

SEVEN FARMERS BUY BONDS AS COUNCIL URGES

Defense Body Calls Douglas County Men to Account for Protecting Their Assessments.

The Douglas County Council of Defense held a meeting Thursday, the first one it has been necessary to call in connection with the Fourth Liberty Loan campaign.

Seven farmers from Douglas county had been cited and all appeared. They protested against the assessments against them. Before leaving the meeting each farmer signed for the amount the committee had indicated as his fair share.

Shown How to Get Money. One man owned a $50,000 farm which had been willed to him with the understanding it could never be mortgaged. He wanted to know how he could borrow $2,000 to pay for the bonds the committee wanted him to purchase. He was instructed in the method of obtaining the money. It was explained to him that he might have to pay 7 per cent for his money and only get 4 1/4 per cent from Uncle Sam, but the difference would be only $55 a year. He was made to see that $55 a year was mighty cheap insurance against keeping the Huns' hands off his farm.

Another man bewailed the fact that he had arranged to borrow $17,000 to buy a farm and could not borrow any more money to buy Liberty bonds. He was shown that the financial needs of the United States came ahead of his personal needs, and that his first duty was to help his government buy shells before he bought any more farms.

Returns with Apology. Another thought his quota was too high. It was shown to him that the people of the United States as a whole have invested 7 per cent of their net wealth in Liberty bonds and he was being asked to invest only 4 per cent.

One farmer of German name said he would hang first before he would borrow money to buy bonds, and he left the building in high dudgeon. The committee was preparing a statement of his case for the State Council of Defense when he returned and apologized for his remarks and made the desired subscription.

Result Satisfactory. "I am very much pleased with results in the country districts," announced J. H. Mithen, chairman for Douglas county outside of Omaha. "I believe our farmers are going to be the ones that help put Douglas county across. I look for them to furnish the last million which will be necessary to put us over the $11,000,000 mark."

A Department of Labor sleuth who is rounding up labor slackers in Omaha appeared at the Federal Reserve bank yesterday with a suspect and made him buy a bond. The man had enough cash to make the purchase but refused to go to work.

"Walking Bar" Title Bestowed by Police on Bootleg Suspect

Evidently the prohibition laws failed to put George Conrad, 708 South Sixteenth street, out of business as he did the saloons. Conrad is the original walking bar of South Omaha, police allege, even down to the corkscrew. According to George he is a watchman in the Swift plant, but circumstances fail to bear this out in every particular.

Officer Francil picked Conrad up yesterday when he saw him with a grip that looked suspicious. Upon examination, the grip was found to contain four quart bottles, three of which were full of whiskey and the fourth was not empty. A corkscrew was found already in the cork of the fourth bottle, proving that Conrad was ready for business at all times and without unnecessary delay.

He is alleged to have been peddling liquor by the drink on the Q street viaduct, where he was at the time of his arrest. He was locked up on the charge of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor.

Nebraska is Visited By Heaviest Rainfall Of the Entire Season

About the heaviest rain of the year was general over practically all central and southern Nebraska Thursday and Thursday night, according to the reports to the railroads. At most stations rain was still falling when the reports were sent to local headquarters.

Along the Union Pacific the rain was continuous all Thursday night all the way from North Platte east. The precipitation ranged from three-fourths to two inches.

Heavy rain was general along the Burlington, all through the South Platte country and far down into Kansas. Measurements indicated one to two inches of precipitation.

North of the Platte, along the Burlington's northern lines and over Northwestern territory there was a steady downpour most of Thursday night, with one-half to three-fourths inch of rainfall.

Bookkeeper in the Federal Reserve Bank Dies of Flu

Hugh T. Johnson, 20 years of age, a bookkeeper at the Federal Reserve bank, died of influenza Wednesday at his home, 4531 South Twenty-second street. Mr. Johnson came here from a bank in the state on June 1, and is a brother to Alvin Johnson, cashier of the Live Stock National bank. He was ill about a week before death.

Employees of Railroads Subscribe Heavily to Loan

YOUTH IS HELD ON NO CHARGE, SAYS ATTORNEY

Threatens Proceeding Against Police Chief and County Attorney to Learn Where Client Is.

Not until he had threatened to bring criminal proceedings against Chief of Police Eberstein and County Attorney Magney, on the charge of kidnaping, could he find where Carl Schrader, his client, was concealed, is the allegation of Julius S. Cooley.

Schrader, who is 16 years old, and lives in Council Bluffs, is a brakeman on the Union Pacific.

Recently a freight car of a train on which Schrader was working was entered between Schuyler and Fremont and a quantity of canned goods thrown out on the right-of-way.

It is alleged that secret agents of the road went to Council Bluffs and without warrant or any other process of law seized the boy and held him prisoner while they tried to extort a confession from him.

His parents became alarmed and tried to find the lad and the secret service men are alleged to have spirited him to Omaha and incarcerated him without warrant in the city jail.

While Cooley was trying to secure Schrader's release on a writ of habeas corpus the boy was again spirited away and locked up in the county jail at Fremont, it is said.

In order to learn where his client was Cooley had to threaten action on a charge of kidnaping and was told the boy was at Fremont. He served a writ of habeas corpus on the sheriff of Dodge county.
