

NEBRASKA BOYS GRADUATE FROM OFFICER SCHOOL

Cadets from Cornhusker State to Get Commissions as Lieutenants at Camp Gordon, Alabama.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 14.—On a heavy stretch of land in an out-of-the-way section of Camp Gordon, where yellow strips of road begin and end, and where a fringe of trees tops, rising out of a patch of wood, meet the sky in a blend of color is the camp of the Central Officers' Training school, from which a number of well-known Omaha and Nebraska boys will be graduated September 1.

The school, occupying as it does a choice slice of Uncle Sam's real estate, was opened June 15, and it will be the first course of the school that is completed in about two weeks. The outgoing class will consist of 1,500 men, and the majority of the Nebraska candidates are men who entered officers' schools at other camps and were brought to the Atlanta cantonment to complete their training.

Some of the Nebraska men who will be made eligible for appointment as second lieutenants at the windup of the first course of the school were transferred to Camp Gordon some time ago to fill the places left vacant by the departure of men for overseas, and these Nebraskans entered the officers' camp in the regular Camp Gordon quota.

Will Be Lieutenants.

Nebraska men who are now in the school and who will soon be eligible for appointment as second lieutenants are:

- Floyd O. Hudson, instructor Nebraska Wesleyan, University Place, Neb. Ex-football man and team captain.
- Oscar W. Hill, bookkeeper, Newport, Neb.
- Paul Applegate, blacksmith, Union, Neb.
- Earl J. Yates, Nebraska State university.
- Virgil Riley, machinist, Bayard, Neb.
- Joseph Gulemetts, wild animal trainer, Lincoln, Neb.
- Guy Kirchner, motion picture man, Clay Center, Neb.
- Leslie Lyman Kunkle, University of Nebraska.

Other young candidates from the west who are certain to receive commissions are:

- William H. Kruegel, Wichita, Kan.
- Arthur R. Baldwin, Sioux City, Ia.
- Lowell Rexford Johnson, school teacher, Slater, Mo.
- Dare H. McAuley, mechanic, Mason City, Ia.
- Robert R. Russell, teacher and student, Galva, Kan.
- Leoborn F. Wright, Springfield, Mo.
- Jesse A. Williams, Springfield, Mo.
- Herbert M. Light, Des Moines, Ia.
- Lewis P. Courshon, salesman, Sioux City, Ia.
- William C. Cowherd, Manson, Ia.

More Huskers Enter.

There are a number of Nebraska men scattered through the various outfits at Camp Gordon, and as the officers' school will accept applicants from the camp every month, it will be possible for more Nebraskans to enter the school and begin the four months' grind.

The Central Officers' Training school at the Atlanta cantonment is one of those established on a permanent basis and for the duration of the war. Every 30 days a new class will be admitted and at the same time a class will be graduated. While the graduates will not be commissioned immediately, it is not expected that they will have long to wait.

Two Men and Women Arrested for the Alleged Theft of Automobiles

Four alleged auto thieves, two men and two women, were captured at Plattsmouth Tuesday by Detectives Paszynski, Rich and Murphy, recently appointed to the police "auto squad." It is alleged they had in their possession an automobile stolen from Leo Harvey, living at the Paxton hotel. The machine was stolen at Seventeenth and Harney streets, June 1. They were brought to Omaha from Plattsmouth Wednesday morning. They gave their names as Marguerite Sullivan, Seventeenth and Chicago streets; Beatrice Wilhelm, Kansas City; Rowland Howell, 222 North Twenty-fourth street, and Paul Peterson, 2763 Burt street. Police allege the two women of the party recently escaped from the detention hospital.

Man Badly Hurt in Fall Down Shaft of Elevator

Charles Ross, 2215 South Twenty-ninth street, an employe of Simon Bros' wholesale grocers, 1123 Howard street, suffered a possible concussion of the brain, lacerations of the face and contusions on the body when he fell 18 feet down an elevator shaft at the Pacific Storage and Warehouse company, 1007 Jones street, Wednesday morning. He was found unconscious at the bottom of the shaft by another employe. He was attended by Dr. Foltz and taken to Lister hospital, where his injuries are reported serious.

Women Testify to Large Food Sales by Raisman

County Food Administrator Allen concluded the hearing wherein it is charged that Sam Raisman, grocer in 1320 Capitol avenue, has been selling flour and sugar in excess amounts and not in accordance with government regulations. A review of the testimony will be made before a decision is made.

Rev. McDougall Appointed for Overseas War Service

Rev. George McDougall, former pastor of the Olivet Baptist church and recently tax clerk in the county clerk's office, has been appointed for work in France under the Young Men's Christian association banners and expects to leave for New York within two weeks, whence he will leave for "over there."

CHAPTER IV. Peggy Flies to Sea.

(Peggy follows General Thrift's W. R. S. army to an airplane factory. There she helps catch a spy who tries to disable a new seaplane in which a navy aviator, Lieutenant Young, is about to go in search of German submarines.)

"I CHARGE this man with having filed the wires of this seaplane, so that they would break under the strain of flying," said Lieutenant Young to the guards who seized the guilty foreman. "I wish every one here to take particular notice of all that occurred so that they can testify at his trial."

The workmen gave a low growl of anger and started toward Carl.

"Hang the spy!" some one shouted. Lieutenant Young jumped in front of the prisoner.

"No, none of that!" he cried. "Let the law take care of him. We have work to do now. This seaplane must be fixed so I can get after those German sub. rines."

The men reluctantly obeyed, though they threw threatening glances at Carl as he was hustled away by the guards.

General Thrift came flying back in Peggy's aerial chariot.

"What's this I hear about a spy damaging our work?" he cried. Peggy told him and he was very indignant.

"That's the way the Huns try to hold us back, but they can't do it," he exclaimed. "We're prepared for them, thanks to the boys and girls and grown-ups who support our army. Get busy, you Whizzes, this job can't wait a minute!"

And the Whizzes did get busy. They flew around with a zest and vigor that astonished Peggy. In a trice they had new wires ready and by the time the workmen had removed the damaged braces and had put them away to be used as evidence against the spy the Whizzes had everything at hand to rush the work through.

While the wires were being tightened, Peggy had a lot of fun climbing around the deck of the seaplane and examined the controls, the machine gun and the bomb-dropping apparatus. General Thrift and General

German-Born Youth Fails In Effort to Join U. S. Army

Wilfred Kobsch, 2106 North Fifteenth street, believes he is out of luck in his efforts to join the fighting forces of the United States.

He is 19 years old and came to this country from Germany with his mother when he was 10 years old. His father died in the old country and his mother died here six weeks ago. Technically he is an alien enemy, but he insists that he has tried three times to enlist, the third time being on Wednesday, when Sergeant Hanson at the recruiting station told him there was no chance for him under his present legal status.

"I am anxious to get into service, but circumstances are against me," he stated yesterday.

Brothers-in-Law Fail To Agree Who Owns Cows

The old saw that "possession is nine points of law" did not satisfy Vignola Sawhill, when his brother-in-law, Al Bebout, Thirtieth and Wirt streets, laid claim to two cows, which Sawhill alleges were left to him by his mother when she died.

Bebout had the cows and Sawhill the determination to dispossess him of the bovines. He did, by driving them away during the absence of his brother-in-law Tuesday afternoon. When Bebout discovered his loss he complained to the county attorney, with the result that Sawhill was arrested and lodged in the county jail, charged with grand larceny.

Would Collect Insurance on Brother Who is Missing

Mrs. Gertrude L. Crane has brought suit in district court to recover $2,000 from the grand lodge, Ancient Order of United Workmen, which she alleges is due her on a policy taken out by her brother, Allen G. Goble, in 1900, and who disappeared from Kansas City Mo., seven years ago.

Lightning Kills Seven.

Philadelphia, Aug. 14.—Six persons were killed and a score injured by lightning bolts during a severe electrical storm which swept eastern Pennsylvania today. One man was killed and several injured by lightning in Delaware.

"HANG THE SPY!" SOME ONE SHOUTED.

Swallow was so much interested as she was and kept close beside her.

The seaplane was repaired in a surprisingly short time. Lieutenant Young examined every wire himself gave a satisfied nod, jumped into his seat, and before Peggy knew what he was about, started his engine.

There was a tremendous roar and a great blast of wind as the propeller caught the air. Peggy and General Thrift threw themselves flat on the deck and grasped stays to keep from being blown off. General Swallow wasn't so fortunate and was whirled into the air far behind.

The seaplane gave a lurch, glided down the ways, and struck the water. There was a sudden smother of foam as the boatlike machine rushed across the bay, another lurch, and it began to climb into the clear air.

Peggy's breath was taken away by the suddenness of it all. It was several moments before she realized that she was being carried away, that she was an unintended passenger on a seaplane that was rushing to battle for America. She felt a little shiver of fear, then a thrill of joy.

"W-w-what fun!" she shouted to "Then we will load, sir," answered the ensign.

The crew turned the seaplane around and hurried bombs aboard.

"See my Whizzes!" cried General Thrift, proudly, as thousands of tiny workers assisted the sailors.

"And there are more Whizzes!" cried General Thrift, pointing to a shipyard nearby, where the little workers were fairly swarming, hurrying work along.

"And there are still more," he shouted, pointing to coal docks where great piles of fuel were being rushed into the bunkers of transports and freighters. "Everywhere Whizzes are rushing war work and fighting for Uncle Sam!"

And it was true. In whichever direction Peggy looked in the busy harbor there were the tiny soldiers pushing General Thrift. "We're going to see some real war."

"Hurrah!" answered the general, "but I'm sorry General Swallow got lost."

"Don't worry about me," shrilled a voice, and General Swallow darted up behind them. "This machine will have to go a lot faster to lose me."

Lieutenant Young gave them plenty of excitement. He tested the seaplane thoroughly, diving, wheeling about, and doing a lot of hair-raising stunts. Satisfied that it was all right he sped down the bay and dropped to the surface of the water in front of a navy yard. As lightly as though it were a canoe, he brought the seaplane up to an incline where a young ensign and a crew of sailors awaited him.

"Oh, he isn't going to fight after all," cried Peggy, much disappointed. But she spoke too soon. The young ensign saluted Lieutenant Young.

"Are you ready, sir?" he said. "All ready, Ensign Ward," announced the lieutenant.

ing things along. When she saw all that they were doing she was glad that her workers were among them and she made up her mind that she would earn and save every quarter she could to put an additional Whizz to work.

She was so much absorbed in watching the Whizzes that she scarcely noticed that the sailors had finished loading the seaplane with its bombs and its rapid-fire gun ammunition, and that Ensign Ward had leaped into the observer's seat. Again there was a roar from the propeller, again the wind nearly blew her away, again the seaplane swirled through the water, and again it rose gracefully into the air, mounting high and higher and heading to the eastward. Far away in the early morning light Peggy saw a rippling sparkle. It grew wider and wider and wider.

"Why," exclaimed Peggy. "It's the ocean."

In a few minutes they were out over the high rolling waves and headed toward the open sea where sailed Uncle Sam's transports in defiance of the treacherous U-boats that lay in wait for them.

(Tomorrow will be told how the seaplane, with Peggy on board, searches the ocean for the German submarines).

Early Bird Arouses Cop's Suspicion and is Pinched

That he was supposed to go to work at 5 o'clock and had gotten around real early was the only excuse that could be offered by Paul Ensinger, 104 Stanford Circle, when arrested in the alley in the rear of the Kirkendall Shoe company at 3:35 Wednesday morning. He is held for investigation.

Did You Get Your Rebate? If Not, Why Not? Wead Got His.

The system of rebates is invariably unjust and pernicious. Friends of Water Board members and those of influence easily obtain rebates, but those without influence are rejected. From the Water Board records on April 24th, 1918, you will find that three applications for rebates were made; one by Fred D. Wead, present member of the Water Board, one by Mrs. E. Sherwood, at 1329 S. 29th street, and one by Mrs. A. M. Kennedy, 504 S. 36th street. Mr. Wead's claim was allowed. Mrs. Sherwood's and Mrs. Kennedy's claims were rejected. Under a system of rebates what else could you expect?

WHAT TENANTS ARE UP AGAINST.

"In consideration of the water service being continued by the Metropolitan Water District at the premises described within, I agree to pay all back water bills and charges to date of this application.

Applciant.

Above agreement is a part of application blank tenant must sign prior to obtaining water. Why tenants should have to pay the preceding tenant's unpaid water bill is beyond my comprehension. It is graft pure and simple. The mere fact that the Water Board profits by the graft does not lessen the offense. Occasionally, however, the Water Board finds people who will not stand for this graft. On August 5th, 1914, Effie Kirk, 2321 Dewey avenue, objected to paying the preceding tenant's unpaid water bill; likewise on Aug. 10, 1914, Doane Powell, 921 S. 38th avenue. In both cases they sought relief from the District Court, who scored the Water management for this obnoxious method of attempting to collect bills from people who did not contract them. About that time I appealed to Mr. Wead and urged him to use his influence to rescind this rule. He stated that he would not, but favored compelling everyone seeking to avoid it to seek redress through the courts. Naturally for the sake of a few dollars most people will submit to a mild form of blackmail rather than litigate. Therefore the practice still prevails. Evidently, however, Board members are exempt from this unjust rule, as from the Board's records I find that the Union Packing Co. at Spalding street and the Belt line, of which Charles R. Sherman, present water board member, was the mortgage owner, contracted a bill of $119.09 which they left unpaid. On May 8th, 1918, the Water Board charged this off to profit and loss as an uncollectible account. This rule, therefore, is not applicable to all, only to those who will submit to coughing up, rather than assert their rights in court.

CARD INDEX FOR OMAHA SOLDIERS TO BE KEPT HERE

Chamber of Commerce Starts on Work of Listing All the Men Who Have Gone to War.

Complete statistics and information regarding every one of the thousands of Omaha men in the United States service will be on file at the Omaha Chamber of Commerce as soon as tabulations now being made out are completed. Work was begun Wednesday morning on the immense task. It is expected that several months' work will be necessary to finish the tabulation.

The scheme, as mapped out by W. A. Ellis, assistant commissioner of the chamber, calls for a separate card for every man who has gone from Omaha into any branch of the national service. This card will contain his name, his home address, the name and address of his nearest relative, the unit of which he is a member and his present location, if that can be ascertained.

It is expected that between 7,000 and 10,000 cards will be necessary before the index is anywhere near completion. As changes in the personnel and the army addresses of the men are constantly changing, Mr. Ellis expects to find it necessary to keep one clerk constantly employed in keeping the files up to date.

Prime objects of the scheme is to enable the chamber to be able at a moment's call to take care of any disabled soldier or sailor who returns, to furnish complete information concerning any Omaha soldier at a moment's notice, and to be able to communicate at once with the nearest relative of any such soldier.

Mr. Ellis states that the chamber is ready to receive and to tabulate at once any of the above information regarding Omaha soldiers which relatives or parents may send in.

A Message to Nebraska Democrats

Mayor Ed. P. Smith Urges the Nomination of Richard L. Metcalfe

Omaha, Neb., August 14.

The democratic party must go into this senatorial campaign with a candidate whose genuine Americanism has always tested 100 per cent.

There must be no question of how he stood BEFORE, as well as AFTER, certain events.

In addition to this he must be safe, sane and sound on the great questions that will arise when peace is declared. Without discussing the qualifications of others, who are candidates for this nomination, I think all will agree that Richard L. Metcalfe measures up to the requirements from every standpoint.

Nebraska would honor herself and render a service to the nation by electing him senator.
