THE BEE: OMAHA, SATURDAY, JULY 20, 1918.

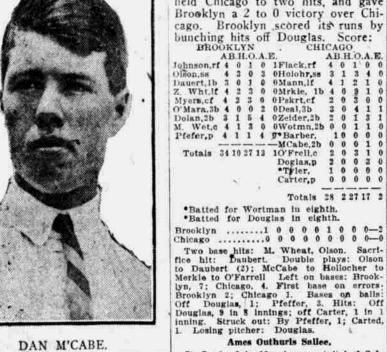

flight yesterday.

The first big surprise came at noon, when after a close but loosely played game, Blaine Young, prospective champion, was put out of the run-ning by Maynard T. Swartz of the Field club. Swartz also figured in the next push on the dope pot when he was defeated by Dan McCabe of Elmwood Golf club, "boy wonder," of twenty years, recently graduated from the caddy class.

Chick Evans smile, McCabe refused surrounding the green. The two took to be worried by the presence of a fair sized gallery or by the playing of his rival. Some were inclined to criticise his form, but Dan paid no stroke attention to these, and put the results of his years of caddying on the Hapby Hollow course into use. Dan knows the course from hazard to hill. His use of sticks at some times shocked the marveling onlookers, and would have caused an awful pain to a "How to Play Golf in Twenty Installments" writer. Dan, however, intends to "continue in our next," said next being this morning when he will meet Kenny Reed, his culb mate. for the Nebraska honors.

earned as a result of the championship back one. After some goody playing, McCabe sank another notch, but rose with the course in. With Mc-Cabe two in the lead and one hole to go; Peters called it off and the last Field club player was eliminated from the tourney. McCabe's match with Swartz was a draw from the medalist score standpoint. Both players went out in 44 and came in 28 up to the sixteenth tee.

McCabe lost the initial hole on a misguided putt. Both the drives from the second tee fell outside of a ridge strokes to McCabe's four. Here's how the card reads:

Dope on the Finals.

The match between Blaine Young and Swartz was a disappointment to many. Both played a game which was poor for semi-finalists. Although the former state champ is now defeated, his supporters are of the opinion that another match would result in an entirely different manner.

Dopesters have ceased to prophesy on the outcome of the finals. The two will play the first 18 holes start-ing at 9:30 in the morning and the last 18 of the tourney in the early afternoon. Many skeptics are still of the opinion that the boy champ will "break," since this is his first tourney and he is unused to galleries. Others are of the opinion that a whizz-bang couldn't startle the player who plugs away at the ball and forgets all else.

Finals in all matches will be played this morning save in the vice president's flight, which was completed yesterday with F. Potter victorious over T. Reimers, two up and one to Charlie Johnson's bag of clubs will be sold this afternoon for the Red Cross.

The first hole of the Young-Swartz match was uneventful save that it gave Young a start of one up. The second hole was halved in bogey-par three. Both players made a poor job of the third hole. The putting was poor and a six and seven were registered before the balls entered the can.

Neither in Best Form.

Swartz gave the necessary trans-portation to his ball before Young found the hole, thus evening up matters. The two got back into better form on the next hole. Neither encountered trouble on the trap. Young finished in par-bogey five, while Swartz required an extra putt. The situation was back to normal when Swartz negotiated the fairway and green in five.

Playing wonderfully poor golf on the next two holes, neither seemed to be able to play poorer than the other, so, making the sixth hole in four each (bogey 3) and the seventh n six, they got it out of their sys-tems for a while. Swartz staged a comeback, making the eighth sole in four, which was one under par and two under bogey. Young put the hole around the ball in six. This completed the outward round. Young's score of 45 was three over bogey and eight over par. Swartz's card showed a 43 tally and one up.

Fatal Fifteenth.

No kick is due on the first hole which was negotiated in a par 4 by rach. This evened matters. From here to the 14th hole both played cal golf, making each hole in par. The 15th, however, was the fatar point. Blaine Young needed six flings to complete the 411 yards, while Swartz found five sufficient. Both en settled down to hard playing. Their drive off took them into a trap and a
