknown to her, what would you advise her to do? Would you have her let them alone or try to be friends with them. Please answer soon in the Omaha Bee. DORA BROWN.

Perhaps this is just your imagination. I should not ask for any explanation, be courteous and friendly to everyone and I feel sure that you will make friends even though you feel that a few of your old acquaintances have deserted you.

Write to Them.

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: Read your article in the Lovelorn column, where two young ladies were wanting to make acquaintanceship with some friends. We get rather lonely some times and would appreciate to correspond with Blue Eyes and Brown Eyes, so you can send our names to the young ladies.

Hoping they may hear from them, we beg to remain their true friends.

"Dreamland Adventures"

By Daddy—The Beautiful Stranger. A complete, new adventure each week, beginning Monday and ending Saturday.

CHAPTER V. A SHOT FROM BELOW.

(In the previous chapter Peggy and the King of the Wild Geese, seeking to rescue the Beautiful Stranger from the hands of the King of the Wild Geese, were forced into an unwelcome marriage, are themselves captured.)

PEGGY and the King of the Wild Geese found that there was not the slightest chance of escape. They were surrounded by scores of Blue Geese, who blocked them which ever way they turned.

The Beautiful Stranger stretched out her wings to the King of the Wild Geese.

"My hero," she cried. "I've led you into deadly peril."

"To serve you I would face the prince of perils," answered the King gallantly.

"What a pretty speech," sneered Rusty Face, chieftain of the Blue Geese. He turned to the Beautiful Stranger. "It will be nice for you to remember it when you are my lovely bride and this interloper has gone on his long flight."

"Oh, spare him, Rusty Face, and I will become your bride at once," pleaded the Beautiful Stranger.

Blue Geese formed in pairs and waddled out to the shore of the lake. A special guard drove Peggy and the King along with the procession. Rusty Face came last with the Beautiful Stranger reluctantly walking before him.

On the shore of the lake the Blue Geese gathered around in a circle. Rusty Face took the Beautiful Stranger by the wing and faced the others.

"I take thee, O fair one."

He paused. The words died on his tongue. A look of deadly fear came into his eyes. The others whirled about to see what had frightened him.

There, sticking their heads out of the underbrush, were three Indians. Instantly the wedding was forgotten. With one accord the Blue Geese rose into the air. Peggy and the King of the Wild Geese were borne up with them. They were gone too soon, and indeed some of the Blue Geese were not soon enough, for the Indians leveled their guns and half a dozen hands flattered downward on their last flight.

Up, up soared the others until they were out of range. Then the pace slackened. Peggy and the King looked about for a chance to escape, but found themselves still prisoners.

Rusty Face, cowardly as he had appeared in the face of the Indians, now got back his courage and his cruelty.

"This interruption changes our plans," he honked. "We will install you in your cool permanent home before we have the wedding and then we can depart in peace on our honeymoon."
