

South Side DELEGATES ARE LUNCH GUESTS AT STOCK YARDS

Union Company Entertains Two Hundred; Market Situation Is Subject of Talks.

More than 200 delegates to the Nebraska Farmers' Co-operative Grain and Live Stock association convention were entertained at a luncheon by the Union Stock Yards company at the Stock exchange lunch room Thursday.

W. B. Tagg, president of the National and Omaha Live Stock exchanges, who presided as toastmaster, spoke of the present market situation and the embargo put on the shipment of hogs to various eastern and southern markets to relieve the overcrowded condition of the hog market and give the packers a chance to pick up in their killing and curing of pork.

He made a plea to the farmers to hold their light stock until it was heavier, saying there was no danger of the hog market going very much lower for some months to come.

McCulloch Says, "Hold." Bruce McCulloch, editor of the Daily Drivers Stockman-Journal, urged farmers and shippers to hold their light stock and not glut the market. He said: "When the boys come back they will not be the same and conditions will not be the same. We have a great responsibility to face. We must co-operate with them, and make a newer and better country both for them and ourselves. Old social, financial and class distinctions that existed for 100 years in this country will all be wiped out. There must be a readjustment, and you men will need to help in the readjustment. Co-operation is the word."

"We have now one of the greatest markets in the world and we hope soon to make it the greatest. In the last 10 years we handled 7,000,000 head of live stock. Inside of 10 years we will handle 14,000,000 head, and do it easier than we did the 7,000,000."

Toasts were responded to by J. H. Bulla, president of the state sanitary board, J. S. Canaday of Minden, new president of the association, and Everett Buckingham, vice-president and general manager of the Union Stock Yards company. Excellent music was furnished by Al Fairbrothers' band.

P. D. Armour to Visit South Side Packing Plant Friday

If nothing occurs to change his mind at the eleventh hour, P. D. Armour, head of the great Armour packing concerns, and F. E. White, vice-president of the Armour company, will visit the local plant of the corporation Friday.

"Mr. Armour has promised to visit the Omaha plant at different times during the last three years," said R. C. Howe, manager of the Omaha unit, "and on several different occasions started for this city, but each time something happened that caused him to change his mind. This is the nearest he has come to visiting Omaha in that period of time and will not be certain he is here until the moment I set my eyes on him."
