

G. O. P. CONGRESS WOULD WARN FOE SAYS CUMMINS

Iowa Senator Says Election of Republicans Demand for an Unconditional Surrender.

Senator A. B. Cummins of Iowa spent Saturday in Omaha, visiting friends. He had expected to make a few speeches in this state for the republican ticket, but the dates were all canceled because of the quarantine against meetings on account of the influenza. While here the senator made this statement:

"The entry of the president into the congressional campaign would be of doubtful propriety under any circumstances. So far as I can recall, no other president in all our history has ventured upon a course so partisan.

"I do not, however, so much object to the fact of interference as I do to the basis of interference. Huns Fear Republicans. It is an insult to every loyal republican to even suggest that a republican congress would not prosecute the war earnestly and efficiently, or that such an event would be better regarded as indicating a desire in the United States to go easy in the fight against Germany.

"On the contrary, the president knows, and everybody else knows, that the election of a republican congress would be construed at home and abroad as an imperative demand for unconditional surrender.

"The people will deal with this extraordinary appeal just as they did in Wisconsin when it was made for the defeat of Senator Lenroot.

"Republicans or democrats agree upon one thing at least—our chief concern is the war and the manner in which it shall be brought to an end.

People Behind President.

"As commander-in-chief and for the purpose of making this country strong in war and for the complete overthrow of Germany and her co-conspirators, republicans and democrats alike will stand by the president and give him every man who can fight and every dollar in the land, and if there be degrees in the earnestness and enthusiasm with which they do it, the comparison will not be to the discredit of the republicans.

"It may be that when it comes to the general reorganization of the world and the agreements which it is proposed the United States shall undertake, there will arise differences of opinion, but these differences have nothing to do with winning Germany, and that is our business just now.

Republicans Needed.

Assuming that the war will be prosecuted quite as vigorously with a republican senate and house of representatives as under democratic control, it seems to me that there never was a time at which it was so important to restore and maintain republican supremacy in congress, as it is now. The war can continue more than a year and then will come for this country the work of legislative reconstruction, not only of our foreign affairs, but of our domestic affairs. The problems which will confront congress will be of supreme importance and of unparalleled difficulty.

"Every phase of social, industrial, commercial and economic life during the war must be abnormal. When peace comes our way forward or back to normal conditions will be the most perilous path ever pursued by mankind. We must prepare for the transition. Without unduly disparaging my democratic friends, it can be said that this vital and gigantic work will be safer in republican than in democratic hands. The history of the country proves very clearly that the republican party has a capacity for constructing legislation which the democratic party has never been able to acquire. The unscrubbling of the eggs which, on account of the war, have been thrown into the platter is beyond the ability of a party which is controlled by one section of the country, and that the least important part.

Power Needs Limiting.

"The immense powers with which we have invested the president, most of which were necessary for the successful prosecution of the war, must in large measure be withdrawn or readjusted, and it is manifestly unwise to commit this task to a democratic administration that, in the very nature of things, will be exceedingly reluctant to surrender the vast authority which has been granted to it.

"Everybody knows that a great deal of our money has been squandered and possibly wrongfully expended in a perfect saturnalia of extravagance. We cannot stop now while the war is in progress to look critically into these things; but the people who have so lightly borne these burdens have a right to an accounting and to know who has squandered their money. It would be a farce to put this accounting in the hands of the men who are responsible for the misuse of the appropriations which congress has made under the requirements of the departments.

Praise for Norris.

"I could continue indefinitely to point out the overwhelming importance of securing a republican majority in the senate and house at the coming election, but it is not necessary. The suggestions I have made will furnish the outline and the intelligent, thoughtful citizen will supply the details from his own experience and observation.

"If a majority of the voters in Nebraska believe in republican principles and republican competency, they will see to it that Senator Norris is re-elected and that the state is represented in the house by a solid republican delegation.

"This leads me to say a word about Senator Norris, whom I have known intimately for many years. In all the country, there is no truer, stronger friend of humanity and good government than George Norris. In all the wide range of public questions there, is, of course, divergence of opinion among repub-

OMAHA BOY THRILLED BY CHASING SUBS.

V. L. MORTON.

V. L. Morton, 21-year-old brother of Mrs. Zella Andrews, 2017 Leavenworth street, is head gunner on a submarine chaser and has made 12 trips across the Atlantic, passing through the danger zone 24 times.

Morton writes thrilling letters of fights with submarines and of exciting chases and hair-breath escapes. He says he has watched submarines sink "like snowflakes in the sun," and is mighty proud of the United States navy and the way in which the little "rattlesnake chasers" have guarded big transports crossing the ocean.

Young Morton is a graduate from the Omaha High school and was formerly in the live stock business in South Omaha. He enlisted in the war and trained at Great Lakes naval station and on the battleship Montana. Later he was assigned to duty on a submarine chaser.

Republicans as naturally there would be in a body of free men; but in the fundamental policies of the republican party we stand together, and he as firmly and steadily as any of his associates. No purer hearted patriot breathes than he.

"It is a pleasure to say for him that for influence in the senate, for hard continuous work, for comprehension of the intricate problems of legislation, for devotion to his sense of right and justice, he occupies a high place in the senate and it would be a grievous misfortune should he fail of re-election.

"If the republican party is to take its proper place in the leadership of the nation, it must organize the senate; it must have a majority upon each of the committees of the senate; it must have the chairmanship of each of these committees. In all probability these things cannot be accomplished unless Senator Norris is re-elected. The republicans of Nebraska are not acting for themselves alone, for it is quite likely that what they do at the coming election will decide whether republicans or democrats shall determine the legislation of the next few years. It is not strange, therefore, that we of the outside are deeply interested in the results of the campaign in Nebraska."

Negro Fined $75 on Charge of Running a Gambling Joint

Raley Jackson, a negro, was fined $75 and costs in police court Saturday for operating a gambling "joint" at Twenty-fourth and Burdette streets.

This was the third case against Jackson, but the first time he has been fined. In the other cases, police were unable to present incriminating evidence.

An electric bell, batteries, a push button, dice and whisky were offered as evidence by Chief of Detectives Briggs Saturday.

Jackson also was charged with violating the city ordinance regarding the "flu" epidemic. Twenty inmates were arrested in the raid, but were not held.

Alex. G. Buchanan, Pioneer Live Stock Commission Man, Dies

After an illness of about a year, Alex. G. Buchanan, well known live stock commission man, died at his home, 1330 South Thirty-fourth street, Friday night. Mr. Buchanan came to Omaha 35 years ago. He was a pioneer in the pork packing industry and his first plant was located at Sixth and Hickory streets. Later his son, Wilson Buchanan, became associated in business with him and the firm became A. G. Buchanan & Son. Mr. Buchanan is survived by his widow, his son, Wilson Buchanan, his daughter, Alice Buchanan, and a brother, Rixon Buchanan, who lives in Jansville, O. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

SLOGANS COME AS BEE CONTEST PROVES POPULAR

Many Enter Competition for Prizes by Writing Lines to Be Used to Boost Omaha.

The "Slogan Contest," in which The Bee is offering a prize for the best slogan directing attention of out-of-town readers to Omaha's superior attractions as a city, is bringing great response. While many of the slogans so far submitted are from Omaha readers, each mail is bringing suggestions from all parts of Nebraska and even from other states.

Some of the contestants seem to have found it difficult to keep within the required number of letters. As the slogan is to be used as a "banner line" over the heading on the first page, a line containing 54 to 60 letters, is acceptable, and must conform strictly to the rule governing length.

Many contestants are sending in several slogans, thus enhancing their chance to win either the cash award or one of the books that will go to the 10 next best slogans.

Among the best slogans already in which may give a good idea to other contestants are these: "Omaha, distinctively most progressive and initiative city in the world." "Come to Omaha to trade, the most stupendous trade center—in the west." "Have faith in growing Omaha, where nothing knocks but opportunity."

"Omaha—city of renown, where health, wealth and happiness abound." It is the hope of The Bee in this contest to create a slogan that will be valuable to the city of Omaha, to be impressed upon the mind of every out-of-town reader.

Remember your answer must be in by October 30, as the winners will be announced November 3.

Curfew to Blow for Kids at 9 P. M. Instead of at 8

Arrangements have been made to have the curfew whistle blown for the kiddies at 9 p. m., which is the legal hour for them to go home. The hour was changed some time ago to 8 o'clock as an experiment.
