

SOUTH SIDE JENKINS AND IONES JAILED ON SOUTH SIDE

White Slave Charges May Be Preferred Against Two Young Men Who Came From St. Joseph.

Gladys Perks, 14, and Ruth O'Neil, 15 years old, are being held by the South Side police as witnesses against Ed Jenkins and Russ Jones, both under 21, charged with inducing the two girls to leave their homes in St. Joseph and come to Omaha. The two girls, both of whom appear older than the age given, were employed in a biscuit factory in St. Joseph when they met Ed Jenkins, who made the acquaintance of the Perks girl by taking her home from a picture show.

The boys later left for Omaha and applied for work at a local packing plant, where it is said they remained one day. At the time of their arrest, they were unemployed and living at 483 1/2 South Twenty-fourth street. After being here a while it is alleged that they sent money to the girls that they might come to Omaha, where jobs were said to be plentiful. The girls left without the consent of their parents. Gladys Perks' father, having heard of her coming to Omaha, followed her and accused the boys. The girls were employed in a restaurant and lived at 2508 M street.

The boys will be in police court this morning, and later charged with white slaving may be preferred against them.

Donations totalling $25,000 have already been made to the big Liberty Bazaar for the benefit of the Czecho-Slovak army, which is to be held in the auditorium September 1 to 8. These donations have come from all parts of the state.

Morse Bluffs has given an automobile and sold all the chances on it. Pierce county promises $1,500.

Preserves, fancywork, chickens, ducks, geese, hogs, and a great variety of articles have been coming in from all directions to be sold.

The bazaar will be opened by Governor Neville. Twenty-five thousand Slavonians will march in the parade. Four hundred little girls will form a human flag.

Nemaha County Picnickers Must Provide Own Sugar

Don't forget to bring your own sugar.

Thus the committee having in charge the arrangements for the Omaha Nemaha county picnic, which will take place at Elmwood park Saturday afternoon, admonishes all those who attend. They are also requested to bring cups, plates and forks.

The event will be an old-fashioned reunion of former residents of the county who now live in Omaha, Douglas county and Council Bluffs, and it is expected a number of residents of Nemaha county will also be present. A basket picnic will be one of the features. It is up to the persons who come as to whether "long sweetenin'" or "short sweetenin'" for coffee will be used. The committee will furnish plenty of fresh, sweet rich cream. There will be no taking advantage of Mr. Hoover so far as essentials are concerned.
