SOUTH SIDE BOYS

Father's Teachings Get Commendation From Blacksmith Instructor at Camp Logan.

John Kisicki, 2641 X street, a South Side blacksmith, has two sons in training camps preparing to serve Uncle Sam. Paul aged 25, is now with a band at Fort Riley and expects to be transferred soon to the first band. Omaha boys he has met there are Joe Scheiger, E. Drexel and Mr. Echteymer from west Q street. Clement Kisicki, aged 21, is a blacksmith with Company A at Logan, Utah, and writes an interesting letter of his first lesson in the art. After making a wedge he was asked by the instructor to sharpen a pick. This he did, at the same time tempering it. When the instructor saw the work he tried it by dropping it on the cement floor on the point. This made a hole in the floor about three inches in diameter and so pleased the instructor that he asked the boy who taught him the trade. The credit was gladly given his father.

This matter was presented to the regional director's office by the Live Stock Shippers' Protective League. Mr. Stryker was one of a committee of two which handled this matter in Washington.

Louis Metz Visits Omaha;
His Friends Don't Know Him

The story of a "returned prodigal" was recently printed in a narrative concerning the mystical happenings that have befallen a former Omahan, Louis Metz, now a resident of Los Angeles. Mr. Metz was back in Omaha for a short visit and the Omaha Examiner gathered data for the following story which appeared in that paper:
"Louis Metz, whose home is now in Los Angeles, is passing a few weeks in Omaha to close up his business affairs. During his residence of a year in California a wonderful change has taken place in his personal appearance.
"Thirty years ago he met with an accident which resulted in the loss of his hair on the top of his head where the hair ought to grow. To cover his baldness he wore a dark wig. A few months ago when adjusting it in front of his mirror he noticed a slight growth of hair on his bald pate. He was startlingly encouraged.
"Going over to Catalina Island he remained there a month and three weeks and he roamed about bare-headed. The hair took a big start, coming out gray, as Louis is 30 years older than when he lost it.
"To make a long story short, Louis Metz today has a head full of thick, gray hair and is the handsomest and happiest and proudest man between the Missouri river and the Pacific coast. His friends have difficulty in recognizing him owing to the wonderful transformation.
"This is not an advertisement for any hair tonic. It is simply a hair-raising story. And furthermore it is true. How it happened Louis Metz is unable to say. He declares it is a miracle. It certainly is a remarkable fact."

CANDIDATES WHO LOST ALL PLEDGE THEIR SUPPORT

Line Up Back of Republican Ticket; Morale of Party Is High After Close of the Primary.

In the language of the military experts the morale of the republican party in this county, following the primary clash, remains high.

Prospects of success are good. Defeated candidates are unanimous in pledging support to successful opponents and to the entire republican ticket.

Before he hurried away on a vacation to Massachusetts N. P. Dodge assured Albert W. Jefferis, his congressional rival, that he would contribute to the campaign fund and help for the interests of the republican nominees.

Mr. Dodge gave assurance that there were no "sore spots" on him. Mr. Jefferis has also received a letter from Mr. Dodge, extending congratulations and promising hearty support.

Happy as June Bride.

J. J. Boucher, who wanted to be county attorney, appears as happy as a June bride. He writes the following statement:

"Early in the campaign I had the thrill that comes only once in a lifetime. I saw the new moon over my right shoulder and from that time on there was no doubt in my mind as to my nomination. When the returns came in and I observed the large number of votes that I didn't get, I felt like the disappointed farmer when he returned from having sold his hogs and said to himself, 'The darned hogs didn't weigh as much as I had expected and I didn't expect that they would.' And now that the excitement has passed and I see the large number of votes that were intended for me, but which were copied by the other fellows, I think of the soldier at Camp Funston who was granted a furlough, but had no money with which to pay his way home. Remembering his early training, he wrote a letter to the Lord asking for $100. The letter fell into the hands of the boys at the Young Men's Christian association hut, who made up a purse of $50 and sent it to him in a Young Men's Christian association envelope, without notation. In due time there came another letter from the soldier, advising the Lord that the next time he sent money to send it through the Knights of Columbus, as the last time the Young Men's Christian association guys kept out $50. That was the first time I ever had my hat in the ring and I had lots of fun out of it. I am for the ticket and now that it has been nominated I am going to do all that I can to elect it."

Stands Back of Ticket.

W. I. Kirkstead, one of the defeated republican legislative candidates, said: "The republican nominees will have my support. We all had a fair chance and the best men won. In fact, I think this republican ticket is the best we have had in many years."

William Adams, Pioneer in Cattle Business on Omaha Market, Dies

William Adams, one of the old time traders in cattle, died Tuesday at his home, 2623 South Thirty-second avenue. He had had as much to do with the upbuilding of the dairy business in Omaha as any one in the trade. He was a good judge of dairy cattle and did much to help poor dairymen get a start. He was 66 years old and had been a dealer in cattle at the yards for about 25 years. Funeral services were held Thursday at the Dodder chapel. Rev. Titus Lowe officiated. Burial was in West Lawn cemetery.

Heavy Run of Sheep Starts to South Omaha Stock Yards

"The light run of cattle this week is due to the farmers and ranchers being busy putting up hay," says E. Buckingham, vice president and general manager of the Union Stock Yards company. "We are looking for a heavy shipment next week. The run of sheep has been exceptionally large this week for so early in August, amounting to 123,000 head."

Captain from Honolulu is Mrs. Galt accompanied the captain to Omaha and they will make their family home here. Their two sons, John and Carter, are both in the service.

PARADE MARKS
OPENING OF BIG
WAR CARNIVAL

Double Line of Marchers More Than Mile Long; Record
Attendance at Bluffs Entertainment.

The longest parade that has marched in the streets of Council Bluffs in recent years—signalized the opening of the military carnival last night. It started at the intersection of Pearl and Main streets and when the head had counter-marched at the Broadway Methodist church and reached North Eighth street on Broadway the moving line was still coming up Main street from the starting point, making the double stream on Broadway alone more than a mile long.

The parade was a manifestation of the hearty response to the appeal of the entertainment bureau for a spectacular opening of the carnival. It was wholly a home affair, and was not led by the quadruple platoon of United States soldiers promised by Major Thompson at Fort Crook. One of the interesting features was the great array of service flags carried by individuals, manufacturing and business firms, fraternal and civic organizations.

Carry Service Flags.
Some of the flags proudly displayed by the latter bore 100 or more stars. Another feature that was liberally applauded was the big service flag of the First Baptist church, carried in defiance to the action of the Ministerial association.

All of the Catholic churches and societies were very prominent. Following a platoon of police a band of 30 pieces furnished by the Beno company led the parade, and behind the band came the famous drum corps. The paraders moved between double rows of automobiles lining both sides of the streets, and for the half hour required for its progress all traffic was suspended, including the street cars.

When the parade disbanded the crowd poured through the carnival gates, and a record first night attendance was the result. The carnival will continue all this week.
