

ARMY FLIERS TO PERFORM STUNTS HERE ON SUNDAY

Death of Major Reim Delays Visit to Omaha from Saturday to Sunday; Arrangements Are Completed.

Commissioner Manley of the Chamber of Commerce returned from Kansas City, where he consulted with members of the United States aviation mission...

The death of Major Reim during the flight of the airplanes overland to St. Louis, caused a delay of one day in the tour and, instead of arriving here Friday from Des Moines the aviators will arrive here Saturday and give their great exhibition in the air Sunday afternoon instead of Saturday.

There are 16 officers now in the party and they will fly here from Des Moines in 11 planes, or rather "ships" as they themselves call the machines. The 40 expert mechanics, who accompany the tour will come in a special car.

The flyers will alight on the Field club golf course. Mr. Manley and Major Van Nostrand of Fort Omaha went over the field Tuesday to make report on just what its condition is. Lieutenant Small will come here Wednesday to look over the landing place and make final arrangements.

Rhinhardt Promoted. Maj. C. K. Rhinhardt, in charge of the party, has just been promoted to be a lieutenant colonel.

Captain Hunter, the English flyer, who lost an arm in the service and who was here a few weeks ago, has married a Canadian girl and has gone to live in Canada, where he hopes to recruit his strength and gain back the nervous vigor which he lost in the stress of his work.

A public affairs luncheon for these distinguished men of the air will be given at the Chamber of Commerce Saturday noon.

It is estimated that 250,000 people of Omaha and the neighboring country will see the flights which will take place over the city and in which sham battles of the air will be fought and "stunts" will be done.

Son of Fred Harvey. Capt. F. H. Harvey, one of the flyers who will be here, is a son of Fred Harvey, the famous eating-house man of the Santa Fe railroad.

Captain Harvey graduated from Harvard last spring. He took his early training at Miami, Fla., and flew at various stations all over the country. He was officer in charge of flying at Benbrook field under Major Rhinhardt and occupies the same position now with the first provisional wing. He has instructed in all kinds of flying and has made long cross-country flights.

He was in charge of the battle formations that have been thrilling New York and Long Island lately.

She was startled terribly startled; but she saw at once, of course, that it must be just his way of joking, for, of course, there wasn't any volcano big enough to blow up the whole United States; and, anyway, she did not think it was nice of him and it was almost like swearing to say, "the Lord Almighty" in that tone of voice. She never liked that fat man again. After that she always talked to Mr. Chalmer, or to the other man with a wart on his nose.

Miss Flora had never had a check-book before, but she tried very hard to learn how to use it and to show herself not too stupid. She was glad there were such a lot of checks in the book, but she didn't believe she'd ever spend them all—such a lot of money! She had had a savings bank book, to be sure, but she had not been able to put anything in the bank for a long time, and she had been worrying a good deal lately for fear she would have to draw some out, business had been so dull. But she would not have to do that now, of course, with all this money that had come to her.

They told her that she could have all the money she wanted by just filling out one of the little slips in her check-book that way they had told her to do it, and taking it to Mr. Chalmer's bank—that there were a good many thousand dollars there waiting for her to spend just as she liked; and that, when they were gone, Mr. Chalmer would tell her how to sell some of her bonds and get more. It seemed very wonderful!

There were other things, too, that they had told her—too many for her to remember—something about interest, and things called coupons that must be cut off the bonds at certain times. She tried to remember it all; but Mr. Chalmer had been very kind and had told her not to fret. "He would help her when the time came. Meanwhile, he had rented her a nice tin box (that pulled out like a drawer) in the safety deposit vault under the bank, where she could keep her bonds and all the other papers—such a lot of them!—that Mr. Chalmer told her she must keep very carefully.

But it was all so new and complicated, and everybody was always talking at once, so!

No wonder, indeed, that Miss Flora was quite breathless with it all.

By the time the Blaisdells found themselves able to pay attention to Hillerton, or to anything outside their own astounding personal affairs, they became suddenly aware of the attention Hillerton was paying to them. The whole town was agog. The grocery store, the residence of Frank Blaisdell and Miss Flora's humble cottage might be found at nearly any hour with from one to a dozen curious-eyed gazers on the sidewalk before them. The town paper had contained an elaborate account of the bequest and the remarkable circumstances attending it; and Hillerton became the mecca of wandering automobiles for miles around. Big metropolitan dailies got wind of the affair, recognized the magic name of Stanley G. Fulton, and sent reporters post-haste to Hillerton.

Speculation as to whether the multimillionaire was really dead was prevalent everywhere, and a search for some clue to his reported South American exploring expedition was undertaken in several quarters. Various rumors concerning the expedition appeared immediately, but none of them seemed to have any really solid foundation. Interviews with the great law firm having the handling of Mr. Fulton's affairs were printed, but even here little could be learned save the mere fact of the letter of instructions, upon which they had acted according to directions, and the other fact that there still remained one more packet—understood to be the last will and testament—to be opened in two years' time if Mr. Fulton remained unheard from. The lawyers were bland and courteous, but they really had nothing to say, they declared, beyond the already published facts.

In Hillerton the Blaisdells accepted this notoriety with characteristic variation. Miss Flora, after cordially welcoming one "nice young man," and telling him all about how strange and wonderful it was, and how frightened she felt was so shocked and distressed to find all that she said (and a great deal that she did not say!) staring at her from the first page of a big newspaper, that she forthwith barred her doors and refused to open them till she satisfied herself by surreptitious peeps through the blinds, that it was only a neighbor who was knocking for admittance. An offer of marriage from a western ranchman and another from a Vermont farmer (both entire strangers) did not tend to lessen her perturbation of mind.

Frank, at the grocery store, rather welcomed questions—so long as there was a hope of turning them into customers; but his wife and Mellicent showed almost as much respect of them as did Miss Flora herself. Of James Blaisdell and Fred stoically endured such as refused to be silenced by their brusque noncommittalism. Benny, at first welcoming everything with the enthusiasm he would accord to a circus, soon sniffed his disdain as at a show that had gone stale.

Of them all, perhaps Mrs. Hattie was the only one that found in any real joy and comfort. Even Benny, excited and interested as she was, failed to respond with quite the en-

Rats Swipe Condensed Milk Right in Front of Deputy Sheriff

Where is the condensed milk going to is the question that is bothering Pat Welsh, deputy county sheriff, on guard at the store of the Douglas County Consumers' league at 4920 South Twenty-fourth street. That is, the question was troubling Pat until yesterday, when he saw two huge rats, each rolling away a can of condensed milk out the back door.

Pat rubbed his eyes, or so he says, and took after the rats, but they were too quick for even a deputy sheriff.

The rats are so numerous about the premises, Pat says, that every evening the neighbors gather round to watch them give free wrestling exhibitions on the sidewalk in front of the store.

Assignment has been made of the stock of the Douglas County Consumers' league and the store is closed temporarily until the creditors meet to appoint an assignee. Meanwhile the rodents reign supreme.

Harry Byrne Finds Omaha Folk in Every Town in East

He witnessed a performance of "Maytime," a musical hit in New York City. On the program he observed that Homer Conant designed all of the costumes. Mr. Conant formerly lived in Omaha, is a brother of Harley Conant and is now doing camouflage work for Uncle Sam in France.

Prison Camp of Old Now is Rest Station for Yankees

Soldiers of the American expeditionary forces in France have some queer rest camps, according to Fritz J. Poch, Omaha boy in the 341st aero squadron, who is now "over there."

Writing to his sister, Miss Frances Poch, cashier at the Paxton hotel, he says: "This camp and the city in which it is located is famous in history. The rest camp was once one of the prison camps of one of the most noted warriors of old."

"High stone walls surround it and underneath is a mysterious and gruesome labyrinth of tunnels and dungeons. The whipping posts where real criminals were whipped for disciplinary purposes and the old stocks where malefactors were pilloried in mediaeval days are still standing."

Women Capture Alley Cat to Apply Cootie Treatment

People in the county court house, in the American State Bank building and the Keen hotel enjoyed a free vaudeville entertainment Tuesday morning when they watched three women guests at the Keen hotel laboriously corral a cat in the alley, entice it within reach with a saucer of cream, and then subject it to an "anti-cootie" treatment.

One of the women saw the thin and bony creature wandering desolately about the alley. She left the scene for a moment and soon returned with two companions. The cat kept them all at bay for a half hour, but finally succumbed to the lure of the milk.

WHY RUN-DOWN PALE EXHAUSTED WOMEN SHOULD TAKE IRON. There can be no beautiful, healthy, rosy-cheeked, steady nerves without iron. When the iron goes from the blood of women, the roses go from their cheeks. (See chart and signed answer.) I always insist that my patients take organic iron—Nuxated Iron—because it is the only iron which often corrects the stomach and does more harm than good. Nuxated Iron is easily assimilated, does not blacken nor injure the teeth, nor upset the stomach. It will increase strength and endurance of weak, nervous, irritable, careworn, haggard women in two weeks' time in many cases. I have used it in my own practice with most surprising results. — Ferdinand Kingsley, M. D., New York Physician and medical author. LOOMIS UNABLE TO DO ANY WORK FOR TWO MONTHS

Was Helpless with Rheumatism and Lost Sixty Pounds —Tanlac Brings Relief.

"I was so awfully run-down that during my illness I lost sixty pounds in about eight months, but since starting on Tanlac I have regained fifty pounds and am still putting on weight," said Louis Loomis, who lives at 2510 Davenport street, the other day.

"My trouble was inflammatory rheumatism," he continued, "that started first in my right leg, and soon spread all over my body till my arms and legs ached so and were so swollen that I could hardly use them. In fact I was in such a terrible condition and suffered so much agony that I was all but helpless and for two months couldn't do a lick of work. I went to the hospital for a month, came back home some better but had a relapse and then went back to the hospital the second time in worse shape than at first. I stayed there for seven weeks, and when I came out again I could barely get around but was still too weak to do much of anything. I fell off till I was but a shadow of my former self and it looked like, do what I would, I just couldn't build myself up again.

"One of my friends who lives on South Twenty street told me how Tanlac had helped him, so I got me a bottle to try. Soon after I began taking it my appetite started off with a rush and in a little while I was eating all the meat and bread and vegetables I wanted and my food was doing me good. The swellings went down, the aches and pains in my body and limbs disappeared and I was able to get around better. As I continued to take Tanlac I grew stronger and took on weight till now I am almost up to my old standard. I sleep as sound as a log all night and get up in the mornings feeling as fresh and as lively as a fellow half my age. That awful rheumatism has about all been driven out of my system and I am in better shape today than I have been in a long time."

Tanlac is sold in Omaha by Sherman & McConnell Drug Co., corner 18th and Dodge streets; 16th and Harney streets; Owl Drug Co., 15th and Farnam streets; Harvard Pharmacy, 24th and Farnam streets; north-east corner 19th and Farnam streets; West End Pharmacy, 49th and Dodge streets, under the personal direction of a Special Tanlac Representative, and in South Omaha by Forrest & Meany Drug Co.—Advertisement.
