Women Boost Liberty Loan Sales in Bank and Outposts

Ralph S. Highes waited from 7 o'clock this morning to purchase the first bond sold in the Liberty bank on the court house lawn, when the doors were opened at 9 o'clock by the National League for Women's Service. E. P. Peck subscribed $50,000 for the Omaha Elevator company.

Miss Helen Winkelman, 15, High school girl, bought the first $1,000 Mrs. Harry Cummings followed suit and Mrs. William Archibald Smith, chairman of the league, also subscribed for a $1,000 bond.

W. Bauermeister bought a $500 one and E. F. Folda four $100 bonds for each member of his family. Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Travis, Niels Severinsen, Mrs. E. P. Peck, Miss M. M. Anderson, Carl A. Gerlitz and Mrs. Joseph Warner purchased bonds within a half hour after the bank opened.

Camouflaged outposts established in local department stores by the women's Liberty loan committee also reported a rushing business the first day. Orchard-Wilhelm has an attractive latticed garden effect, with just an opening for the bond seller's head to peep through. Burgess-Nash set up a patriotic outpost and Gus Renze's outpost in No. Man's land, Fifteenth and Farnam, where women under Mrs. E. S. Rood served refreshments all day to bond purchasers, was voted quite the most unique one of them all.

Women's Club Committees.

Standing committees of the Omaha Woman's club which were to be announced by Mrs. A. L. Fernald, president, at the opening meeting scheduled for today, but which was postponed, are as follows:

Training School for War Work.

A special woman's war work training school has been opened in Chicago at 50th and Indiana avenue, with Lucy Ruler Meyer as dean. This school gives intensive drill in the things most essential—simple French, short-cut business courses, hygiene, first-aid, foods, recreation, management, etc. The school has among its references such men as Mr. H. A. Wheeler, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Frederick Fice, supervisor, department of instruction, American Red Cross, and Miss Anna Gordon, president of the National W. C. T. U.

Thousands of women are in direct war work but thousands more are needed at once. Tuition is $30 per term.

Y. W. H. A. War Work.

Meetings of the Young Women's Hebrew association planned for this week are of course abandoned on account of the Spanish influenza, but the Patriotic league unit of the organization is planning a dancing party for Saturday, October 26, for soldiers stationed at Fort Omaha, by which time the quarantine will be lifted, it is hoped.

The Y. W. H. A. is assisting Jewish women of the city in sending a cauteen worker to France, a movement sponsored by the B'nai B'rith woman's auxiliary. A dance at the Auditorium October 29 is planned to raise funds for this benefit.

Thursday evenings the Y. W. H. A. Red Cross auxiliary meets in the public workshop at 7 o'clock to make surgical dressings.

Urges Women to Knit.

Women of Omaha are falling behind in their knitting. Now the influenza scare is on and so many of the meeting and working places are closed, there is a splendid opportunity to catch up on this very necessary branch of the work. Of the quota of 21,600 pairs of socks that must be completed November 1, only 12,279 pairs have been turned in. This means that some soldier boys will have to wear worn, ragged socks during the first spell of cold weather, and they may suffer frost-bitten toes and heels.

Spanish "flu" masks may be had by those who need them in Omaha chapters in the court house. The masks were made Saturday by the surgical dressings department.

The motor corps today collected one ton of fruit stones and nut shells from each of the following stations: Hayden Bros, Brandeis and Burgess-Nash and delivered to the Auditorium basement.

Mrs. W. E. Martin, chairman, announces the age requirement for overseas services to be 25 to 40. Applicants for the third motor mechanics class may see Mrs. Martin mornings between 10 and 12 o'clock in the court house.

A meeting of the board of directors of Omaha chapter called for Tuesday at 4 o'clock in the south dining room, Chamber of Commerce.

Since the salvage department is temporarily closed, Mrs. Frank Adams, chairman, requests that donations be held until further notice.

The machine knitting department has been closed down on account of the "flu" and there is more need for the hand work than ever. A few women are keeping loyally on with their work, in spite of the fact that knitting socks has lost the interest of novelty, but many have fallen by the wayside. Now is the time to show what the Omaha woman is really made of. Is she a real worker for the cause, or does she merely work when interested?

Socks may be delivered and wool taken out as usual at the knitting department in the Keelie building.

Postponements

Special postponement announcements on account of the Spanish influenza are made by the following organizations: Frances Willard Women's Christian Temperance union, district convention of George A. Custer Women's Relief corps, instruction classes and meeting of the central conservation council.

Fidelis club announces that the card party planned for Tuesday afternoon at the school auditorium at St. Cecilia's cathedral will be postponed.

The North Side Mothers' club has also called off its meeting.

Kountze Memorial Church Red Cross auxiliary will not meet Thursday.

LIBERTY LOAN PARAGRAPHS

Paragraphs by the school children are coming in fast. The prize for the best one is $15, for the two next best $10 each, and for the fourth, fifth and sixth, $5 each. Here are a few more:

That liberty shall not perish buy bonds. Our soldiers and allies need ammunition, guns, ships and airplanes. The government must have money. Buy bonds and buy bonds till your heart says "stop."—Larry Dolan, aged 11, Train school; Miss Kent, teacher.

Uncle Sam wants us to buy bonds. Lend your money to him so he can buy clothing, ammunition and other needed things for our soldiers and sailors. Lend your money to Uncle Sam so he can beat back the Hun.—Thomas Purschouse, aged 12, Lake school; Miss Dunnigan, teacher.

Buy your bond. Back up the men over there. They are giving their all. What are you giving? Your Liberty bond. This will help win the war for democracy. Help our allies. Help your country.—Bernice Henry, aged 14, Howard Kennedy school; Miss Foley, teacher.

If you want the red, white and blue to float o'er us, if you want the Yankees to conquer the Huns, get busy, fellows; buy a bond. Dig deep down in your pocket. There will be some more. Buy at least one—that will help us some. It costs about $10,000 a minute. We have to furnish our soldiers and allies clothing because they are fighting for Liberty is our motto.—Rosie Stejskal, aged 11, Train school; Miss Kent, teacher.

We should buy bonds to keep the kaiser from our lands and from ruling us, so our ships can sail the seas in safety to supply our men and allies with guns, clothing and food. Our soldiers are going to fight Germany until it is crushed. Buy bonds and Liberty shall not perish from the earth.—Walter Wiegkenberg, aged 12, Train school; Miss Kent, teacher.

We should buy bonds to supply our soldiers, sailors and allies with food, clothing and ammunition to rid the world of the Beast of Berlin, to down autocracy and hold up democracy. We want dear Glory to wave high forever and we want to stand by our government.—Irene Wolf, aged 12, Train school; Miss Kent, teacher.

CHAPTER II.

The Bag of Gold.

(Peggy is urged by Blue Jay to visit Bandit's Roost to see proof that the Jays have earned the right to return to Birdland. She learns that a bank has been robbed of Liberty Loan money, and Blue Jay thinks he knows where the robber is.)

FLOATING along in a thistle-down balloon, so Peggy found, produced a different sensation from flying in an airplane or being carried by a bird. There was no breeze, for she was borne by the wind itself. This created the feeling that she was standing still. Only when she looked down at the trees and fences racing by far below did she realize that she was really moving at train speed.

The balloon jumped about a lot, just like a bit of fluff from a milliner's hat. At one moment it would be just above the tree-tops, and the next instant a current of air would shoot it up towards the sky. Once she drifted over a country church steeple which threatened to catch and hold her, but a vigorous shove of her toe on the very tip of the spire sent her bounding upward. Altogether, Peggy found this a very delightful way to travel.

Soon they sailed over Birdland, but it was so very early in the morning that the Jays were not yet stirring. Peggy thought what fun it would be to wake 'em all up by dropping a fire-cracker among them, like an aviator drops a bomb. But then she reflected that the fire-cracker might land right in a nest and blow baby birds all to pieces. So, after all, she was glad she didn't have one.

Far up the river was the lonesome hill which the Birds called Bandit's Roost. Here stood the hollow tree in which Blue Jay and his gang hid their refuge when danger threatened.

The balloon skimmed along high above the hill and Peggy wondered how she was going to get down. She didn't have a parachute and there seemed no way to stop her queer airship.

But the Jays knew how to manage it. They caught hold of the thistle-down in their claws and pulled with all their might. Slowly they dragged the balloon to earth; anchoring beneath a spreading tree. Peggy swung her trapeze until she could reach a wild grapevine and down she slid in safety.

"Come, see our orchards," screamed Blue Jay, leading the way to a burned over slope. Peggy wondered what he could mean, but followed eagerly among the blackened stumps. "There, isn't that a fine job," he cried, pointing to rows of small green sprouts arranged in an orderly way amid the ruins of the fire-wrecked forest.

"What are they?" asked Peggy. "Cherry trees," declared Blue Jay proudly, while the other Jays giggled at Peggy's look of surprise. "See how vigorous they are. In a couple of summers they'll be husky

WARTIME RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR

Actress Gives Simple Inexpensive Recipe for Streaked or Faded Gray Hair.

Mrs. Mackie, the well known New York actress, now a grandmother, and whose hair is still dark, recently made the following statement: "Gray streaked or faded hair can be immediately turned black, brown or light brown, whichever shade you desire, by the use of the following simple remedy that you can make at home:

"Merely get a small box or Orlex powder at any drug store. It costs very little and no extras to buy. Dissolve it in water and comb it through the hair. Full directions for mixing and use come in each box.

"You need not hesitate to use Orlex, as a $100.00 gold bond comes in each box guaranteeing the user that Orlex powder does not contain silver, lead, zinc, sulphur, mercury, aniline, coal-tar products or their derivatives.

"It does not rub off, is not sticky or greasy, and leaves the hair fluffy. It will make a gray haired person look many years younger."—Adv.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a Glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you—Drink lots of water.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful delirious lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.—Adv.

"It surely is," agreed Peggy. "I'll see them away for you!" She went vigorously at the rocks, and soon opened a hole through them. Reaching in to get a grip on a particularly large stone, her fingers touched a piece of cloth. Inside the cloth was something hard. Wondering what it could be she drew it out. It was a small bag, heavily loaded. As she lifted it from the hole, several gold pieces fell from a hole in the side.

"There's the bandit's money," cried Blue Jay. "I'd forgotten all about it!"

(In the next chapter Peggy plans to recover the stolen money.)
