

Women in War Time

Form Girls' Reserve. A new step in the war work of the Young Women's Christian association has been taken by the national girls' work department of the association. It is the formation of a "girls' reserve." The movement is promoted to bring about unity and standardization of the various kinds of war work done by the younger girls.

Preliminary work for its installation in local grade schools is now in progress. Miss Ethel Niermeyer, girls' work secretary for the Young Women's Christian association, is interviewing principals and enlisting their help. By October 8 Miss Niermeyer expects to have 12 of the schools lined up. A group of young club leaders are helping Miss Niermeyer in the work. They are Marion Travis, Mildred White, Helen Gwym, Dorothy Grey and Carolyn Miller. Five others will be named shortly to act as advisors for the school group.

The unit of the organization is the corps, made up of 10 to 20 girls. Two or more corps will form a company, and all the companies in Omaha will be known as a division. The insignia is attractive carrying on an arm band the blue triangle. The girls will work for the honors which will provide decorations for the arm band.

Good things to eat and directions for making them will be displayed at the booth the Central Conservation council will maintain next week in connection with the Douglas county fair on the carnival grounds. Women are requested to have all their displays on hand by 6 o'clock Saturday evening.

The national gardening and canning commission is offering a special prize to women for canned vegetables grown in their own gardens. A certificate and a book partly filled with thrift stamps are the rewards of the winners. Other prizes will be offered for home canned fruit and vegetables. Each woman is asked to bring an assortment of one of each kind of canned goods.

Miss Nellie Farnsworth, federal food agent, has arranged for a "Food Facts Bureau," where recipes, information and cooking and canning hints may be obtained. Clothing hints will be included. "Max's Mix," a combination of sorghum syrup and peanut butter, invented by County Agent Maxwell is a spread for sandwiches, will be one of the sugar conservation items demonstrated.

The Conservation council has a committee of women in charge of the booth, two each half-day having been appointed to serve. Margaret Slattery, who gave the talk to girls at the Auditorium Tuesday evening, before a large audience, is the best possible exponent of her own theories, as set forth in a number of delightful books that every girl and instructor of girls should read.

Miss Slattery, who comes from Boston, has been a model teacher, a supervising principal in state normal schools, and an author on educational topics, and other subjects, many of her works having been translated into Chinese, Japanese and Spanish.

Mrs. Jacob W. S. Wuest, charming wife of the new commander at Fort Omaha, Colonel Wuest, is "first lady" at the post, not only in respect to her husband's rank, but because she is the first woman to preside over the colonel's quarters. Colonel Wuest is not a newcomer to Omaha. Upon finishing at West Point he was for a time stationed in the Philippines, whence he was ordered to Fort Crook in 1903, remaining here until 1907.
