Nebraska farmers will come right back and seed the normal acreage of wheat again this fall. It takes more than two bad seasons to discourage the energetic men who have made this state so great.

Omaha has no need for a "jack rabbit" justice court. It was to do away with justice court abuses that the municipal court was erected, and somewhere authority should rest sufficient to see that the intent of the law is carried out in spirit as well as in letter.

Cardinal Farley's death removes an important figure from Catholic church circles in America. As a prince in the great world organization of the church of Rome he was influential in maintaining its dignity in the New World, and in so directing its destiny as to preserve its identity. He was pre-eminently a churchman, and as such is best known to the world. His demise leaves a vacancy in the College of Cardinals that may not soon be filled.

Omaha will say goodby to Colonel Hersey with regret. He has quietly attended to the exacting duties of his post as commander of the big balloon school of which he has been head, but has made lasting friendships outside the military post. If he is now to be permitted to realize the wish of every good soldier, and be assigned to active duty overseas, he will find that his Omaha friends will follow him with continuing interest, and wherever he goes he will take with him the good wishes of all.

A Clean Cut Job

Pershing's victory between the Meuse and the Moselle astounds one by what art criticism would call its classic purity. Clean-cut, simple, rapid, complete, the only parallel that occurs to our conquest of the St. Mihiel salient is Nivelle's stroke of two years ago at Douaumont, with its one-day harvest of 10,000 prisoners, and the problem at St. Mihiel was a much more oplicated one. The American assault from the south moved with uniform precision. There was nothing of the awkward delays at isolated points which have so often added to the costliness of an offensive. Along every road from the line of departure towards the heart of the erman positions the schedule held. One hundred and fifty square miles of enemy territory were snipped off at a clip. In other words, the leadership was perfect; the one factor upon which apprehension was legitimate has been eliminated. "You went to the battle as to a feast," said Mangin to his American "comrades," in thanking them for their services in the second battle of the Marne. That Americans would go into battle ardent, and smiling, we took for granted from the first. That this same ardent, intamed American spirit would lend itself to the preparations exacted by the technique of modern warfare, that American soldiers would as on study and measure and weigh as they rould fight or eat, was something which renained to be demonstrated. It has been fully, of only the "atrikingly restrained" tone of tershing's communique at which London wonders, but the character of the victroy which the communique chronicles, calls attention to a phase of the American spirit not at all apprehended in Europe's ordinary meaning of American,"-New York Post.

M'KELVIE AND THE BOSSES.

The fierce attacks being made on S. R. Mc-Kelvie, republican candidate for governor, are now explained by his own utterances. He has One Year Ago Today in the War. had the temerity to attack Bosses Mullen and Gooch, and to pledge himself that when elected he will reorganize the State Council of Defense so that it will not be dominated by the democratic high cockalorums.

For this he is daily subjected to a bombardment from the mud batteries of the Omaha Hyphenated, which must give all its efforts to support of Hitchcock, Mullen & Co. Mr. Mc-Kelvie has frankly stated his interest in the work of the State Council of Defense, his appreciation of its importance and his intention to do everything he can to assist in carrying out its legitimate and beneficial purposes.

But he has been equally frank in denouncing its political operation and criticizing its control by the democratic bosses, and for this he is subjected to scurrility and misrepresentation. The situation is going to be fully explained to the people, and they will be given an opportunity to determine whether the whole course of the State Council of Defense, as it has been directed by Gooch and Mullen, is to be approved at the polls.

McKelvie holds that the war is not a partisan affair; his assailants have persistently sought to obtain political advantage through the patriotism of the people. That is the issue, fairly and squarely stated.

The Fourth Liberty Loan.

The most imperative duty in connection with war, next to actual fighting, is to properly support the fighters. Unless we are behind our soldier boys with all our strength, their presence in Europe becomes futile. This thought must be uppermost in connection with the drive for the fourth big Liberty loan, soon to start. Americans over there are doing their share; their splendid victory at St. Mihiel and their part in the triumphs for the Allies' cause, were won through subscriptions to Liberty bonds and other means of raising money to pay expenses. Their task is to continue the fighting until autocratic despotism is put down; our task is to see that they never want for anything that is needed to make victory sure. Expansion of the war program has brought along with it in-. creased estimates of cost. Money is needed in sums hitherto undreamed of. Six billions of dollars is tentatively fixed as the amount to be floated for the fourth loan. That it will be a big job is acknowledged by all, but that it must be accomplished is equally admitted. We have pledged every man and every dollar. Every man from 18 to 45 is now under orders, either in the field, in training or awaiting the call. And every dollar must be as ready to respond. Heads up, eyes front, and no slacking!

One People, One Country, One Purpose. The world never saw a people more thoroughly unified than America is at present. This is shown by the unanimity with which approval is given to the president's answer to the Austrian peace feeler. Contrary to the expectation, In Metz we are to be afforded an answer to said to have existed in official quarters, that the he age-old problem as to whether a fortress proposal might receive such discussion by the really can be made impregnable. Up to now press as would dignify, if not really give it importance, the newspapers of the country anticipated any action of the government and with one voice denounced the request for conference worked such wonders with Lloyd George that as a sham. In congress leaders of both parties it may be adopted as a specie, if not a panacea, took similar views, and from every source come expressions that indicate how thoroughly Americans are welded together by the will to win. All other differences are sunk in the one great reservoir of patriotism. Whatever of activity is set on foot, it must be measured by its relation to the war, and stand or fall as it is helpful or a hindrance to victory. We are one people, with one country, and have one great purpose, to crush military autocracy and establish free-

One of the encouraging signs of the times is the lack of speculative concern in the stock market. Wall Street is far from dull or inactive, but it shows none of the "boom" tendencies noted a couple of years ago, when "war babies" engrossed so much of public attention. It also presents some really hopeful aspects. Trading is mostly for investment in dividendpayers, and these are being taken by buyers of small means, to whom the income tax is not so much of a bugbear. Certain lines, control of which was rounded up by small groups, have been so neglected by purchasers that a redistribution has been noted. In some instances this has brought about a lower range in prices, but the stable securities still are sought for at figures that make them attractive. Professional dealers are quite content with the business and the outlook, holding it to be the healthiest the 'street" has had since war came four years ago. Improved showing of earnings by the railroads and the steady inquiry for the dividend paying stocks are the features on which the brokers rest their comfortable feeling, and when Wall Street is peaceable, the rest of the country is doing fairly well.

Dimensions of the American Army.

Four million eight hundred thousand men under arms is the present scope of plans for the American army. This is to be accomplished by June of next year, according to announcement from the office of General March. Three million two hundred thousand of these already are in the service, and 1,700,000 are in France. Dispatch at the present rate of 300,000 a month is to be maintained indefinitely, to the end that spring will find not less than 3,000,000 effective American soldiers on European soil. Here is a military program of such dimensions as to astonish even the kaiser, who boasted so long and so loudly of his establishment. Germany was forty years in getting ready, but America will do this much in twenty-four months. These men are to be equipped and supplied with the latest and best of all things needed by an army, that they may speedily carry out the mission on which they were sent. The strength of the republic is marching to redeem its promise to

Germany's Frontier Forts

New York Times.

When the allies break through a formidable Argentine senate voted to break stretch of the Hindenburg line and the kaiser appeals to the German people to preserve the fatherland by "successful defense," it is time to give some attention to the fortifications of Germany on her western frontier and to those of the Rhine in the path of invading armies of damage will result unless people are the allies. Important Medical Discovery

Commonly new discoveries for the treatmen of surgical cases are accepted with caution and reservation by surgeons, though often hailed as panaceas by writers of sensational news. To what degree the world will later have to discount the personal enthusiasm of Surg. Maj. James T. Pilcher as to "quino-formal" for gas gangrene we cannot tell. But the announcement to the Red Cross Research society in Paris comes from a sincere man, a doctor, who by heredity as well as by training is predisposed to the avoiding of overconfidence.

It appears that the discovery was made in work, research work, at the American military hospital at Auteuil. The preparation is described as consisting of quinine, acetic and hydrochloric acids, formaline and thymol. It is stated that treatment of gas gangrene has been revolutionized; that the new wound dressing has failed in only one of a large number of cases in which it was tried, and that for six weeks there have been no amputations at all at

A son of Dr. Lewis S. Eight hundred telephone girls in London signed and sent to headquarters a protest against official insinuations that the service afforded better marriage prospects than any other line of work and ascribing to this the difficulty of retaining adequate help. An emphatic denial is entered by the signers. So far from being a matrimonial agency, the girls declare the telephone service is the reverse, since operators are severely punished for talking with subscribers.
