

WORKERS READY FOR U. W. W. DRIVE START MONDAY

More Than Two Thousand Will Begin Task of Raising Big Quota Here at Seven in Morning.

Late sleepers in Omaha Monday morning had better prepare for an early rising!

Promptly at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning more than 2,500 men and women war workers in Omaha will start to raise the United War Work campaign quota of $325,000 and as much more as possible. The nationwide drive will last until November 18 and Omaha workers plan to get an early start.

Members of the committee who will solicit contributions in this for the seven war organizations, the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Knights of Columbus, Jewish Welfare board, the War Camp Community service, the American Library association and the Salvation Army, have their work mapped out.

House-to-house Canvass.

More than 1,500 women will make a house-to-house canvass and any one at home will be asked to contribute generously to the fund. Women lieutenants will have charge of the actual canvassing, captains will compile the "returns" and make reports to the various majors in charge of Greater Omaha districts.

Men will have charge of the business section of the city, each block being under the supervision of a lieutenant, who will see that none are overlooked or forgotten in the drive for the individual share in this, "the greatest gift in all history." Every worker in Omaha will be asked to donate two days' pay to the fund and indications Saturday were that none would refuse this comparatively small donation for such a great and worthy cause.

To add stimulus to the great drive the officials in charge have arranged for various forms of entertainment on the streets of the city Monday and for the remainder of the week.

Monday noon there will be a "hut race" staged by the soldiers of Fort Omaha. Two groups of soldiers will assemble at Sixteenth and Farnam streets promptly at 12 o'clock, accompanied by auto trucks in which are war huts un assembled. The trucks will proceed to the court house and following a pistol shot, the two groups of soldiers will race up Farnam street to the court house and there unload the huts and erect them, racing with time and each other. One will be a Knight of Columbus hut and another a Y. M. C. A. hut. Short talks will follow this event.

Monday night at 7:30 on the steps of the court house a free, open-air vaudeville program will be held. Several actors and actresses from the Omaha theaters will appear. The vaudeville will be followed by a demonstration of going "over the top," by Omaha firemen, who will demonstrate by the use of a large ladder truck. They will scale the ladder against time. Spot lights will be thrown on the ladders.

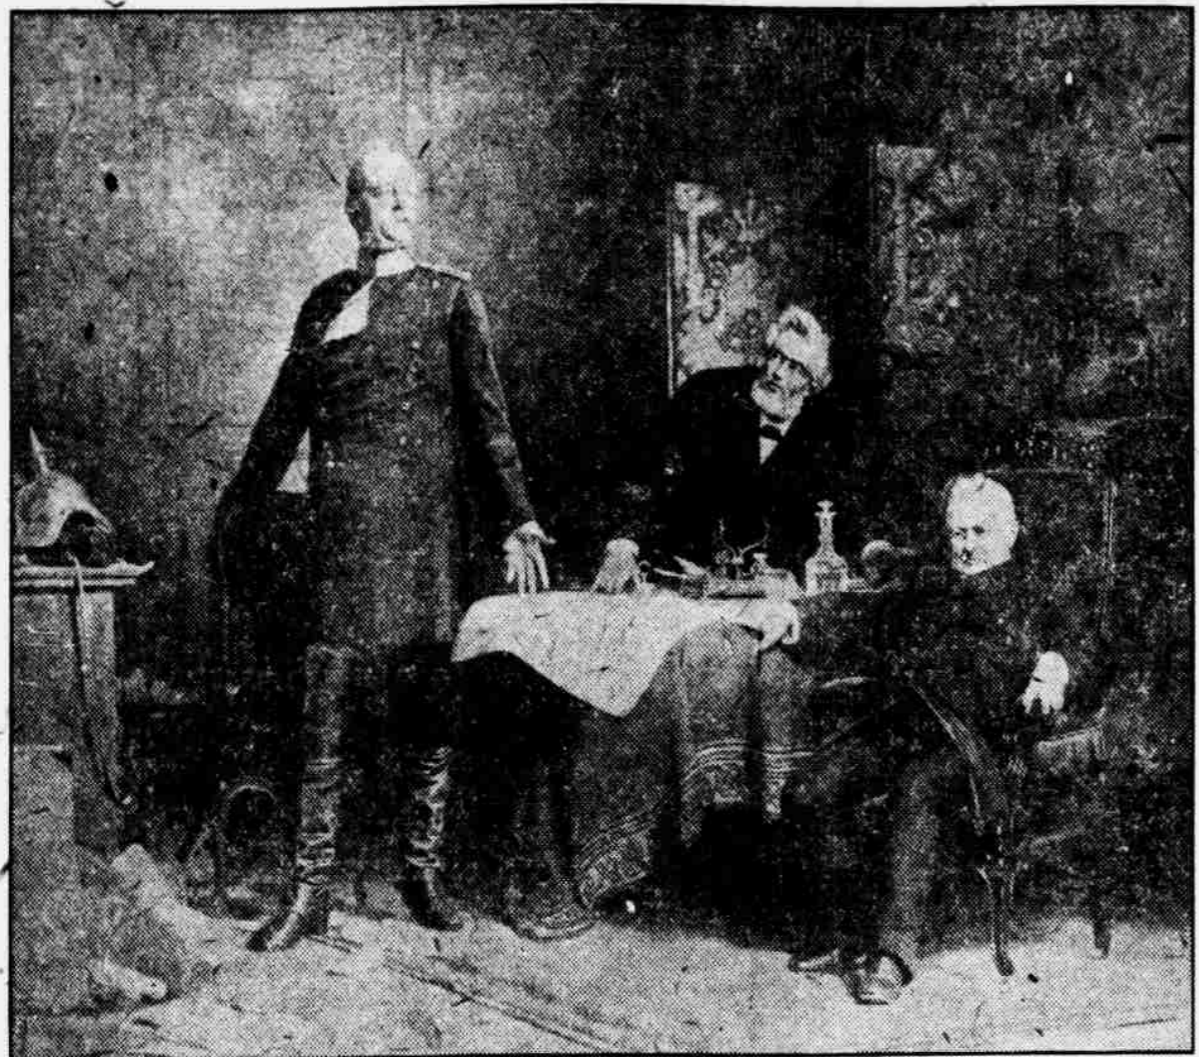

Also, during Monday night an electrically lighted auto truck, designed by Gus Renze and headed as a dazzling display of artistic work, will carry the Fort Omaha Glee club about the principal parts of the city and short concerts will be given. The truck will stop at from 40 to 50 street corners in both the residential and business section of the city.

As Bismarck Dictated Peace Terms, So, Also, Will Germany Heed and Listen

The accompanying picture dates back to May 10, 1871, and portrays Bismarck in the conquered city of Versailles, dictating the terms of peace which concluded the Franco-Prussian war.

The picture from which this print was made belongs to Mr. and Mrs. A. J. H. Thompson, 717 South Eighteenth street, who came to this country in 1874 from the Dutchy of Schleswig to escape the oppression which Germany was enforcing upon that little band of people, the land which she had forcibly wrested from Denmark in 1848.

The picture hangs in one of the great galleries of Berlin and has been revered by the German people for years.

Standing in the right of the picture is Chancellor Bismarck, dictating in cold-blooded deliberation the most harsh terms of peace which were ever enforced upon a conquered nation in civilized times.

At the left and seated in front of the table is Monsieur Thiers. In the center at the rear, is Monsieur Favre, the two French commissioners to whom Bismarck is haughtily dictating the terms which he intends to impose upon the prostrate nation and to whom he is making it clear that it is his purpose to utterly crush the French nation beyond all hope of recovery.

The surrender of Alsace and Lorraine, and the payment of 5,000,000 francs to the German government, with the provision that the conquering army should continue to occupy the invaded territory until the last franc should be paid in full were the terms imposed.

If Bismarck, thought he had crushed his enemy, he reckoned without his host, for with the signing of the treaty of Frankfurt, two great nations were born.

Napoleon, III, was forced to abdicate his throne and the French republic was established and the North German Federation gave way to the United German Empire with King Wilhelm as Emperor and Chancellor Bismarck raised to the rank of prince.

Quietly, but systematically, the French republic set about to rebuild its devastated ruins and to reconstruct its government upon the firm principles of democracy, while the German empire, encouraged by a series of successful wars based upon the motto of the "iron handed" Bismarck that "might makes right," set out to build up a mighty military machine which should ultimately rule the world.

Ferdinand Foch was a lieutenant in the army destroyed by the arms of Prussia. He saw all the glory with which the German people bedecked the Strassburg statue, and

"Sweets and Goodies High," Writes South Sider From Over There

Private John Vacek, son of John Vacek of the South Side, proprietor of the Vacek department store, writes from overseas that everything is O. K. over there, "but sweets and goodies come high." Vacek is with the Three Hundred and Thirty-six Engineers company in France. He was formerly department manager of the Vacek store. Following is his letter in part:

"Everything is O. K. over here and I am feeling as good as when I left home."
"Things over here are scarce and very costly, but we have a small canteen in our camp where we can buy chocolate for 10 cents a bar, cigarettes are 15 cents a package, and sweet cookies are 20 cents a package."
"The people of France are real good to us and we get all the grapes and wine that we desire, but I have no desire for the beverage as I have seen how it is made and the less I drink of it the better off I will be."

"The weather is still warm over here, but we have been issued our woollen clothing."

Conductor Sends Greetings.

Joe Sodamek, who lives in Brown Park and was formerly conductor on the Crosstown line, is in our company and asks to be remembered to his friends on the South Side.

"I am to be transferred to another camp to attend a school of intelligence along with a number of other fellows of our company."

Skinner Packing Plant Rapidly Taking Shape

Work is progressing on the new Skinner packing house, under construction on the South Side. All footings are laid except those in the sub-basement, the big gravity cement mixer is at work and the walls of the two large shipping docks are practically completed.

These docks extend the full length of the building on the north and south and are 328 feet long.

A large boiler on the grounds heats the building materials by pipes run along the ground under the 330 carloads of sand, stone and lumber which is now on the ground, and enables the construction work to go on all winter except on extremely cold days.
