SOCIETY

MISS KATHERINE WOODWORTH, who is now living in the town of Homakua-toka in the island of Maui, writes glowing accounts of the life on this beautiful, tropical island.

The exotic flowers and luxuriant foliage are a constant source of delight, Miss Woodworth writes, all the cottages in the island are haw-ers of beauty, with the flowers and vines almost covering the low roofs.

Major Caldwell of Salvation Army Rescue Home is to Leave

In the loss of Maj. Elizabeth Caldwell, for the past eight and one-half years manager of the Salvation Army Girls' Rescue Home, who is to be transferred to Des Moines November 1, Omaha loses a woman who, in a quiet way, has done an in-estimable amount of good.

Maj. Elizabeth Caldwell

Major Caldwell has been for nearly 20 years in the work of helping girls whom fate or their own selfish love of pleasure has led to the brink of ruin. The Salvation Army homes in Cleveland, O., New York City and St. Louis, have been successively under her charge previous to her coming to Omaha.

When Major Caldwell came here there was a big mortgage on the home. This is now paid off, regardless of the fact that little publicity has been given to the need for money. This work is necessarily of such a confidential nature that the public knows little of the pitiful cases that are cared for.

The home is supported out of the very limited finances of the Army. Some few good men and women of Omaha contribute quite generously, realizing the necessity for this work and the fact that the Salvation Army is handling it correctly, out of a wide experience with sinning and suffering humanity.

Ensign Lillie Ness will be Major Caldwell's successor, coming here from St. Paul, Minn., where she has made an enviable record in rescue work.

Advice to the Love-Lorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX. Needs Cheering.

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: Do you think it all right for a young man in the last draft to keep company with a young lady, as I will probably not be called into service before spring? I am doing so, as my brothers are in the army and in other parts of the country, and I am lonesome.

Should the boy ask every Sunday evening for the lady's company the next Sunday, or is it supposed he will call again unless otherwise planned?

Some folks have told me I should not start keeping company with anyone, knowing that I may be called into service. But I am so lonesome that I feel I need someone's cheery words to help "turn the dark clouds inside out till the boys come home."

Many people think the universe can't be properly run without their unsolicited advice. Of course it is right for you and the girl to "keep company" if you both want to. It is a matter which concerns yourselves alone, and your friends have no right to try to deprive you of the girl's friendship.

DREAMLAND ADVENTURE

By DADDY "Sky Soldiers"

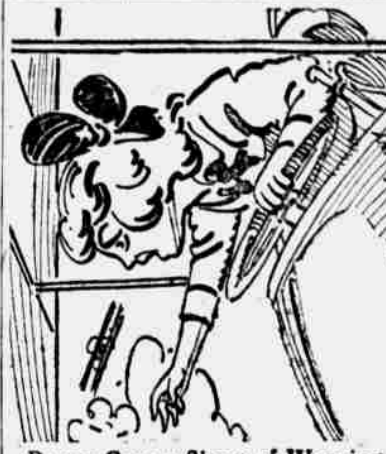

(When Peggy eats leaves from the Goltexy shrub she is made tiny and invisible, and enabled to go as fast as she wants in the sky airplane. Accompanied by General Swallow, she flies to France, where they find themselves in the midst of an air battle.)

CHAPTER II. Foes in the Clouds. THE fighting airplanes were rushing right at Peggy and General Swallow. The roaring whirr of the propellers gave warning of what would happen to anyone caught by them. They would cut a person or a bird to pieces in a flash.

As the fighters sped past Peggy saw on the foremost one the black cross of Germany. On the second was the striped hat of Uncle Sam. Peggy caught only a glimpse of the Yankee aviator, but it was a glimpse which showed her a splendid young chap, handsome, alert, brave and determined.

But Teddy was not caught napping. He gave a sudden twist to get out of range, dived and again came up behind the German. The German looped the loop again and got in the rear. Teddy dove straight for the earth, straightened out, twisted around and came at the German from another angle. This time his bullets went straight to the mark, for they put the Hun's engine out of commission. The German machine flopped like a wounded bird, whirled around and around as it dropped toward the ground and then straightening out just as it appeared about to be smashed into bits landed safely behind the American lines, where the aviator was quickly made a prisoner.

Peggy, who had gasped with horror as the German plane fell, gave a sigh of relief as she saw that the birdman was captured and not killed. "Some day fight, that!" shrieked General Swallow. "I'd say that the American aviator is a better fighter than any airbird I've ever seen."

Peggy Gave a Shout of Warning.

lips, a third German machine darted from the clouds, and then another and another, until there were seven foe machines making straight for Teddy. The young American caught sight of the Germans, but pretended not to see them until just as they were ready to open fire. Then he dived and the acrobatics that followed brought him up behind the seven. Bravely he attacked the whole bunch.

The Germans quickly dived and dodged to get out of his fire, their stunts being as spectacular as those in which Teddy had downed the first Hun machine. Then they closed in on Teddy, and it quickly became apparent that they were too many for him. He might be able to whip them one at a time, but he couldn't whip the whole seven attacking at once and from several directions. "I'm going to help him," shrieked Peggy, though she didn't know what she could do. "So am I!" shrieked General Swallow, putting on his fighting look. Up they darted, only to find themselves caught in a perfect hail of bullets as the Germans tried to overwhelm Teddy. Peggy saw General Swallow suddenly go tumbling head over heels toward the ground as a bullet struck him. Then her airplane was given a terrific blow from behind and she followed General Swallow, turning over and over as she fell toward the earth.

(Tomorrow will be told how Peggy and General Swallow get back into the fight and how a German aviator receives a startling surprise.)

Women's Work in War Time

For Overseas Motor Duty. Mrs. Zora Berg of Superior, Neb., has applied for Red Cross motor corps service overseas. Mrs. Berg is a woman of means now engaged in the automobile business in Superior and has been for several years. She was examined Saturday evening for the motor corps service, taking the test with no previous instruction. Mrs. Berg is so eager to serve her country that she is willing to do any kind of war work open to women but in all probability she will be accepted for motor service. Mrs. Berg was at the Fontenelle while in the city.

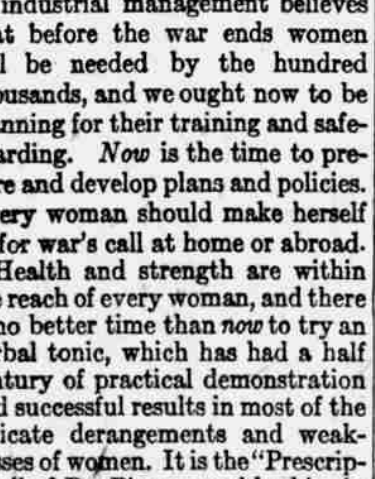

RED CROSS

Only Red Cross cartons are accepted as Christmas gift containers for men abroad by the Postoffice and War departments, Frank W. Judson, Red Cross state director, advises the public. Cartons provided by department stores and mercantile houses are not acceptable. Red Cross cartons may be secured at Omaha chapter headquarters in the court house until the opening of special rooms to handle the rush. Miss Nellie Calvin is chairman of the Xmas committee.

Miss Ruth Fitzgerald of the motor corps, who gave such valuable service assisting in the influenza relief, left Saturday to care for the family of her brother living out in the state. All are stricken with the "flu."

convenience how to become popular with the men. IN DISTRESS. No woman can tell another how to be attractive to men. It is a gift. Very likely your trouble is that you are not accustomed to men and are too self-conscious. Don't think how to make yourself attractive, but how to make your friends feel at home and enjoy themselves. Usually one meets plenty of men, and if they think you good company they will find occasion to see you again. Remember this, any man likes a laughing, happy girl better than he does a serious, sad-looking one.

Hair Dye. Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: A lady has requested me to write to you and ask your advice. She is 25 years of age and is good-looking. But for such a young lady her hair is turning gray. Would it hurt the hair any to dye it with some kind of hair dye? The color of her hair is black. WORRIED. Hair dye is not particularly bad for the hair if you get a good one, recommended by a reliable druggist. However, if it were my hair I should not color it. Gray hair is beautiful and many young women wear it proudly. Dye never looks natural and often has a disagreeable odor.

Loneliness. Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I am a young woman 35 years of age and have been an interested reader of your column for a number of years. Now my trouble is this: I am so lonesome. At times I feel so blue for want of love. No one seems to care for me. I am considered real attractive, but for some reason I cannot get acquainted with the men. I am jolly and considered a "good sport," but for some unknown reason I am not popular. I am sure I am capable of showing the men a good time, as I have a splendid voice and can play the piano. I'm a stranger in the city. Please advise me at your earliest Women's Work?

Are women as yet really needed in all our industries? One of our experts in industrial management believes that before the war ends women will be needed by the hundred thousands, and we ought now to be planning for their training and safeguarding. Now is the time to prepare and develop plans and policies. Every woman should make herself fit for war's call at home or abroad. Health and strength are within the reach of every woman, and there is no better time than now to try an herbal tonic, which has had a half century of practical demonstration and successful results in most of the delicate derangements and weaknesses of women. It is the "Prescription" of Dr. Pierce, used by him in active practice many years, and now sold by almost every druggist in tablet or liquid form. If it is a headache, a backache, a sensation of irritability or twitching and uncontrollable nervousness, something must be wrong with the head or back, a woman naturally says, but all the time the real trouble very often centers in the organs. In nine cases out of ten the seat of the difficulty is here, and a woman should take rational treatment for its cure. The disorder should be treated steadily and systematically with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and the hygienic advice followed which Dr. Pierce gives free. For diseases from which women suffer, "Favorite Prescription" is a powerful restorative. During the last fifty years it has banished from the lives of tens of thousands of women the pain, worry, misery and distress caused by these diseases. Your neighbor could tell you. Address Dr. Pierce, Pres. Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and get confidential medical advice entirely free, or send 10c for trial package. "Prescription" tablets
