ESTIMATE FOR ARMY OF 500,000

estimates its needs at $1,922,000,000 in 1920, as compared with the $1,274,000,000 appropriated for this year.

Before the armistice it had been figured that the army alone would need more than $19,000,000,000 for 1920.

The navy's estimates for 1920 are $2,595,000,000, as compared with $1,591,000,000 appropriated for the current year, an increase of $1,000,000,000, despite the closing of the war.

There is nothing to show what it would estimate the navy would have needed had the war continued.

May Be Further Cut. These estimates may be pared down considerably when the actual needs of the government in closing out war contracts become clearer.

Including $574,237,000 estimated for fortifications, the total contemplated outlay on the army amounts to $2,497,000,000. A striking figure in the army estimates is the $144,943,000 for air service production.

The appropriations last year under this head were $760,000,000. It is evident that the War department is proposing to continue construction and manufacture of aircraft on a fairly large scale.

The largest single reduction from the appropriations for this year for the army is in pay, travel and general expenses, the new estimate for next year being $327,678,000 as against $2,367,000,000 appropriated for this year.

Similarly large reduction is made in quartermaster's estimates for supplies, clothing, quarters, including cantonments and similar expenses, the new figure being $911,789,000, as compared to $5,451,000,000 appropriated for this year.

Postoffices Get Ax. The shipping board asks $500,000,000 for building ships already authorized by congress, $60,000,000 for operation of vessels, $17,451,000 for recruiting and training officers and crews and $1,453,000 for incidental administration expense.

The item of $893,000,000 as interest on public debt includes provision for meeting the semi-annual payments on Liberty bonds already outstanding and those to be issued in the near future.

There is small provision for post-offices and other public buildings and for river and harbor improvements. Only $1,567,000 is included in the estimates for buildings, mostly for continuing construction already under way.

About half of the $19,870,000 for rivers and harbors is for maintenance or continuation of existing projects; $5,000,000 is asked as a general fund for use by the secretary of war and $4,000,000 for flood control on the Mississippi river.

Establish Sinking Fund. There is provision in the estimate for $287,000,000 for the establishment of a sinking fund, reported perfunctorily in previous years.

In the face of tremendous public debt, however, it is regarded as probable that congress now will provide for a redemption fund with which to pay bonds when they fall due in future years.

The estimated total of $7,443,000,000 does not include this item nor $358,307,000 for postal service, the needs of which are covered automatically by appropriations, but are met directly from postal revenues.

Keep Up Insurance. That officials count on the continued functioning of the war risk insurance bureau to administer soldiers' and sailors' insurance and compensation payment is indicated by the request for $12,367,000 for administration expense.

Payments to soldiers and sailors, or their dependents, on account of compensation, or government allowances, are expected to run to nearly $120,000,000. Ten millions is the estimated cost of collecting customs and administering customs regulations.

than one wound, but few would talk of the incidents of battle that had sent them on stretchers from European trenches.

At the pier military discipline succeeded the freedom that had brought officers and men side by side to the rails for the first view of "Little Old New York."

Units were quickly formed and after hot refreshments had been served by Red Cross workers the contingents marched aboard ferry boats, which conveyed them to Long Island tugs.

Notwithstanding the announcement that no parade would be held, thousands of persons lined the streets leading to the East river ferry, but they were disappointed in the hope even of seeing the troops in procession across the city.

With the exception of a few hundred men the troops from the Mauretania were in aviation squadrons. They were greeted by a committee from the Aero Club of America, which chartered a tug and met the Mauretania down the bay.

To shouts of youngsters in khaki that they were "looking for a square meal," officers of the club invited the airmen to dine at the organization's headquarters. Indeed to every passing craft and to officials at the pier the soldiers voiced their longing for "some real eats."

No Parade Allowed. In a letter informing Mayor Hyland that a parade of the homecoming soldiers would not be permitted, Major-General Bell, commanding the department of the east, declared that "on the unanimous recommendation of the federal health authorities" the government had decided to keep returning troops from contact with the public "until they have undergone a sanitation process."

The senior army officer aboard the Mauretania was Col. H. C. Pratt of the air service.

Wounded men brought home on the Northern Pacific, it was announced, included members of the Fifty-fourth infantry, 10 engineer, six field artillery, two machine gun, two marine, one cavalry and one quartermaster units.

Passengers on the Northern Pacific included Frederick R. Keppel, third assistant secretary of war, in charge of army morale, and 37 army officers, among them Brig.-Gen. Thomas H. Rees and Charles I. Martin.

German Radicals Fail to Get Control of Big Wireless. Berlin, Dec. 2.—(By Associated Press.)—Radical socialists have not yet obtained control of the greater German wireless stations at Nauen and Konigswasserhausen, but independent socialists in connection with the Spartacus group have secured control of all home stations with a restricted radius.

Discover Plot. London, Dec. 2.—A plot to restore imperialism and secure the return of Emperor William has been discovered in Berlin, according to a dispatch from Amsterdam to the Express.

According to the dispatch, which was filed at Amsterdam on Friday, the chief men behind the plot were Field Marshal von Mackensen, General von Born and General Count Sixt von Arnim. Large sums of money are said to have been placed at the disposal of the leaders by munition makers.

The plot collapsed owing to the fact that a secret service agent overheard a telephone conversation. Many arrests have been made in Berlin and other cities, while the government has long lists of suspects, who had planned to seize members of the present government.

No direct evidence of William Hohenzollern's connection with the plot has been found, it is said, but it is believed that the outline of the plan was brought to Berlin by two of his suite who recently went to the German capital for the ostensible purpose of taking the wife of the former emperor to Amerongen, Holland.

Lt. Dr. Gustav Krupp von Bohlen is said to have been in control of the financial arrangements. Field Marshal von Mackensen is reported to have attempted to induce Field Marshal von Hindenburg to join, but the latter refused, saying that he intended to retire after the demobilization of the army.

The whole Prussian court, it is stated, was in sympathy with the plotters, and it is said that Prince von Buelow and Dr. George Michaelis, former imperial chancellor, had promised to help. The plan was to organize a provisional government under Field Marshal Mackensen, or some other military leader and then urge William Hohenzollern to return.

Francis Borrelli, assistant district attorney, said that he would look up the treaty rights of the United States and Holland to ascertain whether the former kaiser can be extradited to this country.

COOL RECEPTION FOR PRESIDENT AS GIVES TALK

delegation were present when the two houses assembled. Congressman Lobeck having arrived just as Speaker Clark's gavel fell. Representative Stephens and Shallenberger reached Washington Sunday.

Congressman-elect Andrews of the Fifth district was on the floor receiving the congratulations of old friends who had served with him in the Fifty-fourth congress.

Criticism of Message. Views on the message are necessarily varied, individual members seeing it from many angles. Messrs. Lobeck, Shallenberger and Stephens were of the opinion that it was "masterful" and let it go at that, but Representative Sloan had a different impression of its importance as a state paper.

Mr. Sloan said of the message: "The president's narrative of the war's progress and conclusion was one of his most ambitious rhetorical efforts, but he delivered it to an audience December in temperament as well as time."

"The paper was marked with uncertainty and lack of determination except in one particular, and that was that he was going to Europe to participate in the peace negotiations. He made a strong plea for approval, which he failed to receive. Evidently congress neither approves the president's going, nor commends the personnel of the commission."

Commission Not Satisfactory. "Our best blood and manhood were demanded by this government to fight the war. We are entitled to the highest statesmanship to meet the most exalted statesmanship of Europe to settle it. No democrat or republican, claims that we have it on the commission."

"Upon the public ownership question the president simply pointed out several ways that might be followed in disposing of it, recommending none."

"The message had too little decision where the public wanted decision, and too much on the one point where sober reconsideration would have been welcomed."

Representative Reavis said: "The message consisted largely of a review of troop shipments and proceeded to pass the buck on the railroad question with no recommendation to congress. In the present condition of the world's affairs the message is lamentable and disappointingly weak."

Judge Kinkaid said the message was disappointing in that the president failed to take the congress and the country into his confidence on the peace proposition.
