By Associated Press. With the French Forces in France, July 17.-The Germans today were throwing their utmost efforts northward of the Marne in the direction Manteuil-La-Fosse, which fell momentarily into their shands, but shortly afterwards was retaken by the French in a brilliant counter attack. The situation is generally regarded as excellent for the allies, who, instead of having to meet an offensive on a grand scale, now are being forced to ward off local attacks. South of the Marne numerous German attacks were repulsed, while the allies in counter attacks regained some ground north of St. Agnan.

Among the allied soldiers the feeling prevails that they have regained the ascendancy over the enemy, and they go forward with the greatest confidence when ordered to carry out counter attacks, even when their numbers are considerably smaller than those of the enemy.

Farm Bitterly Contested.

The Germans sent a heavy colvinn against the Bonbonniere farm, in the vicinity of St. Agnan, which lad been recaptured by Franco-American forces yesterday, and succeeded in re occupying it after a furious battle. This is still continuing at this hour. Further eastward along the southern bank of the Marne, the Germans attacked and temporarily occupied Montvoison, until the French came back and ejected them.

While the enemy was attempting a strong push towards Epernay, in an effort to cause the evacuation of the Mountain of Rheims he also was making a number of attacks on each side of that city. So far all these as-saults have been bitter failures.

The eastern side of Rheims remains exactly as it was yesterday and the fluctuations on the western side, according to the millitary commanders, Gouraud Bars Crown Prince.

General Gouraud, hero of the Dardanelles, was the French commander who barred the advance of the German crown prince in the Champagne. It was he who, to the east of Rheims, in one day brought the host of Germans to a standstill comparatively insignificant

The degree of M. D. was granted at Freiburg on the presentation of a hesis, much in the same way that the degree of Ph. D. and other academic degrees are conferred by American universities. Dr. Rumely's thesis was probably the briefest on record. One of the professors at Freiburg, a surgeon, had the habit, whenever he performed an abdominal operation of any kind, of cutting out the patient's appendix at the same time and preserving it. He had several hundred of these canned appendices in his laboratory.

Young Rumely subjected them all microscopic examination and found certain pathological conditions common to all of them, the diseased and healthy alike. His deductions About 20 enemy divisions have and conclusions, based on this re-

> To a very considerable extent German opinion of England, the English people and their relative importance in the scheme is based upon the writings of Von Schulze-Gaevernitz, who spent several years in England and wrote voluminously of his observations there. In Von Schulze-Gaevernitz's belief the English were a decadent race and the British empire dying of dry rot. Dr. Rumely, as he has more than once assured me, thoroughly coincided as a result of his own observations while at Oxford. Dr. Von Schulze-Gaevernitz had also traveled extensively in Russia and > helped by his writings to form German opinion of Russia and the Russians. Of Von Schulze-Gaevernitz in his role of defender of and apologist for Germany's world ambitions you shall hear more later, for the friendship that sprung up between the German scholar and the young American medical student proved an enduring one, at least up to a very short time before America drew the sword against Germany.

I do not know that young Rumely was the one who suggested to the socialists of Freiburg that they were throwing away their votes by nomi-nating a third party ticket and thereby always insuring the election of a member of the Catholic party to the reichstag from that district; he tells with great gusto, however, of the adoption by the socialist party, of which he was a member, of the proposal to combine with the liberal party in nominating Dr. Von Schulze-Gaevernitz, a plan which proved so

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared sham-poos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mul-sified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the Simply moisten your hair with wa-ter and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months .- Adv.
