

HUNDRED RED CROSS DRIVERS LEAVE FOR CAMP

Young Volunteers for Ambulance Work Go to Chicago for Three Weeks and Thence to France.

One hundred and ten Omaha recruits for Red Cross ambulance work in France, left for Camp Sept, Ill., Tuesday afternoon in charge of Capt. Fred L. Good, recruiting officer.

They assembled at Fifteenth and Farnam and marched to the court house, where a large crowd awaited them.

Martial music was played by the Fort Omaha band and Mayor Ed. P. Smith bade them "Godspeed," and they were off down Farnam street to the depot followed by a host of friends and relatives. Seventy-five canteen workers marched with them, and signs bearing the inscriptions "Omaha again over the top," "110 ambulance drivers to France" and "some of 500 ambulance drivers," were carried by the boys.

The recruits were mostly "young bloods," many of them high school boys, and their youth made the parting doubly hard for the parents. Mrs. Luther Kountze, leader of the canteen workers, which has been bidding every contingent that has left since war was declared goodbye, and cheering them on their way with cigars and candy, marched bravely to the depot with her 18-year-old son, Harkness, as she has done with countless other Omaha boys. Among the Omahans accepted are:

Clyde Lowry	Lawrence Merriam
Alban Clark	Frank Reinard
Harkness Kountze	Harry T. White
Richard Reynolds	Edward O'Toole
Ellison Vasaohaler	Edwin Conley
Ed Branat	Samuel H. Elwood
William Wallace	Loyal Cohn
Jack Krebs	Ed W. Peters
George Saunders	Millard Richards
David Nasel	Donald Hall
Island Jefferson	Edmund Peterson
James Holmquist	Raymond Mattson
Donald Mahaffey	W. C. Brockhoff
Harold Eaton

Farewell Reception Given H. H. Lovell by Chamber of Commerce

Henry H. Lovell, Omaha insurance man and one of the most active members of the War Activities committee of the Chamber of Commerce, was the guest of that committee at a luncheon Tuesday noon—a good-fellowship gathering to bid Mr. Lovell a "Godspeed." Mr. Lovell left Tuesday night for Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky., where he enters the field artillery central officers' training school.

Not only was Mr. Lovell presented with a program of farewell speeches at the luncheon, but as added token of esteem he was given a handsome wrist watch, the presentation being made by Chairman R. Hall K. Brown. Following this, Mr. Lovell was the recipient of a vote of thanks from the military ceremonial committee, of which he was chairman and in charge of the great numbers of soldier funerals held in Omaha during the last several weeks.

Mr. Lovell leaves an extensive insurance business to enter the service of Uncle Sam and he also leaves a capable manager—his wife, Mrs. Lovell will take full charge of the business immediately.

"Food Saving" Will Be New Course Taught at All Schools This Year

Suggestions for courses of food conservation in all schools and colleges have been prepared and approved by Herbert Hoover, U. S. food administrator. These have been forwarded to Omaha, and Gurdon W. Wattles, federal food administrator for Nebraska, makes these suggestions to further the work:

All schools of Nebraska should have instruction in the principles of food conservation. This should include interpretation of the food conservation requests. Instruction should be given concerning the source of supply, amount of such foods, and their proper consumption.

Organization should be effected to maintain compliance with food regulations, relating to eating at odd times, between meals, at picnics and at entertainments. These practices should be eliminated.

Not only should the messages of the food administration be distributed to the homes of the school children, but they should be taught in the schools.

The courses of study, from which these suggestions are taken, were prepared after the National Educational association had requested such course in a resolution passed at the national meeting in Pittsburgh.

"The schools are the greatest educational agency in the state, with the possible exception of the press," says Administrator Wattles. "With the co-operation of the teachers, we should have great results in food conservation teachings. I request every teacher in Nebraska to outline a course of study for their school, along the lines laid down in the course of study as prepared by the national administrator. We have appointed a committee, consisting of Miss Alice Loomis, Mrs. Emma Reed Davison and Clark Fulmer, to carry out this work in the state. I ask the co-operation of all teachers with this committee."

Warm Springs, Ore., Man Invents New Auto Jack

O. L. Babcock, former superintendent of the Winnemago Indian reservation, and now superintendent of the agency at Warm Springs Ore., who is in Omaha this week attending federal court, has proven himself an inventive genius. Mr. Babcock patented and is now putting on the market a combination automobile jack and rim tool, which is proving a wonderful convenience to the unfortunate motorist in the time of tire trouble. His device is so constructed that it has a lift of 14 inches and can also be used to spread or contract the largest split rims when making a change of tires. The device is now being made for Mr. Babcock and his partner, C. I. Lennan of Winnemago, in the east, but Mr. Babcock is trying to make arrangements with some Omaha manufacturer to do the manufacturing in this city.

Midnight Show Will Celebrate Lifting of Flu Ban at Gayety

That loyal tribe of Gayetyites, who have been imploring "Old Man" Johnson ever since he has been numbered among the idle rich to hurry up and open the fun center, are about to get their wish, it appears.

Now that the lifting of the embargo on public amusement is drawing to an end, Manager Johnson says the leash at which the theater is tugging is becoming so taut that he will not be able to hold it only one minute after the hour decreed by the health authorities. At 12:01 next Saturday morning he will unlock the big front door of the popular Gayety and at 12:30 a. m. the curtain will rise on an extra midnight performance, to be given by Fred Irwin's "Majestics," the company regularly booked to open at the Gayety Saturday matinee for the usual week's run, which engagement it will complete.

The company, nearly half a hundred strong, will arrive in Omaha Thursday after completing a half week's engagement in Des Moines, the "flu" ban having been lifted in that city last Monday.

Starting today the Gayety's box office will be open from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. for the sale of tickets for the entire week. So great has been the success of the novel midnight performances in the past, at the Gayety, that there is no doubt about the one in prospect. The performance will be given in its entirety.

Ambassador to Spain.

Paris, Monday, Oct. 28.—(Havas)—G. F. Alapetite, the French resident general in Tunis, has been appointed ambassador to Spain. Senator Etienne Flandin will be come resident general in Tunis.

AT THE THEATERS

LIFTING THE "Flu" Ban Means Reopening of the Theaters.

The moving picture houses, naturally, will be the first to get under way, as it will only be necessary for them to resume where they left off. The other "show shops" will not get started with such ready facility, as plans for the winter have generally been disrupted, and new schedules must be arranged.

Manager Burgess of the Boyd has arranged to have Nat Goodwin and his company play Saturday matinee and evening, offering "Why Marry?" a comedy drama by Jesse Lynch Williams. The engagement holds some local interest as Lotus Robb, well recalled for her service here in resident stock companies, is Mr. Goodwin's leading woman.

The Brandeis will open on Saturday afternoon, offering the first local presentation of the great D. W. Griffith screen drama, "Hearts of the World," which was to have been shown there the first week of the embargo. The Orpheum and Gayety will also open Saturday, although not ready at this moment to announce opening bills.

"Hearts of the World," is more than a photo spectacle—it is the story of the greatest war the world has ever known, told in a way more gripping and impressive than the printed or spoken word could ever make it. "Hearts of the World" is the war itself. The title tells the whole story—it is the appealing voice of humanity crying out for justice and liberty. Two American pufflers lived in France, as the tale unfolds. One had a daughter, the other a son. They met and loved and were happy as young lovers always are. Then came Germany's decision to crush the world with France as her first victim. The boy, though an American citizen, enlisted in the army of France, believing that "the country good enough to live in is good enough to fight for." The development of the story shows the struggle of the little French band to hold their village from the Huns against tremendous odds—their failure and the terrible experiences of the natives, including the boy's sweetheart, until finally rescued by the allied troops with the brave Americans among them

Through all this sad experience there is a vein of charming comedy that brings out all its beauties like a jewel in a rich setting.

"Hearts of the World," will be the opening attraction at the Brandeis next Saturday afternoon.

"Why Marry?," a comedy by Jesse Lynch Williams, comes to the Boyd theater for Saturday matinee and night, November 2, fresh from its triumphant engagement at the Astor theater, New York. It will be presented by the same cast of remarkable distinction which was declared over and over by critics to be absolutely the best company ever assembled for one play. A play of the rare merit possessed by "Why Marry?" and presented by actors of the calibre of Nat C. Goodwin, Edmund Brees, Ernest Lawford, Leonard Mudie, Lotus Robb, Louise Randolph, Anne Morrison and the others who appear in the cast, is a genuine event in the history of the drama. "Why Marry?" is on a tour of the country which will take two years to complete and will carry it to every important theatrical center in the United States.

New Exchange Opened.

New York, Oct. 29.—The American cotton and grain exchange, with branches in 35 cities and a membership of 5,000, opened for trading here today. It was announced that minimum transactions in cotton would be in 10 bale lots, and it was estimated that today's sales amounted to 7,500 bales.

POWER BEHIND THE THROTTLE

WHEN you open the throttle you'll feel that quick, powerful throb that indicates clean, full strength gas—if Red Crown Gasoline is feeding your motor.

Red Crown is straight-distilled gas, that vaporizes readily at low temperatures, and always burns cleanly. It's all gas. That means more miles, fewer carburetor adjustments.

Look for the Red Crown Sign. Polarine is a cold-proof lubricant that keeps cylinders clean and compression tight.

What Three Presidents Said In an Appeal to the American People

What President Roosevelt Said:

In 1898 the United States, had, for humanity's sake, conquered a weaker nation. The Republican party was in power; had carried on the war to a successful conclusion, except that the peace terms had not been fully determined. A political campaign was pending. Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, hero of San Juan Hill, afterwards president of the United States, was Republican candidate for Governor of New York. In an appeal to the voters, Colonel Roosevelt said:

"Remember that, whether you will or not, your votes this year will be viewed by the nations of Europe from one standpoint only. They will draw no fine distinctions. A refusal to sustain the president this year will, in their eyes, be read as a refusal to sustain the war and to sustain the efforts of our commissions to secure the fruits of war. Such a refusal may not inconceivably bring about a rupture of the peace negotiations. It will give heart to our defeated antagonists; it will make possible the interference of those doubtful neutral nations, who in this struggle have wished us ill."

What President Wilson Said:

On October 25, 1918, President Wilson, in address to the American people, said:

"If you have approved of my leadership and wish me to continue to be your unembarrassed spokesman in affairs at home and abroad, I earnestly beg that you will express yourselves unmistakably to that effect by returning a Democratic majority to both the Senate and House of Representatives.

"This is no time either for divided counsel or divided leadership. Unity of command is as necessary now in civil action as it is upon the field of battle. If the control of the House and Senate should be taken away from the party in power, opposing majority could assume control of legislation and oblige all action to be taken amidst contest and obstruction.

What President Harrison Said:

So, too, in 1898 was the appeal of Former President Benjamin Harrison, who pleaded for the election of a Republican Congress to support President McKinley. In the Philadelphia North American of November 1, 1898, Harrison is quoted as saying:

"If the word goes forth that the people of the United States are standing solidly behind the President, the task of the Peace Commissioners will be easy, but if there is a break in the ranks—if the Democrats score a telling victory, if Democratic Senators, Congressmen, and Governors are elected—Spain will see in it a gleam of hope, she will take fresh hope, and a renewal of hostilities, more war, may be necessary to secure to us what we had already won."

"I need not tell you, my fellow countrymen, that I am asking your support, not for my own sake or for the sake of a political party, but for the sake of the nation itself in order that its inward unity of purpose may be evident to all the world. . . . If in these critical days it is your wish to sustain me with undivided minds, I beg you will say so in a way which it will not be possible to misunderstand here at home or among our associates on the other side of the sea.

"I submit my difficulties and my hope to you."

"WOODROW WILSON."

Stand By President Wilson

Unity of action in Washington is as essential to the success of the war as unity of command is essential to military success on the battlefields of Europe. This is not a theory; it is a fact. In the past wars the people of America invariably have stood by the party in power during the heat of the conflict. They supported Lincoln in the trying days of the Civil War, in response to his historic appeal "not to swap horses while crossing a river;" they supported McKinley during the Spanish-American War; and they will support Wilson during this greatest of all wars.

How to Sustain President Wilson

One of the surest ways for the patriotic voters of Nebraska to show their support of President Wilson is to vote on November 5, 1918
