FLASHES from FILMLAND

PHOTO-PLAY OFFERINGS FOR TODAY.

Sun-J. Warren Kerrigan in "A Burglar for a Night," has a comedy drama with a plot that carries with it an interesting love story, and when Kerrigan assumes the role of a pseudo burglar in the pursuit of love and adventure he finds himself tangled up in a predicament that is hard to escape with a chance of saving his face. Kerrigan is supported by an able cast and the whole makes a photodrama of interest and one that contains many a laugh for the audience.

Alhambra—William Desmond in "Closing In," a play with a mystery and plenty of bad and good men to keep things interesting for a big cast will be here today. On Friday comes Beale Love in a comedy drama, "A Little Sister of Everybody," and there will also be shown the English war news. Saturday comes Tom Mix in a part laid in the Canadian country, "Ace High." Mix has the pleasure of playing a part that he enacted in real life, for he was once a member of the Canadian mounted police. There will also be shown on this day a Fox comedy and the Pathe News.

Orpheum (South Side)—William Farnum in "The Plunderer," one of Farnum's big features of the year will be at this theater today and Friday. On Saturday will be shown William S. Hart in one of his western dramas, and also Alma Reubens in the feature drama, "The Painted Lily." Miss Reubens plays a light part that calls for dramatic talent and yet she has plenty of laughs for the audience all through the film.

Lothrop—Norma Talmadge in "The Safety Curtain," one of the big releases of the year with this star, will be shown here for the last time today. The play is a powerful story with fine dramatic effects obtained by Miss Talmadge. In addition to the feature there will be shown a comedy and the Pathe News. On Friday comes Constance Talmadge in "Good Night Paul."

Grand—Gladys Brockwell in "The Scarlet Road," will be the offering here today in a sensational love drama with a moral lesson attached. There will also be run the all-time war review, No. 5 and a Billie Rhodes comedy. On Friday will be shown Gladys Leslie in "The Little Runaway," a comedy drama. Saturday will be shown Nell Shipman and Alfred Whitman in their dual lead drama, "The Home Trail." It is a real American story, full of ginger and with splendid dramatic effects in the climax.

Muse—June Caprice appearing in "Miss Innocence," will be the offering here again today in a story of a girl who has been raised in ignorance of the world behind convent walls. She brushes against the outer edge of a world that is not altogether nice, but comes through unscathed. Miss Caprice makes a pleasing girl heroines and she is well supported by her cast.

Brandeis—Both romance and war are welded in interesting scenes in "To Hell With the Kaiser," which will be the attraction for a limited engagement at the Brandeis, beginning Saturday, August 10. In the Screen Classic, Inc. master-drama, a romance with an American hero and heroines runs parallel with the expose of the Kaiser's machinations toward the conquest of the world.

Bebe—William S. Hart in "Selfish Yates," will be the feature here today and Friday. Hart plays the part of the most selfish and egotistical man in the world, but discovers that he has a heart at the same time that he learns that he is in love with a good woman. On Saturday will be shown William Duncan in "A Fight for Millions," and also Fatty Arbuckle in "The Water's Ball."

Apollon—William S. Hart will be seen here today and tomorrow in "Wolves of the Rail." Hart plays the part of a real bandit, and exciting scenes follow one another with astonishing rapidity. On Saturday will be shown Barbara Castleton in "Heart of a Girl," a pleasing drama of the love romance of a young girl.
