

WOMAN'S SECTION OF THE BEE

Conducted by Ella Fleishman

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

You may sow what you will
But tomorrow will bring
You the harvest to show
You what manner of thing
Was the seed you have chosen to sow.

The Recorder.

Beware Lest You Become More Particular Than Patriotic With Bars, Etc.

"Democracy" has become the watchword of the hour. We hear it on every side, it bobs up in the patriotic songs, it falls from the lips of public speakers, it appears in large black letters on the front pages of the newspapers—and yet, are we so democratic?

Militarism has entered our peaceful little world and as a result we find our young men divided into distinct groups. A mere silver or gold bar makes a great difference these days, and amusing tales are coming to our ears of the distinctions that arise over the distinctions of the military.

Miss Frances Range has done a great deal for the soldiers within our gates by sponsoring the clubs of girls who give little social affairs for the boys in khaki.

Sunday dinners for the soldier boys is another side line in which Miss Range excels and many an Omaha home is thrown open to our fighting men. But, some hostesses are more particular than patriotic and Miss Range tells a story of one woman who was earnestly endeavoring to do her duty in her own way. This kindly soul entertained a lieutenant at dinner on a certain Sunday and as the young officer was leaving she asked him to send her another guest the next Sunday.

Of course, he was glad to comply with her request, but the good lady was a bit disconcerted on the following Sunday to find a khaki-clad man with no decorations whatever, when she came to the door.

Mrs. Patriot met the young officer, whom she had entertained the first Sunday, a few days later, and she brought him to task for sending a private to her home instead of an officer.

"Well, I am very sorry, replied the young man, stiffly, I didn't think you would mind entertaining that young chap, I was his chauffeur before war was declared."

Midsummer Wedding.

One of the prettiest of the midsummer weddings will take place this evening at the Good Shepherd church when Miss Lillian Jessie Carpenter, daughter of Mrs. J. B. Carpenter, and Mr. John R. Howes will take their marriage vows.

Following a vocal solo given by Mrs. Roy Flannigan, the soft strains of the Mendelssohn wedding march will be heard, just as the first pretty bridesmaid, Miss Hazel Carpenter, enters, a charming picture in her gown of yellow chiffon, her arms full of fragrant roses. Miss Charlotte Elder, the other bridesmaid, will also be in yellow, with a picture hat of the same shade. Miss Irene Baker, maid of honor, will be next in the bridal procession, her gown of orchid chiffon shading into the delicate color of her bouquet of Ophelia roses. The little flower girl, Dorothy Shay, will wear a pink frock and will carry a tiny basket filled with roses, while deep in the heart of one crimson beauty the wedding ring will be concealed.

The bride, in her lovely gown of white satin with long tulle veil caught with a few daisies, will meet the bridegroom and his best man, Mr. William Galloway, under an arch of roses and ferns where Rev. Thomas J. Coffey will read the marriage lines. Just as they turn to leave the church the two cunning little girls, Miss Helen Updike and Miss Ruth Harty, who will stand on either side of the arch, will pull the long satin streamers and the young couple will be showered with rose leaves, the fragrant petals falling from a white bell hung in the middle of the arch.

A reception will be given at the home of the bride's mother, and after Mr. and Mrs. Howes have received the good wishes of their friends they will leave for Minneapolis, returning to make their home in Omaha.

The out-of-town guests at the wedding will include Mrs. Will Brown and Mr. Ray Coffey of Long Beach, Cal., and Mrs. George Brown and two sons of Chicago.

Countess on Tour.

Countess Madeline de Bryas will come to Omaha Monday to spend three days lecturing and collecting funds for the Ann Morgan reconstruction work in devastated France.

She is sent on a tour of this country by the American committee on public information. Miss May Mahoney, who is assisting to arrange for her visit, has received a letter from the high French Deputy Commissioner Edouard de Billy asking her and all his friends whom he met in Omaha last fall, to extend every courtesy to the titled guest.

During her visit here the Chamber of Commerce will give a "public affair" luncheon in her honor. Miss Mahoney will entertain for the countess.

Popular Couple Engaged—After-the-War Wedding

Gladys Bunt

Of interest to all college folk is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Gladys Bunt of Fremont to Lt. Ralph Wallace Garrett of Madison, Neb., which comes today. The wedding will not take place until after the war, as this young couple will serve their country until peace is declared.

Miss Bunt is a charming young woman and one of the most popular girls at the University of Nebraska during her years of study there. She is a member of the Delta Gamma sorority and of the two honorary clubs, the Black Masque and the Silver Serpent.

Aside from these honors Miss Bunt was crowned queen of the May at the annual spring festival of the school in 1914, the year that this pretty girl received her sheepskin. Miss Bunt has been head dietitian at the University of Nebraska hospital and now expects to enlist as a Red Cross dietitian for the period of the war.

Lieutenant Garrett is a graduate of the Nebraska university, receiving his A. B. degree in 1912 and graduating in 1914. He is a member of the Alpha Beta Chi, Phi Delta Pi and Phi Beta Kappa fraternities. Lieutenant Garrett was practicing law in Tulsa, Okl., when war was declared, and entered the officers' training camp at Fort Riley, where he received his commission. The young officer is now stationed at Camp Jackson, S. C.

London's first regularly organized club for women, the Somerville, was formed 40 years ago.

The conductorette has now appeared in Baltimore.

A Touch of Masculinity

By GERTRUDE BERESFORD.

THERE is something perversely fascinating in a waistcoat on a slender figure. This masculine vest and suspenders, made of lavender linen, are particularly effective over a shirt of finely woven lavender voile. A skirt border of linen is added to a plainly gathered skirt of voile. Tiny pearl buttons fasten the shirt, which has an interesting collar. Large pearl buttons hold the double-breasted waistcoat with bound buttonholes. Linen cuffs turn back under pearl buttons. This is a smart little frock, and the combination of thin and thick materials in the same shade is quite a new touch. This gown may be effectively developed in organdie and linen.

A Crimson Episode

By Charlotte Miah in Film Fun.
Within the darkened picture house, Rose took her powder puff. And dusted well her pretty nose. Just what she thought enough.
But once outside the picture house, She couldn't understand Why everybody stared and stared, And laughed to beat the band.
But as she passed a mirror by, She gasped, "For goodness sake!" For she had used upon her nose Her rouge puff by mistake!

Fans! Fans! Blue Bags and Blue Blood at the National Golf Tournament

By PEGGY NATTINGER
Fans! Well, you should have seen them! The palm leaf variety? No, nor the spangled bits of lace and ivory that seem an important accessory to a dinner gown, but the real, flesh and blood cigar smoking, "D'ja hear the score" kind. They were all at the golf tournament at Happy Hollow club, Tuesday, little red admittance cards tied in their coat lapels, a broad smile on their faces and dull care and business forgotten. But, we mustn't stray from the subject of fans for the most attractive ones were of the feminine variety. Their gay sweaters and bright little sport hats made lovely splashes of color about the booths and on the links for feminine Omaha was there, not only to watch the professionals, but to lure the dollars from the pockets of the tired business man into their blue bags.

Blue bags? Does that sound familiar? Indeed, it must as they are in evidence at every affair these days, for the Red Cross has entered the world of sports and she has come to stay "for the duration of the war." So quietly she slipped in that we hardly knew it, but you noticed that the programs were emblazoned with her insignia and the national colors and then, too, when Mrs. Dick Stewart, looking so attractive in her gingham gown and tiny hat of green with some woody daisies nodding about the crown, said, "only a quarter," did you refuse? You did not and then—enter the little blue bag.

Girls in Profusion.
Girls there were in profusion and charming young matrons looking so attractive in their canteen costumes. These pretty merchants sold programs and admittance cards and a man escaped them. Far down the driveway you could see them, their white veils fluttering in the breeze, stopping every machine and tagging the occupants. Misses Nina and Louise Dietz were most energetic and their supply of little booklets soon gave out, but the smiles did not, you may be sure.

The very attractive booth, placed near the club house, seemed to be Mrs. Joseph Barker's special care for she sold cool drinks at an advanced price with the ease of one long experienced in the art. Mrs. John Caldwell and appearing young woman with her officer husband by her side was quite an attraction in her gingham gown of cool green with a gingham hat to match. Mrs. E. H. Sprague wore a smart costume of white, her tailored sailor banded with purple.

The lovers of this national game were most enthusiastic, they stood uncomplaining in the hot sun waiting for the stars to appear, but at last they came, and with a blast of jazz music and loud cheers, they were off. A crowd of Omaha's golf enthusiasts following close behind.

Glass-Story.
The marriage of Mrs. Ethel M. Story of Fort Des Moines to Mr. Hugh Glass of Rochester, N. Y., was solemnized Tuesday morning at the home of Rev. G. M. Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. Glass will make their home in Omaha.

SUCCESSFUL INVADERS
It is estimated that more women are now employed in clerical positions in Washington than in any other city of the world.

Women section hands with pick and shovel are employed in the Cincinnati railroad yards.

More than 500 women have supplanted men in clerical positions in the banks of St. Louis.
