

M'KELVIE WILL HELP FARMERS TO SOLVE PROBLEMS

In Reply to Query Candidate for Governor Tells Stand on Social Welfare Problems.

In reply to a query from C. A. McLeod of Stanton, Neb., concerning the stand taken by S. R. McKelvie, republican candidate for governor, on economical and social welfare problems that affect the farmer, Mr. McKelvie said:

"First: I elected governor, I shall call into conference the duly authorized representatives of all the leading farmers' organizations in the state before formulating a program of recommendations to be made to the legislature.

"Second: In making appointments to positions that are related to agriculture, I shall deem it my duty to select men whose experience and success in farming insure a knowledge of and sympathy with the things that are most important to that industry.

"The platform adopted by Nebraska republicans at the annual convention which was held recently contained this plank: 'We commend the co-operative efforts of our farmers in securing a more economical distribution of their products, and we promise them our support.' Not only do I endorse that statement, but I would add that I will support and approve any legislation that tends to aid and encourage co-operative efforts among farmers."

"My sincerity of purpose in these matters has long since been confirmed by the position I have always maintained regarding them in my farm paper.

"Furthermore, my training and life-time association have been so closely allied with Nebraska farming that I must know what the farmer's problems are. I was born and reared on a Nebraska farm and my people live there today. I am interested in the ownership and operation of a Nebraska farm at this time, and I have no business interests or investments that are not immediately associated with farming."

"My sincerity of purpose in these matters has long since been confirmed by the position I have always maintained regarding them in my farm paper.

"Furthermore, my training and life-time association have been so closely allied with Nebraska farming that I must know what the farmer's problems are. I was born and reared on a Nebraska farm and my people live there today. I am interested in the ownership and operation of a Nebraska farm at this time, and I have no business interests or investments that are not immediately associated with farming."

"My sincerity of purpose in these matters has long since been confirmed by the position I have always maintained regarding them in my farm paper.

"Furthermore, my training and life-time association have been so closely allied with Nebraska farming that I must know what the farmer's problems are. I was born and reared on a Nebraska farm and my people live there today. I am interested in the ownership and operation of a Nebraska farm at this time, and I have no business interests or investments that are not immediately associated with farming."

"My sincerity of purpose in these matters has long since been confirmed by the position I have always maintained regarding them in my farm paper.

"Furthermore, my training and life-time association have been so closely allied with Nebraska farming that I must know what the farmer's problems are. I was born and reared on a Nebraska farm and my people live there today. I am interested in the ownership and operation of a Nebraska farm at this time, and I have no business interests or investments that are not immediately associated with farming."

"My sincerity of purpose in these matters has long since been confirmed by the position I have always maintained regarding them in my farm paper.

"Furthermore, my training and life-time association have been so closely allied with Nebraska farming that I must know what the farmer's problems are. I was born and reared on a Nebraska farm and my people live there today. I am interested in the ownership and operation of a Nebraska farm at this time, and I have no business interests or investments that are not immediately associated with farming."

"My sincerity of purpose in these matters has long since been confirmed by the position I have always maintained regarding them in my farm paper.

"Furthermore, my training and life-time association have been so closely allied with Nebraska farming that I must know what the farmer's problems are. I was born and reared on a Nebraska farm and my people live there today. I am interested in the ownership and operation of a Nebraska farm at this time, and I have no business interests or investments that are not immediately associated with farming."

"My sincerity of purpose in these matters has long since been confirmed by the position I have always maintained regarding them in my farm paper.

"Furthermore, my training and life-time association have been so closely allied with Nebraska farming that I must know what the farmer's problems are. I was born and reared on a Nebraska farm and my people live there today. I am interested in the ownership and operation of a Nebraska farm at this time, and I have no business interests or investments that are not immediately associated with farming."

"My sincerity of purpose in these matters has long since been confirmed by the position I have always maintained regarding them in my farm paper.

"Furthermore, my training and life-time association have been so closely allied with Nebraska farming that I must know what the farmer's problems are. I was born and reared on a Nebraska farm and my people live there today. I am interested in the ownership and operation of a Nebraska farm at this time, and I have no business interests or investments that are not immediately associated with farming."

"My sincerity of purpose in these matters has long since been confirmed by the position I have always maintained regarding them in my farm paper.

"Furthermore, my training and life-time association have been so closely allied with Nebraska farming that I must know what the farmer's problems are. I was born and reared on a Nebraska farm and my people live there today. I am interested in the ownership and operation of a Nebraska farm at this time, and I have no business interests or investments that are not immediately associated with farming."

"My sincerity of purpose in these matters has long since been confirmed by the position I have always maintained regarding them in my farm paper.

"Furthermore, my training and life-time association have been so closely allied with Nebraska farming that I must know what the farmer's problems are. I was born and reared on a Nebraska farm and my people live there today. I am interested in the ownership and operation of a Nebraska farm at this time, and I have no business interests or investments that are not immediately associated with farming."

"My sincerity of purpose in these matters has long since been confirmed by the position I have always maintained regarding them in my farm paper.

"Furthermore, my training and life-time association have been so closely allied with Nebraska farming that I must know what the farmer's problems are. I was born and reared on a Nebraska farm and my people live there today. I am interested in the ownership and operation of a Nebraska farm at this time, and I have no business interests or investments that are not immediately associated with farming."

Brief City News

Elec. Fans $8, Burgess-Granden Co. Have Root Print It—New Beacon Press.

Falconer Expected Home—City Commissioner Falconer is expected home Monday night from Minneapolis.

Returns from Trip—Harry S. Byrnes returned from a trip which included Chicago, Washington, D. C., Buffalo, Troy, Baltimore and New York City.

George Howley in Omaha—George Howley, formerly employed at the United States marshal's office, now regimental sergeant major at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, is in Omaha for a short visit.

Johns Coal Company—W. J. Martin, who for 12 years has been private secretary to Traffic Manager Monroe of the Union Pacific, has resigned and gone with the McGoath Coal company and into the local offices.

Scrap Business Essential—A. E. Alpin, one of Omaha's large dealers in scrap iron, has received word from Washington that scrap iron dealers are regarded as essential and that they will not be drafted as nonessentials, as first reported Saturday.

Divorcees Are Granted—Divorce decrees have been granted in district court to Dolly May Welch from Calla Welch on grounds of cruelty, and to Emma G. Barker from George R. Barker on grounds of cruelty and non-support.

Inducted Into Service—Fred Darrow of Sheboygan, Wis., arrested as a deserter from military duty and held in jail at Glenwood, Ia., will be inducted into the service at Camp Taylor, Ky., by federal authorities this week.

Night Council Meeting—Tuesday's meeting of the city council will be held at 8 o'clock p. m., in accordance with a recent plan to hold one night session each month. This is to give citizens an opportunity to be heard on matters of local or general interest.

Gets Washington Office—Miss Lila McNulty, 211 South Thirty-sixth street, a telephone operator at the Harney exchange of the Nebraska Telephone company, has been appointed a departmental clerk in Washington. She will leave in a few days to take up her new duties.

Held for Borrowing Auto—Robert Jones, 2611 South Thirtieth street, and Ole Lorentzen, 3722 South Sixteenth street, were arrested late Monday afternoon and are being held for investigation at the city jail. The Lorentzen is alleged to have "borrowed" an auto from a friend, but he denies it.

Held for Having Booze—After receiving a complaint from neighbors that Sebastian Troy, 506 Woolworth avenue, was surreptitiously dealing in bootleg liquor in his home, a portion of the morals squad under Sergeant Allen swooped down on Troy's house with a search warrant Monday night and seized two pint bottles of whiskey. The squad raided Troy's house two weeks ago, but didn't find any contraband. Troy was placed under arrest on the charge of unlawfully having intoxicating liquor in his possession.

Fine fireplace goods at Sunderland's.

Omaha Laundries May Divide the City Into Routes to Conserve

At the instance of the War Industries board and the request of the Council of National Defense, a conference of laundryowners will be held at Washington, D. C., Tuesday morning, September 3. It is proposed to form a committee to represent the laundryowners of the United States which will be given authority to deal with the government on behalf of the entire laundry industry on matters of conservation, priority of materials, fuel, transportation, etc.

The Nebraska Laundryowners association held a meeting at the Hotel Fontenelle on Saturday, and the following delegates were appointed to represent the Nebraska Laundryowners at the Washington meeting: E. W. Truman, Lincoln; O. J. Fee, Lincoln; James Richardson, Nebraska City; H. A. Jacobberger, Omaha; C. M. Garvey, Omaha; Ralph Segur, Omaha; E. W. Sherman, Omaha.

At the Saturday meeting a suggestion of consolidating the Omaha laundries and restricting the city to eliminate delivery wastage was considered as it was along in line with the conservation of man-power and the saving of supplies and materials.

Corporal Hanson Injured When He Goes After Boche

Fremont, Neb., Aug. 26.—(Special Telegram.)—Corp. Edward B. Hanson, who went with a draft contingent from the county last spring, writes home that he was injured recently when he was sent out with a patrol of 16 men after a boche machine gun, a bullet from one of the Hun guns striking Corporal Hanson on the hand. He was laid up for several days for repairs.

Governor's Force Is Being Crowded Out of His Office

Lincoln, Aug. 26.—(Special.)—Activities around the office of the governor have taken on such proportions that the work has been crowded out into the corridor and Sergeant McCullough of the National guard headquarters with a force of janitors and others has been busy getting the new questionnaires ready for distribution. There are several tons of them piled up in sacks around the governor's office.

Schuyler Girl Is Awarded Woman's Club Scholarship

Miss Marie Glass of Schuyler, Neb., has been elected to the Kearney Normal school scholarship by the trustees of the Nebraska Federation of Women's clubs. This announcement was made Monday by Mrs. F. H. Cole, chairman of scholarship trustees. The scholarship is the gift of the Twentieth Century club of Kearney.

Nebraska in Tabloid.

Columbus will celebrate Pershing's birthday September 18. By a unanimous vote the city council favored this move and a committee was appointed to have charge of the celebration.

A match carelessly dropped on the floor of the Motor company garage at Pliker started a fire which completely destroyed the building. All cars were saved. The building was one of the most beautiful garages in northeast Nebraska. The loss was covered by insurance.

W. F. Francis was arrested at Beatrice charged with passing worthless checks.

Twenty-nine young men who have been in since June registered in the draft in St. Joe county. Twenty-six will leave for Camp Funston this week.

SOUTH SIDE CALL 15 LIMITED SERVICE MEN IN NEW DRAFT QUOTA

Soft Drink Dispensers Ordered to 'Work or Fight'; Five Men Are Drafted for Camp Grant.

Eighteen limited service men have been called from the Second district to leave for Fort Riley between August 30 and September 3. They will report for instruction August 30 at their homes. Those called are:

- John Carlsson
- Albert J. Blohm
- William Shimkovec
- Frank J. Goodry
- John A. Jones
- Anton Winczarek
- R. Ashenbrenner
- Wayne B. ...
- J. Mutskens
- Lazar Nikolic
- James P. ...
- Hymen Katz
- Joseph Smith

Five men have been called for Camp Grant, Ill., sometime between September 3 and 6. They will report to the exemption board September 2 for instructions. Those who will go on this call are: John Carlson, John Bosak, Joseph E. Sterba, Joseph Yancansky, John J. Besta.

A call has been made by the South Side exemption board No. 2 for all men engaged in soft drink business to enroll for service as they are expected to get into the service or some useful business.

Forty-six Register for Draft on the South Side

Following is a list of registrants at South Omaha Exemption Board No. 2, having become 21 years of age since June 5:

- Frank Spitzer
- Ferd Terry
- Joseph ...
- Julius Stilleck
- Joseph Alex ...
- Edmund C. Doughtery
- Frederick ...
- R. C. Stilleck
- August J. Klausche
- Cecil ...
- W. W. ...
- George C. ...
- James A. ...
- Herbert ...
- Gant ...
- Thomas ...
- Gus ...
- James F. ...
- Lockman ...
- George ...
- The negro registrants are: Donald G. ...
- Louis Mitchell
- Lester ...
- Alexander ...

Bernice Kalthorn Dies of Burns in Mysterious Fire

Bernice Kalthorn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kalthorn, 3916 U street, died in the South Omaha hospital Sunday night from burns received in the afternoon.

The 4-year-old girl was playing in the yard Sunday afternoon and in some mysterious manner her clothes caught on fire. Her screams brought her parents into the yard, where the mother made a desperate attempt to smother the flames. The little child, her body badly charred, was rushed to the hospital, but died the same day.

No cause can be learned of the origin of the fire. No fire of any kind was in the yard and the parents are of the opinion that she was playing with matches.

Mrs. Kalthorn was badly burned about the hands and arms and was taken to the South Side hospital. Funeral services will be held at the home Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Interment will be in Laurel Hill cemetery.

Burglars Are Unsuccessful in Attempt to Rob Stores

Three attempted burglaries were reported to the police Sunday night. A glass was broken out of the rear window of the Novelty Repair Works, 4809 South Twenty-fourth street. A glass was broken from the rear door of the Ten Cent store, 4725 South Twenty-fourth street; and an attempt made to break in the rear door of the Ten Cent store in 4816 South Twenty-fourth street. A heavy iron bar and auto tools were left at the last store. Nothing was reported stolen from any of the stores.

South Side Boy Severely Wounded at Battle Front

Anton Remar, son of James Remar, 2122 Fourth street, South Side, is given in today's casualty list as severely wounded. Harry B. Nelson of Council Bluffs is also severely wounded.

Earl P. Norman of Wausa, Neb., is reported killed in action. Arthur Stucky of Gering, Neb., died of wounds.

South Side Brevities

E. Buckingham, vice-president and general manager of the Union Stock Yards company, left Sunday night for Chicago on a business trip of several days.

George Turner, arrested Sunday night on a charge of drunkenness, failed to appear in police court Monday morning and forfeited his bond of $15.

Otto Altrick and Eva Miller, arrested on a charge of drunkenness, failed to appear in police court Monday morning and forfeited a bond of $20.

James Perry, 34th and U streets, was fined $10 and costs in police court Monday morning for the illegal possession of intoxicating liquors.

St. Mary's Court No. 577 of the Woman Catholic Order of Foresters will meet Tuesday night at St. Mary's school hall at 8 o'clock.

Telephone South 960 and order a case of Omaha Lager, the healthful, refreshing Home Beverage, delivered to your residence. Omaha Beverage Co.

OH, MONEY! MONEY!

by Eleanor H. Porter

Copyright, 1918, by Eleanor H. Porter and by the Public Ledger Co. By permission of Houghton Mifflin Co. All rights reserved.

THE STORY THIS FAR

Checks for $100,000 apiece have been received by Frank Blaisdell, James Blaisdell and Flora Blaisdell from the estate of Stanley G. Fulton, multimillionaire. Fulton is supposed to be in South America and his relatives believe to the belief that he is dead. As a matter of fact, he is in their home town, Hillerton, masquerading as John Smith, genealogist, interested in data concerning the Blaisdell family. There is much excitement in the neighborhood over the sudden rise in wealth of the Blaisdells.

CHAPTER XI. Santa Claus Arrives.

IT WAS not long after that that Mr. Smith found a tall, gray-haired man, with gray eyes, talking with Mrs. Jane Blaisdell and Mellicent in the front room over the grocery store.

"Well—" began Mr. Smith, a joyful light of recognition in his eyes. Then suddenly he stooped and picked up something from the floor. When he came upright his face was very red. He did not look at the tall, gray-haired man again as he advanced into the room.

Mellicent turned to him, eagerly. "Oh, Mr. Smith, it's the lawyer—he's home. And it's true. It is true!"

"This is Mr. Smith, Mr. Norton," murmured Mrs. Jane Blaisdell to the keen-eyed man, who also, for no apparent reason, had grown very red.

"Mr. Smith," a Blaisdell, too—distinct, you know. He's doing a Blaisdell book."

"Indeed! How interesting. How are you, Mr. Smith?" The lawyer smiled and held out his hand, but there was an odd contrast in his manner. "So you're a Blaisdell, too, are you?"

"Er—yes," said Mr. Smith, smiling straight into the lawyer's eyes. "But not near enough to come in on the money, of course" explained Mrs. Jane. "He isn't a Hillerton Blaisdell. He's just boarding here while he writes his book."

"Oh I see. So he isn't near enough to come in—on the money." This time it was the lawyer who was smiling straight into Mr. Smith's eyes.

But he did not smile for long. A sudden question from Mellicent seemed to freeze the smile on his lips.

"Mr. Norton, please, what was Mr. Stanley G. Fulton like?" she begged.

"Why—er—you must have seen his pictures in the papers," stammered the lawyer.

"Yes, what was he like? Do tell us," urged Mr. Smith, with a bland smile, as he seated himself.

"Why—er—" The lawyer came to a still more unhappy pause.

"Of course we've seen his pictures," broke in Mellicent, "but those don't tell us anything. And you know him. So won't you tell us what he was like, please, while we're waiting for father to come up? Was he nice and jolly, or was he stiff and haughty? What was he like?"

"Yes, what was he like?" coaxed Mr. Smith again. Mr. Smith, for some reason, seemed to be highly amused.

The lawyer lifted his head suddenly. An odd flash came into his eyes. "Like? Oh, just an ordinary man, you know—some what conceited, of course" (A queer little half-gasp came from Mr. Smith, but the lawyer was not looking at Mr. Smith.) "Eccentric—you've heard that, probably. And he has done crazy things, and no mistake. Of course, with his money and position we won't exactly say he had bits in his belly—isn't that what they call it?—but—"

Mr. Smith gave a real gasp this time, and Mrs. Jane Blaisdell ejaculated:

"There, I told you so! I knew something was wrong. And now he'll come back and claim the money. You see if he don't! And if we've gone and spent it all—"

A gesture of despair finished her sentence. "Give yourself no uneasiness on that score, madam," the lawyer assured her gravely. "I think I can

OH, MONEY! MONEY!

by Eleanor H. Porter

Copyright, 1918, by Eleanor H. Porter and by the Public Ledger Co. By permission of Houghton Mifflin Co. All rights reserved.

THE STORY THIS FAR

Checks for $100,000 apiece have been received by Frank Blaisdell, James Blaisdell and Flora Blaisdell from the estate of Stanley G. Fulton, multimillionaire. Fulton is supposed to be in South America and his relatives believe to the belief that he is dead. As a matter of fact, he is in their home town, Hillerton, masquerading as John Smith, genealogist, interested in data concerning the Blaisdell family. There is much excitement in the neighborhood over the sudden rise in wealth of the Blaisdells.

CHAPTER XI. Santa Claus Arrives.

IT WAS not long after that that Mr. Smith found a tall, gray-haired man, with gray eyes, talking with Mrs. Jane Blaisdell and Mellicent in the front room over the grocery store.

"Well—" began Mr. Smith, a joyful light of recognition in his eyes. Then suddenly he stooped and picked up something from the floor. When he came upright his face was very red. He did not look at the tall, gray-haired man again as he advanced into the room.

Mellicent turned to him, eagerly. "Oh, Mr. Smith, it's the lawyer—he's home. And it's true. It is true!"

"This is Mr. Smith, Mr. Norton," murmured Mrs. Jane Blaisdell to the keen-eyed man, who also, for no apparent reason, had grown very red.

"Mr. Smith," a Blaisdell, too—distinct, you know. He's doing a Blaisdell book."

"Indeed! How interesting. How are you, Mr. Smith?" The lawyer smiled and held out his hand, but there was an odd contrast in his manner. "So you're a Blaisdell, too, are you?"

"Er—yes," said Mr. Smith, smiling straight into the lawyer's eyes. "But not near enough to come in on the money, of course" explained Mrs. Jane. "He isn't a Hillerton Blaisdell. He's just boarding here while he writes his book."

"Oh I see. So he isn't near enough to come in—on the money." This time it was the lawyer who was smiling straight into Mr. Smith's eyes.

But he did not smile for long. A sudden question from Mellicent seemed to freeze the smile on his lips.

"Mr. Norton, please, what was Mr. Stanley G. Fulton like?" she begged.

"Why—er—you must have seen his pictures in the papers," stammered the lawyer.

"Yes, what was he like? Do tell us," urged Mr. Smith, with a bland smile, as he seated himself.

"Why—er—" The lawyer came to a still more unhappy pause.

"Of course we've seen his pictures," broke in Mellicent, "but those don't tell us anything. And you know him. So won't you tell us what he was like, please, while we're waiting for father to come up? Was he nice and jolly, or was he stiff and haughty? What was he like?"

"Yes, what was he like?" coaxed Mr. Smith again. Mr. Smith, for some reason, seemed to be highly amused.

The lawyer lifted his head suddenly. An odd flash came into his eyes. "Like? Oh, just an ordinary man, you know—some what conceited, of course" (A queer little half-gasp came from Mr. Smith, but the lawyer was not looking at Mr. Smith.) "Eccentric—you've heard that, probably. And he has done crazy things, and no mistake. Of course, with his money and position we won't exactly say he had bits in his belly—isn't that what they call it?—but—"

Mr. Smith gave a real gasp this time, and Mrs. Jane Blaisdell ejaculated:

"There, I told you so! I knew something was wrong. And now he'll come back and claim the money. You see if he don't! And if we've gone and spent it all—"

A gesture of despair finished her sentence. "Give yourself no uneasiness on that score, madam," the lawyer assured her gravely. "I think I can

OH, MONEY! MONEY!

by Eleanor H. Porter

Copyright, 1918, by Eleanor H. Porter and by the Public Ledger Co. By permission of Houghton Mifflin Co. All rights reserved.

THE STORY THIS FAR

Checks for $100,000 apiece have been received by Frank Blaisdell, James Blaisdell and Flora Blaisdell from the estate of Stanley G. Fulton, multimillionaire. Fulton is supposed to be in South America and his relatives believe to the belief that he is dead. As a matter of fact, he is in their home town, Hillerton, masquerading as John Smith, genealogist, interested in data concerning the Blaisdell family. There is much excitement in the neighborhood over the sudden rise in wealth of the Blaisdells.

CHAPTER XI. Santa Claus Arrives.

IT WAS not long after that that Mr. Smith found a tall, gray-haired man, with gray eyes, talking with Mrs. Jane Blaisdell and Mellicent in the front room over the grocery store.

"Well—" began Mr. Smith, a joyful light of recognition in his eyes. Then suddenly he stooped and picked up something from the floor. When he came upright his face was very red. He did not look at the tall, gray-haired man again as he advanced into the room.

Mellicent turned to him, eagerly. "Oh, Mr. Smith, it's the lawyer—he's home. And it's true. It is true!"

"This is Mr. Smith, Mr. Norton," murmured Mrs. Jane Blaisdell to the keen-eyed man, who also, for no apparent reason, had grown very red.

"Mr. Smith," a Blaisdell, too—distinct, you know. He's doing a Blaisdell book."

"Indeed! How interesting. How are you, Mr. Smith?" The lawyer smiled and held out his hand, but there was an odd contrast in his manner. "So you're a Blaisdell, too, are you?"

"Er—yes," said Mr. Smith, smiling straight into the lawyer's eyes. "But not near enough to come in on the money, of course" explained Mrs. Jane. "He isn't a Hillerton Blaisdell. He's just boarding here while he writes his book."

"Oh I see. So he isn't near enough to come in—on the money." This time it was the lawyer who was smiling straight into Mr. Smith's eyes.

But he did not smile for long. A sudden question from Mellicent seemed to freeze the smile on his lips.

"Mr. Norton, please, what was Mr. Stanley G. Fulton like?" she begged.

"Why—er—you must have seen his pictures in the papers," stammered the lawyer.

"Yes, what was he like? Do tell us," urged Mr. Smith, with a bland smile, as he seated himself.

"Why—er—" The lawyer came to a still more unhappy pause.

"Of course we've seen his pictures," broke in Mellicent, "but those don't tell us anything. And you know him. So won't you tell us what he was like, please, while we're waiting for father to come up? Was he nice and jolly, or was he stiff and haughty? What was he like?"

"Yes, what was he like?" coaxed Mr. Smith again. Mr. Smith, for some reason, seemed to be highly amused.

The lawyer lifted his head suddenly. An odd flash came into his eyes. "Like? Oh, just an ordinary man, you know—some what conceited, of course" (A queer little half-gasp came from Mr. Smith, but the lawyer was not looking at Mr. Smith.) "Eccentric—you've heard that, probably. And he has done crazy things, and no mistake. Of course, with his money and position we won't exactly say he had bits in his belly—isn't that what they call it?—but—"

Mr. Smith gave a real gasp this time, and Mrs. Jane Blaisdell ejaculated:

"There, I told you so! I knew something was wrong. And now he'll come back and claim the money. You see if he don't! And if we've gone and spent it all—"

A gesture of despair finished her sentence. "Give yourself no uneasiness on that score, madam," the lawyer assured her gravely. "I think I can self eager always to take their advice. But she wished they would not ask her opinion. She was almost afraid to give it, and she didn't have one, anyway; only she did worry, of course, and she had to ask them sometimes if they were real sure the places they had put her money were perfectly safe, and just couldn't blow up. It was so comforting always to see them smile, and hear them say: "Perfectly, my dear Miss Flora, perfectly." Give yourself no uneasiness." To be sure, one day the big fat man, not Mr. Chalmers, did snap out: "No, madam; only the Lord Almighty can guarantee a government bond—the whole country may be blown to atoms by a volcano tomorrow morning!" (Continued Tomorrow.)

Padua Bombed by Airmen. Rome, Aug. 2.—The war office statement tonight says: "Hostile aircraft dropped bombs on the city of Padua, slightly damaging some buildings. There were no casualties."

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Freezone is Magic! Corns Lift Right Off with Fingers Without Pain.

