Slate and Sponge Will Replace Tablet Due to

Cheap Paper Shortage American school children will have to return to the slate of his or her daddy, because of an immense demand for sulphur, chlorine, caustic soda and pulp, the four ingredients that make up the cheap paper pad, which the modern school child uses instead of the old-fashioned slate of the mid-Victorian period.

The war will revive the use of the slate and its screeching slate pencil, together with the old-time unhygenic sponge and bottle of water. Some of the kids even dispensed with these and used their tongues as slate cleaners.

To help win the war the paper scribbling habit in the schools must go and it is even thought that "poets" will also have to comply with the same rule,
