A flock of stock peddlers, wildcaters and get-rich-quickers having invaded Texas caused the governor to issue the following warning: "Persistently my attention has been directed to the fact that the state of Texas is being overrun with fraudulent or questionable stock selling enterprises. These concerns, represented by overzealous agents who realize 25 to 40 per cent commission on all stock sales, are either unincorporated or are not complying with the provisions of the blue sky law. An unincorporated stock company is not under state supervision, nor subject to state visitation. In these instances the investor is offered no protection by the state of Texas. Into his 16 years of life George Harris has crowded experiences many and varied enough to have satisfied a man of mature years. He had been an errand boy with a London firm, and because he was dismissed from his employment on suspicion of theft, he attempted suicide. For this he was charged at the Guildhall yesterday, and it was then that the astonishing facts of his career came out. At the age of 13, Harris was, the police said, a confirmed wanderer. With the proceeds of a theft from a woman in the West end, he went to Folkestone, where he was employed in the war, and the boy tried to enlist. Nothing daunted, he borrowed money and went to Flushing, afterwards making his way to Antwerp, where he arrived just as it had been captured by the Germans. An enemy officer, learning his age, released him, and he came back to this country with some refugees.

DEAR, DEAR, MEXICAN FLEAS MUST NOW GO UNCLOTHED
Sad news comes from Mexico. Dressing fleas for market is no longer a profitable business, and the little insects have disappeared from the showcases of curio stores. Dressed fleas were long a staple article in the stores and shops in Mexico. In little boxes no bigger than the blunt end of a lead pencil these adorned fleas could be seen through reading glasses in all the glory of their wedding or christening finery. Mexican women toiled for days dressing the diminutive insects, using the point of a needle to attach the bits of bright cloth and lace to the bodies of the wee pests. Through a microscope the dressed fleas appeared as miniature persons, with hats, dresses and suits covering their tiny forms.

YOU MEAN AS THE FLOW CRIES? "CORRECTED THE MAN OF LAW.
The judge said "No." He remarked saucily, "So means 'as the fly crows.'"
And they all looked at one another, faintly that something was wrong—Baptist Watchman-Examiner.

THE PROFESSOR'S DELUSION.
Professor X is an absent-minded as they make 'em. He and his wife were going to the judge and as the time approached she said, "I don't like that you have on, dear. I wish you would go up and put on another."
The professor, his mind busy with some problem of the day, started up upstairs. Ten minutes later when he failed to appear his wife went in search of him. She found him in his room, dressed and just getting into bed. The act of taking off his tie had caused him, in his absent-mindedness, to think he was retiring for the night.

WHAT IS IN A NAME?
He was six years old and had been sent to school No. 47 in Irvington. Asked by his mother the name of his teacher, he replied: "Mister Linden."
"Why, you haven't a man for a teacher, have you?" his mother asked.
"Yo, Mister Linden is a girl," was the answer.
And it was days before the mother learned her son's teacher was Miss Olive Perlinen—Indianapolis News.
