NIGHT WORKERS LOSE HOUR BY CLOCK CHANGE

Daylight Saving Plan Ends at 2 a. m. Sunday; Trains Held at Terminals for One Hour.

Omaha people, or many of them at least, were puzzled to decide when to go home Saturday night; some got there an hour ahead of time and some an hour late.

The test of the daylight saving plan came to an end officially at 2 a. m. Sunday. This was the official time for turning clocks back, or, in some cases, turning them ahead 11 hours.

Railroad men predicted last night that the turning back of the clock would cause little or no confusion in schedules.

The average citizen who set his clock back last night got up this morning at the usual time, and went about his duties with hardly a thought of the change.

Mrs. T. L. Kimball, president of the Omaha Charity association, has issued a statement calling attention to the fact that annual subscriptions to the Creche home should be made now.

ALIEN ENEMIES RUSH FOR PAPERS TO OBTAIN VOTE

Proposed Amendment to Decide Who Shall Vote Rouses Germans to Action.

Frank A. Kennedy, in the current issue of "The Western Laborer," takes cognizance of the rush of alien enemies to obtain first naturalization papers at the court house, and then register with the election commissioner, to be entitled to vote on November 5.

He notes that the sudden change of heart of these residents occurred shortly after the special session of the legislature provided that there should be submitted at this election a constitutional amendment on the question of whether only full-fledged citizens should be allowed to vote.

"After the blow-up early this year," he writes, "which caused the extra session of the legislature to have submitted to the people a constitutional amendment providing that only citizens may vote, these alien enemies have the guts to take out their first papers, so they may vote in the interest of the kaiser next month."

"A number of lawyers have told me that an alien enemy has no standing in the courts of America. If that is correct, why does the clerk of the court and the election commissioner accept the tender of these men's declaration of intentions?"

CAR WINDOWS REMAIN CLOSED DESPITE ORDER

Conductors Pay Little Heed to Health Regulation Asked to Combat Flu Spread.

The Associated Retail Merchants find that the 6:30 closing plan adopted to help relieve congestion on the cars during the "flu" epidemic, does not accomplish the result desired, and have so reported to Dr. Manning, the health officer.

It is probable that some of the merchants will close at 6 and others at 6:30. Most of them, Dr. Manning states, have indicated a desire to open at 9 and close at 6.

The situation Saturday was doubly aggravated, according to a number of complaints, by the fact that the cars were not only closed, and consequently filled with vitiated air, but that there was apparently no attempt to provide heat, increasing the danger of contracting colds or "flu."

Bill of Sale Obtains Release for Alleged Automobile Thief

Eight alleged automobile thieves were arrested last week by Omaha police under direction of Chief Eberstein and seven were bound over to the district court and are awaiting trial.

The exception was Charles Bealange, who was caught in the drag-net in St. Joseph with a Buick car stolen in Omaha last January from J. Lemmon, Council Bluffs. All the numbers on the car including the engine had been changed. But Chief Eberstein telegraphed to the factory and they advised him of a secret number on the car.

Senator Norris' Conscience

Senator Norris in one of his campaign leaflets says: "I prefer to be with the president, but I will be against him rather than violate my own conscience."

This makes Senator Norris' conscience a matter of great public concern. He is perfectly right in following his conscience, but if his conscience leads him repeatedly to oppose the president in the prosecution of the war against German autocracy, then, certainly, the people of Nebraska, who are with the president, should retire the senator to private life where he can follow his conscience without inflicting serious damage upon the allied cause.

Senator Norris' conscience led him to head a filibuster in the senate against the arming of American merchant ships so that they might protect themselves from German submarines. His conscience told him that he ought to put his judgment on that issue against the combined judgment of the administration and congress. The senate rules gave Senator Norris power to exercise his judgment autocratically and arbitrarily and he did so. He used his power to prevent congress from doing what both congress and the nation believed was the highly important thing to do.

Senator Norris' conscience also led him not only to vote against the war resolution but to denounce our war for the liberation of the world from the Hun as a war "at the command of gold," and as putting "the dollar sign on the American flag." If Senator Norris' conscience had dictated to America Germany would today be in Paris and on the Belgian coast and without doubt would be the victorious oppressor of all Europe and a menace to America.

Senator Norris' conscience also led him to vote against the conscription bill under which we have raised our army with which to fight the Germans. If the senator's conscience had prevailed we would today have only a meager army in France, the late victorious drive would have been impossible, and, at best, the situation would have been as serious as it was before the Germans began to fall back.

Senator Norris' conscience also led him to vote against the revenue bill under which a large proportion of the money with which we have financed our war against Germany has been raised. If Senator Norris' conscience had had its way our war program would have been inadequately financed and our part in the war rendered much less effective that it is today.

Senator Norris' conscience has led him into paths along which patriotic citizens have not been able to follow him. It has proved an untrustworthy guide in the past; what guarantee have we that it will not lead him astray in the future?

A conscience such as his is a dangerous guide through the perilous paths which the administration and congress will have to traverse during the final days of the war and the early days of peace.
