Especially during the first half of the session, urgent orders almost without exception were to sell, and buy-ing support displayed a noticeable lack of vigor. Bulletins, telling of the spread of revolution in Germany and about chances of a suspension of the draft in the United States, acted as an evident handlcap on the bulls, but were partly offset later by gossip that the shipping beard would make every effort now to rush food and other supplies to Europe. The November erop report from Wash-ington proved to be substantially identi-cal with advance estimates here. Oats showed more firmmess than corn as a result of Improved shipping de-mand.
