ON PATRIOTISM

Many are the surprising experiences of the woman who goes from store to store placing posters or seeking pledges for war work. "I had never done anything of the sort before I was asked to distribute these posters," said one dainty little Omaha matron, indicating a big pile of red, white and blue cardboard placards one day. "I supposed all the merchants would be glad to help by allowing me to place them in their show windows, but I was disillusioned promptly. "I called on one of the big automobile dealers and most confidently offered him one of my armful of posters. With a grunt he turned away. I followed him, quite insisting, when he made it clear that he had no room for such things in his store. However, all of the other automobile men were lovely. "Another surprise I got on that trip was when I entered the bakeshop of a little Russian Jew. Rather timidly I offered the poster, half expecting to be refused. The little man seized the poster, "How nice!" he exclaimed, "Put them up in my shop? Why, you can fill the whole shop with those colors, I find I have had to revise my estimates of human nature in a good many cases." Informal Luncheon. Miss Ethel Neirmeyer, special war worker, and Miss Beth Howard, employment secretary, had as their guests at luncheon Friday at the Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. Grace F. Gholson, state director for the war work campaign of the Young Women's Christian Association in Nebraska, Miss Myrtle Roberts and Miss Ione Duffy. Miss Katherine Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Reynolds, who is visiting in Kimball, Neb., leaves today with a party of eight for a motor trip to Estes Park, returning via Denver September 1.

Hubbard-Goodrich Wedding.

The wedding of Miss Louise Goodrich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Goodrich, of this city, and Lt. Lyle Hubbard of the American air service of the national army, was solemnized Saturday at 5 o'clock in the evening at St. Barnabas church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Leonard K. Smith of St. Luke's church, Des Moines, an old friend of the family.

The bride wore a simple wedding gown of white net and a veil caught with a cluster of orange blossoms. She was attended by the Misses Zenana Sweet of Evanston, Ill., as bridesmaid, and Miss Margaret McLaughlin of this city as maid of honor, both gowned in pink and wearing pink picture hats.

E. C. Prescott, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was his attendant. Mrs. Hubbard before her marriage was one of Omaha's best known young women. Both she and her husband had a wide range of friends in club and school circles. Lieutenant Hubbard is a son of the late Congressman Elbert Hubbard of Sioux City. He is a graduate of George Washington university. Before entering the service Lieutenant Hubbard was assistant secretary of the Northwestern railroad.

Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's parents for relatives and very close friends. Lieutenant Hubbard is making a splendid military record for himself. He has been stationed at Dallas, Tex., recently and came from there for his wedding. Their future plans are uncertain, as the bridegroom awaits orders.

Out-of-town guests present at the ceremony were Mrs. A. C. Goodrich, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rickett, Geneva, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. James C. Davis, Chicago; Mrs. Elbert Hubbard, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Prescott, Sioux City, and Mrs. Robert Fullerton, jr., Des Moines.

The bride wore a white satin gown and long tulle veil, carrying a bouquet of white roses. She was attended by two bridesmaids, who wore pale green and pink gowns with hats to match. They were Miss Hazel McClure and Miss Veda Paddock. Little Misses Thelma Barrett and Alma Baker were the flower girls. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Elmer S. Winters. Mrs. A. J. McClung sang "O, Promise Me," and Mrs. N. H. Tyson played the wedding march. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in Benson.
