Contributions for this "Long, Long Trail" will come from passing pedestrians. The line will be pre-

Thirty Cars Bread Daily Ration at One U. S. Base

American Regulation Base, France, Nov. 7.—Bread for the American soldiers is brought here by trainloads from the great army field bakery a few miles distant, one train of 30 cars a day, all loaded with white bread from the best of wheat flour.

One such train was arriving as the Associated Press correspondent visited the base. Another trainload of refrigerated beef arrived soon afterward from the great refrigerating plant at Gievre.

It was the same with other classes of supplies, rations, forage fuel and oil, all came in huge bulk to this concentrating and distributing point, for this is one of the great nerve centers of supplies for the fighting men.

Here the trainloads are broken up into 15 parts, two cars to a part, and each part goes toward making a new "automatic train" carrying supplies of all kinds to the soldiers—15 trains a day automatically leaving for the front loaded with food or fighting material.

Puffing yard engines were doing the work of splitting up the trains and reforming new ones. Gradually the confused mass of cars, the bread and meat trains, melted away, and the 15 automatic trains took definite form. As they were completed they moved off to sidings to take their turn in the steady stream of trains moving out to the fighting front. This is the process, repeated day after day, in the formation of the automatic trains, that marvel of transportation that has so bewildered and surprised foreign observers.

The last stage as the supplies pass to the troops at the front is where the automatic train reaches the railroad of the division. Each American division has its fixed railroad, or terminal, where the train delivers its daily quota. This is as near the troops in the field as fighting conditions will permit. But in many cases it is not possible to bring the division's rail-head close to the front, so that in these cases camion transit fills the gap between the rail-head and the actual line.

A railroad officer is in charge at these points, reporting back nightly to headquarters here as to the strength of men and animals in the division, and its varying needs caused by active fighting or periods of repose. Thus each division rail-head becomes a regulating station for the needs of that fighting unit, while all of them are linked back here to this huge central regulating station, where the steady lines of supplies are kept moving forward.

AIRNAT VISITS OMAHA ENROUTE TO KELLY FIELD

Waterloo Aviator Visits Girl Friend While Flying Back to Field in Texas After Visit Home.

Lt. Milo Miller, U. S. A., aviator instructor at Kelly Field, Texas, "flew" to Omaha from Waterloo, Ia., for a short visit as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Wright and their daughter, Miss Elizabeth, 1322 South Thirty-fifth avenue, before he flies back to resume his duties at the Texas aviation school.

The aviator left Waterloo about 9 o'clock Friday morning and reached Omaha shortly after noon. He uses a large army biplane, Curtiss model, 110 horsepower, and flies at an average of 100 miles an hour.

Stopped Here Sunday.

Lieutenant Miller flew to Omaha last Sunday from San Antonio and made but three stops enroute. He flew from Omaha to Waterloo last Monday and has been visiting his parents there. He intended to make the trip to Omaha Thursday, but the downpour of rain prevented.

Deserter Wants to Come Home; Wife Asks Divorce

William J. Schultz, after an absence of 24 years from his home, recently wrote to his wife, Martha J. Schultz, Clifton Hill, stating that he was growing old, was lonely and in ill health, and asked for a reconciliation.

Mrs. Schultz replied by filing a petition for divorce in district court. She was granted a decree by Judge Day on Thursday.

Schultz left his wife with three small sons. During the years she and the sons accumulated a little property and she raised the sons to manhood. The long absence of her husband led her to believe that he had died. She obtained the divorce to quiet the title of her property.

Schultz is now in Des Moines.

MIKE CLARK'S COOK A FAILURE, SAY PRISONERS

R. H. Townley, attorney for 24 Industrial Workers of the World being held in the Douglas county jail as federal prisoners pending their trial of violating the espionage act, appeared before Federal Judge Woodrough Friday and filed an application asking that they be transferred to some other jail where more homelike conditions prevail.

The application is a long three-page affair, setting forth a full and sufficient in nourishing qualities, often to the degree of nauseating to those with delicate stomachs. They do complain that Mike Clark's cook is a failure in the culinary art, that "the rice and oatmeal for breakfast is improperly cooked." They say that the milk is diluted, and that some of their members have fallen off terribly in weight, in one instance to the extent of 40 pounds.
