

MOREHEAD ENDS CAMPAIGN FOR SENATORSHIP

Issues Statement to the Voters of Nebraska at Conclusion and Expresses Platform if Elected.

John H. Morehead, former governor of Nebraska, at the conclusion of his campaign for United States senator, has addressed the following statement to the people of Nebraska:

"Next Tuesday you will elect a United States senator for the term of six years. As the democratic candidate for that office I desire to express to you my appreciation of the fair and serious consideration given to my candidacy. I value more than I can express the words of the strong support you gave me in my two successful contests for the governorship. Men of all political parties gave me helpful support during my four years of administration in that important office.

"In a republic like ours political parties are necessary; otherwise, we would have no choice of policies or of men. In both public and private life I have endeavored to be just and liberal. My official record shows that I have not been a narrow partisan. In the matter of appointments and in the administration of the governor's office I kept constantly in mind the public welfare.

"In this contest I believe that my well known support of the administration of President Wilson and his war policies; my opposition in any inconclusive peace; my well known views on all public questions; my official record as governor; my 30 years of experience in farming, live stock and business, entitle me to your continued confidence and support.

"My campaign is ended. It has been clean and honorable. The records are open to the public. If elected United States senator I will be your servant, unhampered by any promises except my two successful terms as governor. I shall serve no faction or selfish interest. My constant aim will be to discharge the duties of the office conscientiously and impartially. Irrespective of results, I am thankful to you for the generous treatment I have received and I feel that I owe you a lasting debt of gratitude."

Bolshevik Troops Torture and Murder Prisoners Captured

Archangel—Charges that the bolshevik forces have executed and mutilated several members of the Russo-allied forces whom they captured have been borne out by evidence of witnesses and by the finding in the woods of mutilated bodies. One brutally murdered was Pirogoff, interpreter for a French detachment, according to evidence in possession of the allied intelligence office. After he had been induced by Nor, the commander of the second battalion of the Third Petrograd (bolshevik) regiment, to disclose the disposition and the number of the allied forces on a promise that his life would be spared, he was put to slow death amid the jeers and mockery of the bolshevik soldiers.

As regards the charge that Pirogoff was a spy, Lieutenant Novik declared: "The company commander said that detailed maps of the roads and paths and other important documents were found on the prisoner. No one else saw them and their contents were known to nobody."

Omaha Produces Nearly Half of Butter Made in the State

The bureau of publicity has compiled some interesting statistics on Omaha as a butter production center. There were 25,700,000 pounds of butter produced in Omaha for the year ending June 30, 1918. While there are no exact figures available for other cities, Omaha is conceded to be by far the leading city of the United States in the production of butter. Some claim that it produces twice as much as any other city. The total for the entire state of Nebraska for the same period is 55,650,000 pounds. In other words, Omaha produces almost half as much as the entire state.

Omaha's production for the year ending June 30, 1917, was 23,689,000 pounds. The entire state production for the same period was 46,837,976.

The following are the figures on production for the state of Nebraska:

	1917	1918
Douglas	2,689,000	25,700,000
Lancaster	2,689,000	22,120,000
Hall	2,689,000	2,300,000
All others	11,520,976	15,820,000
Total	46,837,976	55,650,000

DREAMLAND ADVENTURE By DADDY "The Dancing Damsel"

(Peggy, in previous stories, has enjoyed interesting adventures among the birds, who have made her Princess of Birdland.)

CHAPTER I. The Swallows Fly South. "We're going away today. To play down South in Dixie. That's why we are gay and say Hurray, hurray for Dixie."

THIS song, trilled loudly by a great chorus, brought Peggy running to the window. It was still night and the sun would not come creeping up over the eastern horizon for some hours, but a bright moon was flooding the land with silvery beauty. Flying by in the moonlight were the songsters—hundreds and hundreds of Swallows and Purple Martins.

"Good-by, Princess Peggy!" cried General and Mrs. Swallow, fluttering up to the window. "We are starting for the Southland."

"So soon?" exclaimed Peggy in dismay. "Why, the delightful fall weather is just beginning."

"But the nights are getting chilly and the frost is nipping our toes," answered General Swallow. "It's never and warm in Dixie."

"Besides, we are anxious to find what has happened in the romance of the Dancing Damsel and the Boy Knight," added Mrs. Swallow.

"Who are the Dancing Damsel and the Boy Knight?" asked Peggy.

"She is a wondrously beautiful Southern girl," answered General Swallow.

"And he is a handsome, brave cadet at the army aviation field," added Mrs. Swallow. Both birds were so eager to tell Peggy the story that they gave it a sentence at a time.

"Her miserly stepfather is her guardian and he is so eager to keep all her wealth in his own hands that he will not let any young man come courting, for fear she will marry and escape him."

"So he made her a prisoner within his castle walls."

"But she danced every day on the roof garden outside her tower room."

"And the Boy Knight, sailing by in his airplane, saw her there and fell in love with her."

"And he dropped love letters that filled her heart with joy."

"And she sent up love letters in kites and he caught them high in the air."

"And they were very, very happy in their love when we left the South last spring."

"But today we received word that the cruel stepfather had parted them and was trying to marry her to a rich old widower."

"And that she was pining away from heartache, and the Boy Knight was so blue he could not eat nor sleep."

"And he's going to start for France next month, and maybe they'll never see each other again."

"Poor lovers, I wish I could help them," cried Peggy.

"Come South with us," shrilled General and Mrs. Swallow. "Here are Gollykety leaves. They will make you tiny and give your toy airplane the speed of lightning. Come, join us on our migration."

Why not? Peggy was eager for a trip south with the Birds. And perhaps she could do something to bring the Dancing Damsel and the Boy Knight their hearts' desire. She took a little nibble of the leaves. The Gollykety charm worked instantly. She became as tiny as a midget and her toy airplane grew suddenly fleet and powerful. She jumped aboard and roared out of the window to join General and Mrs. Swallow.

"Hurray," shouted General Swallow, as they darted upward into the crowd of swiftly flying birds headed for the Southland.

"Hurray," shouted a queer flying creature that dashed fiercely out of the shadow of a tree.

Peggy's airplane gave a great spurt ahead, but the creature overhauled her in a second.

"Peggy's scared! Isn't this a joke," shouted the creature. Peggy turned, and in a flash her fears vanished. The creature was Billy Belgium. He also had been made tiny by Gollykety leaves and was speeding along in an airplane he had made himself.

"Hello," shouted Peggy. "Welcome to our party. We're going to the aid of the Dancing Damsel and the Boy Knight."

(Tomorrow will be told how Peggy and Billy fly to the sunny South.)

AIRMAN FLYING FROM TEXAS TO IOWA LANDS

Lieut. Miller Enroute to Visit Parents at Waterloo Makes 800 Miles in 10 Hours, Flying Time.

Flying from San Antonio, Tex., to Waterloo, Ia., where he will visit his parents, Lt. M. H. Miller, aviation instructor at Kelly field, San Antonio, landed at Fort Crook, Omaha, Saturday night, having made but three stops en route, and having covered the 800 miles in about 10 hours, actual flying time.

Lieutenant Miller is making the long flight in a biplane, 43 feet wide, through special courtesy of the war department.

He left Omaha at 10 o'clock Sunday morning for Waterloo.

The flying instructor landed at Carruthers field, Fort Worth, at Oklahoma City and Abilene, Kan., to replenish his supply of fuel.

At Oklahoma City he was compelled to land on the state capitol grounds, the only suitable landing place which could be seen from the skies. At Fort Crook he landed between buildings on a comparatively level stretch of ground.

During most of the long distance flight the aviator maintained an altitude of 5,000 feet.

In Omaha Lieutenant Miller was the guest of George T. Wright, 1322 South Thirty-fifth avenue, manager of Paxton-Gallagher company.

The aviator left Kelly field, San Antonio, Thursday night, between Abilene, Kan., and Omaha he averaged more than 100 miles per hour. He said he had had scores of requests from people along his route who wished to fly with him, but army regulations prevented this.

BECAUSE—His motives are pure and disinterested. BECAUSE—He stands for the principles which have made the Republican party great and BECAUSE—He stands for the unconditional Surrender of the Hun and against a negotiated peace, and BECAUSE—He will be needed in Washington during the reconstruction days following the declaration of peace.

He has made it possible for OUR BOYS who are heroically fighting the battles of their country in the trenches of France to exercise the right of franchise, and he has protected their property rights in their absence from the state.

He has vigorously opposed all things calculated to embarrass the Government in the prosecution of the war.

His administration has been clean, honest and business-like, free from graft, favoritism and ostentation.
