STRYKER AIDING
MARKET BUREAU
AT WASHINGTON

Stock Exchange Secretary
Summoned to Assist in Formulating Plans for Yards Regulation.

W. B. Tagg, president of the National and the Omaha Live Stock exchange, received the following telegram from Washington, D. C., which was released for publication today.

"A. F. Stryker, secretary-traffic manager of the Omaha Live Stock exchange, is coming to Washington at the invitation of the bureau of markets, United States Department of Agriculture, to assist officials of the bureau in formulating plans for the supervision and regulation of stock yards, which have been licensed under a recent proclamation by the president."

Mr. Stryker is at present and has been for 11 years secretary and traffic manager of the Omaha Live Stock exchange, and has served three terms as secretary of the National Live Stock exchange.

His long experience in live stock marketing affairs makes him familiar with the many problems of the traffic and renders him an efficient aid to the bureau of markets in handling the questions that will come up in connection with the federal supervision of the live stock markets.

He probably will remain in Washington some time. Mrs. Stryker is there with him.

Omaha Exchange Loses

One of Its Oldest Members

Marsh Parker, one of the earliest live stock shippers from the Omaha market, died Tuesday night at his home, 3505 South Twentieth street, after an illness of several weeks.

In the early days Mr. Parker was a member of the commission firm of Parkhurst, Hooper and Parker, one of the oldest firms in the Omaha exchange. At the time of his death and for some years past he was a member of the firm of Haley, Harris & Parker of Sterling, Colo.

He is survived by his widow and three children, George E., and Dr. H. C. of Omaha, and Lenwood of Sterling, Colo.

New Feeder Steer Price

Record Made at $16.50

Records are being made rapidly in the Omaha live stock market. The highest price of the year up to date for feeder steers was paid Q. J. Brownfield of Belle Fourche, S. D. Mr. Brownfield had two lots of his high grade, white-faced Herefords, which averaged 1,170 pounds and sold to a feeder buyer for $16.50.

Dugal R. Whitaker topped the Omaha market Tuesday with his famous Hereford cows raised on his ranges near Cheyenne, receiving $12.00. There were 26 prime heavy weight cows at the price that averaged 1,024 pounds.

R. C. Howe, manager of the Armour packing house in Omaha has received word from the Chicago office that the company will buy a portion of their bonds in Omaha. The Omaha share of their quota will be $100,000.

South Side Brevities

Charles Kauffold, junior captain at fire hall No. 2, located at South Twenty-sixth and J streets, has been appointed senior captain of fire hall No. 2, South Twentieth and Spring streets. He has been in the fire department for 11 years.

Five colored men left the South Side city hall Wednesday for Camp Lewis, American Lake, Wash., for regular service. They were Lester McGilroy, Odie Alexander Brown, Leonard Lipscomb, Edwin Frasier, and Louis Mitchell. James Thompson on the same call went from the Municipal farm at Kansas City.

Nephew of Sheriff Clark

Gains Fame by Leter

A letter, reproduced in the August 22 issue of "Life," a national publication, by Corp. Ned Maher, with the 59th regiment in France, is attracting widespread attention. The letter is given as a sample of what a real, red-blooded American should write to his folks back home, and preceding it is a letter, headed: "What a Soldier Should Not Write." Corp. Maher is a former Brooklyn boy and is a nephew of Sheriff Mike Clark of Omaha.

Asks Damages for Fall.

The Pacific Storage and Warehouse company is made defendant in a $25,000 damage suit filed in district court Wednesday by Charles Rosenau, who alleges that on August 14 he fell in an unguarded elevator shaft in the company's store room.

"Dreamland Adventures"

By DADDY—THE BIRD SOLDIERS

A Complete, New Adventure Each Week, Beginning Monday and Ending Sunday

CHAPTER IV.

The Attack in the Steeple.

(Billy Belgium is recruiting pigeons to act as messengers to the American army. With Peggy and Carrie and Homer Pigeon he visits the haughty Steeple Pigeons, who are pacifists. A Belgian Pigeon tells why the Birds of Europe go to war. Rats invade the steeple and put all in danger.)

"THE Rats! The destroying Rats!" cried the Steeple Pigeons, fluttering madly around the room.

Peggy stood, horror-stricken. She always had a creepy feeling when she saw a Mouse or a Rat, and these Rats were worse than anything she had ever imagined. She didn't know what to do. There was no place to run to, and she couldn't fly like the Pigeons.

The Rats looked around the room curiously licking their chops as they gazed greedily at the Pigeons. Then their eyes traveled downward and rested upon Peggy. They opened their mouths in a snarling grin.

"Here's a new kind of a Bird!" remarked the foremost Rat.

"Looks as though it would be mighty good to eat," squealed the second Rat.

"It's mine! I saw it first!" claimed the first Rat.

"We'll divide it up," decided the third Rat.

With that the three Rats darted forward in their sneaky, crawly way. Peggy jumped back and as she did so Billy Belgium leaped in front of her. He brandished a long, thin file which some workmen had left on the floor of the steeple room.

"Come on, you Rats, if you want to get a thump on the nose," he shouted.

The Rats halted. They looked at Billy Belgium in surprise. Then they opened their mouths in the same kind of a snarling grin with which they had greeted Peggy.

"Here's another one," said the first Rat.

"We'll have nearly enough to go around," squeaked the second.

"My, isn't he fierce looking. Maybe he'll eat us up!" sneered the third, showing all his sharp teeth.

Peggy could see that Billy, brave as he showed himself, was no match for these monster beasts. One rush and they'd snap off his head. But Billy had a surprise in his sleeve.

Giving a startling shout, he leaped forward, right into the faces of the grinning Rats. The first he slashed across the nose with the sharp end of the file. The second he caught on the ear. The third he prodded in the ribs, shoving the file in with all his strength.

The Rats, cowardly at heart, were upset by the unexpected attack. They fell back. Billy shouted again and rushed forward a second time, brandishing the file. At the same moment Carrie and Homer Pigeon swooped down threateningly from above. Turning in a panic, the Rats fled into the hole from which they had appeared.

Instantly Billy Belgium swung around to Peggy.

"Get on Carrie Pigeon's back," he whispered. "I've bluffed them for a minute, but when they recover their wits they'll attack again."

Peggy knew what he said was true, and quickly accepted the aid which Carrie Pigeon offered. She soon found herself on a large beam that ran across the room just below the dome. Here were clustered the frightened Pigeons, and here, too, were many of their nests. In the nests were baby Pigeons and eggs.

Tucked around the edges of the room on shelves and ledges were other nests. To these the frightened Pigeon fathers and mothers flew as soon as they got over their first wild fluttering fright.

Billy Belgium mounted Homer Pigeon's back and joined Peggy on the beam. He was right about the Rats attacking again. They came from the hole with a rush, and behind them were five more Rats, making eight in all.

The Rats looked around eagerly for the children. Peggy was in hopes they would think every one had fled. But the coo of a baby Pigeon drew their attention to the beam.

"They are hiding up there," squealed the first Rat. "Hence where we get good eats and capture a fine new home, much better than our holes in the basement."

"Come, let's escape," cooed Airy Penter. "We can get through the lattice before they climb up here."

"And abandon these baby Pigeons, your eggs, and your nests! Never!" cried Peggy indignantly, looking pityingly at the young Pigeons who were still too tiny to fly.

"We'll stay and fight!" declared Billy Belgium.

"Of course," answered Blue Peter. "Of course," echoed Bronze Beauty and Carrie and Homer Pigeon.

The Rats had massed below, receiving orders from their leader.

"Here they come!" cried Peggy, who was on watch. Up the lattice work and up the post supporting the beam swarmed the attacking Rats.

(Tomorrow the fight in the steeple will be described.)
