> Potash Lands to Be Exploited by a New Omaha Company

A number of Omaha's leading capof potash lands in Garden county, corrugated iron. Neb., and have organized the Omaha

No. 3 Potash & Refining company. The executive officers elected for the ensuing year are Everett Buckingham, vice-president and general manager of the Union Stock yards, president; Philip H. Kohl, capitalist, of Wayne, Neb., vice-president; Joseph Barker, of the Foster-Barker company, Omaha, treasurer and Frank A.

It is the intention of the new company to develop its holdings by the erection of a modern reclamation and reduction plant at Lakeside, Garden county.

The character and business abilities of the men identified with the executive offices and directorate of the new company promise to assure its financial success. They have all made a personal investigation of the physical values of their holdings and are 45 45 45 25 48 46 46 00 confident of the fact that they will 26 40 be able to develop their proposed 26 25 venture ito one of the most extensive and profitable potash reduction

YORK STOCKS OMAHA'S GROWTH

Very few cities are going throug. the process of evolution, due to growth and progress, as extensively as Omaha.

Changes are taking place with a rapidity that is almost marvelous, and they are so complete that whole as communities have been obliterated and the local environment entirely blotted out.

Ten years ago the site that is now being prepared for the Nicholas refinery was a "squatter village." Therewere more than 70 families of Poles and Bohemians in the district south of Hickory street to the Union Pacific tracks and east of Twenty-seventh street to the government corral. They had a perfect shanty town, laid out in narrow streets and alleys, the houses fearfully and wonderfully contrived of packing case and grain door and condemned boxcar material, with italists have acquired large holdings a sheathing of tin cans and discarded

Primitive Houses.

Each house was surrounded with a fence as primitive in architectural design as the house, and in the yard in the rear there was the inevitable pile of railroad ties, a dog and a goose.

When Shull's Second addition was laid out it became necessary to evict all the squatters. Notices were served on them and they accepted the ultimatum, given by constables, with a quiet unconcern that was remarkable. The dirt taken in grading streets and alleys in the addition filled in the site of the old homes of the squatters.

Realty Men Responsible.

It was found, on investigation, that all of the "squatters" were packing house workers, and that they had all saved up considerable money. An enterprising young real estate sales-man thought it would be a good idea to try to sell them home sites, andwith an interpreter he went among them and sold to nearly every head of a family a lot in the vicinity of Thirty-second and Valley streets. The whole squatter community wasmoved in a year to the new location 12 and all occupied comfortable cottages which they had built and paid . for themselves. The material of their old homes was used to build the sheds.

Notwithstanding the fact the squatters were well enough off to buy lots and build comfortable homes for themselves, they would have continued to reside in their old "squatter" shanty town for years had it not beeen for the march of progress which forced them to a new com-At Twenty-Fourth Street munity and to better living condi-

Chicago Grain and Provisions

Chicago, July 27 .- Hot weather southwest ed to free buying of corn today and made prices advance. The demand was mostly for small lots, but offerings, were light, and the market easily influenced. A falling off in arrivals here tended further to strengthen values. The opening, which ranged from $\frac{1}{10}$ to $\frac{3}{5}$ chigher, with August at \$1.53 % to \$1.53 % and September \$1.54 %, to \$1.54 %, was followed by a decided additional up-\$75,000.

turn. Oats rose with corn. Trade, though, was rather limited. After opening 35c to 35c higher, with August at 70%c to 70%c, the market continued to harden. Scantiness of offerings hoisted provisions.
