Too Late to Contest.

I. J. Dunn, whose particular chore the convention was to oppose any dorsement of Senator Hitchcock, offers this comment on the inanity of ohibitory amendment reference in prohibitory amendment reference in the democratic platform: "The state platform of the demo-eratic party, adopted at Hastings, does not favor the ratification of the national prohibition-amendment. So far as the state platform speaks for the party, it is against ratification. Of urse, a large majority of the dem-rats of Nebraska favor ratification, as an overwhelming majority of the delegates to the state conven-tion were in favor of it. The plat-form was not submitted by the comittee on resolutions until after 12 clock at night, after many of the elegates had departed and all were red. The references to woman sufand prohibition were contained in the last few lines of the resolu-tions. No doubt many delegates thought the platform declared in faof the ratification of the amendent and of national equal suffrage. know, of course, that it did not, but felt that it was too late to engage in a contest over those provisions. I had been informed that the chair-had been informed that the chair-man of the convention would not place on the resolutions committee any person who was in favor of rati-fication of the prohibition amend-ment, giving as his reason that Gov-ernor Neville was opposed to a declaration of that kind. There are just two sides to the question of rati-tic the prohibition amendjust two sides to the question of rati-fication of the prohibition amend-ment. Individuals and political parties in this state are either for or it. And a state convention that had an opportunity to speak on the subject and did not declare in lavor of it, was simply against it."

Thomas Against Platform.

Elmer E. Thomas, another Omaha democrat who attended the Hastings meet, is outspoken against the state platform of his party. He is one of the leaders of the "committee of 500," which is affiliated with other organizations in working for a ratification in this state of the proposed ohibitory amendment. His statenent follows:

"It was just knough to keep down fight on the floor of the conven-In the haste of reading the lution at 12 o'clock at night, hen everybody was anxious to ad-urn, the delegates did not get the full purport of the language used. and we thought that the resolutions mittee had indorsed suffrage and prohibition, but on analysis it looks as though the resolutions committee played a trick on the convention. The played a trick on the convention. The sentiment of the convention undoubt-edly was for prohibition and suffrage and against Hitchcock and Mullen. The resolutions committee held the resolutions back until a large num-ber of the delegates had left, and those that remained were weary. I think Arthur Mullen engineered the whole show and his purpose was to have the resolutions refer only to the war, but on account of fear of the war, but on account of fear of the people, they concluded at the last to add the equivocal statements which they did about suffrage and prohibi-

Omaha has advanced two notches in the list of cities that have the largest bank clearings and is now 12th on the list. All cities on the following list have maintained their posi-tions held in 1917, save Cincinnati and New Orleans, whose bank clearings have decreased during the last year. Atlanta has advanced from 16th to 15th place. Omaha's clearings have increased 59 per cent. The cities in order are as follows:
