SOCIETY

For Miss Heath. The matinee party is with us again! The afternoon teas which have been given for so many a long time will probably pale into insignificance now that the theaters are open once more. Miss Beulah Clarke will be one of the first hostesses to entertain at an Orpheum party, for she will give one Monday in honor of Miss Mildred Heath, the guest of Miss Mabel Fuller. After the matinee the guests will have tea at the Fontenelle.

Hallow'en Affair. Miss Mary Williams was hostess at a Hallow'en affair at her home Thursday evening. Jack O'lanterns decorated the rooms and games were played. The guests included: Misses Elsie Glazer, Caroline Matshies, Anna Gloyer, Jessie McDonald, Sally Greenfield, Mary Goodman, Edna Williams, Olive Williams and Mesdames Paul Williams, Esther Madsen, W. C. Williams and Harry Gustafson.

At the Blackstone. Miss Helen Eastman was honored guest at a luncheon given by her sister, Miss Elizabeth Ladenburg at the Blackstone today. The party was a farewell affair as Miss Ladenburg will leave soon to make her home in California and the eight guests included intimate friends.

Social Affairs Planned. The dinner-dance at the Prettiest Mile club Saturday evening will be a formal affair, club members announce. Matinee dance planned for the children Saturday afternoon will be postponed until November 9.

Doughnut Sale. Home-made doughnuts will be on sale Saturday in the First National Bank building. Women of the First Central Congregational church will conduct the sale.

Advice to the Love-Lorn

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Is He Too Young? Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I would like to have advice from you. I am a girl of 23 and I am keeping company with a boy 21 years of age.

Some people told me that I should not go with him, as he is younger, but I can't let him go. I love him too much. This same young man has gone with a girl before he knew me. I took her to a dance one evening and they got there she spent the evening with another man, and when the time came to go home she came to this man to take her home and he told her that he wouldn't do it. But she insisted upon his taking her home, as he "roughed her there. Was it right that he took her home?"

Can a girl kiss a soldier goodbye when he leaves her and goes to France? There is no reason why you may not "keep company" with the young man, even though he is slightly younger than you. If you are seriously considering marrying him I should advise you to wait a few months, at least. You may not continue to care for a man two years younger than yourself or he for you, though there have been many cases of happy marriages between women and younger men. Wait and be sure.

If the young man took the girl to the dance it was only right for him to see her home. He doesn't have to see her home, but it is right, also. He should have taken her home and then avoided her in the future. There is no reason why one cannot wear mourning for a soldier, but good taste and patriotism dictate against it. To my mind mourning is always in bad taste, and especially so when the beloved one has given his life for his country. It seems to me selfish to wear sorrows on our friends in this manner. Such sorrows are sacred and better kept within the heart than displayed with ostentation.

Writing to Engaged Man. Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I have a very dear friend in the service, who, however, is engaged to another girl. Would it be proper for me to correspond with and receive gifts from him? DIMPLES. Certainly not. How would you like another girl writing to and receiving gifts from a man to whom you were engaged?

Let Him Go. Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I am a girl 19 years of age and have been engaged to a young man for one and a half years. We were very fond of each other and never had a quarrel until this summer, when I found out that he had been keeping company with another young lady on the sly. A scandal also was started by the neighbors, which seems to play a prominent part in the breaking up, and now the ones that started it deny the fact that they ever had anything to do with it. He gave me a diamond ring and also a watch, but did not have the nerve to ask me to return them, so please advise me what I shall do. He returned the presents by mail, which I had given to him. He always seemed to be jealous of me and wouldn't allow me to associate with most anybody, although I never cared for anybody else at the time. He was called in the last draft and left for camp today, so I didn't get the chance to ask him why he turned me down so unexpectedly. Please give me your advice. HEARTBROKEN.

DECORATE WAR BUILDING

Undaunted by chilly winds the two artists, Miss Helen Eastman and Miss Bernice Branson of Lincoln, began work Thursday on the posters which will decorate the United War Workers' building on the court house lawn. Miss Branson rapidly sketched the outlines of her picture, "Carry On," showing seven soldiers rushing to the front, and below them three Young Men's Christian association workers who outstretched arms, supporting the work of the men in the trenches. Miss Helen Eastman, a charming picture herself, in a smart fur coat and velvet toque, is busily working on her production, "We're with You, Boys, Lead On." This poster, which will be almost life size, shows a soldier equipped for action, with a lovely young woman at his side, ready to do her part. The work will proceed every day, the weather permitting, until the designs are completed.

Winter Uniform of Red Cross Canteen Corps

MARTHA GYGER.

Passing soldiers will indeed be cheered when they are greeted by a group of pretty girls in this smart Red Cross canteen costume. Miss Martha Gyger, one of the busiest of the canteen workers, looks especially attractive in the tailored coat of blue-gray, with its scarlet lining and trimming. The little hat is of the same shade, with a band of crimson around the crown. The winter costume was designed and standardized in Washington at the Red Cross headquarters. Young women enrolled in the canteen service from coast to coast will wear this same coat and hat.

Mrs. Jensen is one of the most competent knitters in Omaha. She has already completed 64 pairs of socks for the Swedish Immanuel auxiliary, of which Mrs. N. P. Swanson is chairman.

LOOKING A GIFT HORSE IN THE MOUTH.

One of the results of the campaign for gift books last spring, by the American Library association was an influx of reading material of the type which careful mothers take pains to remove from the environment of 16-year-old daughters. That the gift horse had to be inspected carefully was demonstrated a number of times. To one camp library came copies of Zola's "L'Assommoir," Daudet's "Sapho," and De Maupassant's "Bel-Ami." From the reading room in a school were sent copies of Snappy Stories. An offer of a file of the Undertaker's Review was graciously rejected. School readers antedating the civil war were received. Mrs. J. M. Otter was hostess at a delightful luncheon party at her home Thursday. Fall flowers and Halloween decorations were used on the table and covers were laid for 12 guests. Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Weller returned from Atlantic City today.
