be shown Friday and Saturday and Saturday matinee. Charlotte Greenwood, as Letty, is ather naughty, very human and entirely lovable. The whole show is full of girls and there are 16 real song hits.

As the actors admit, the plot is up-to-the-second. Letty's husband, Tom, (played by Jask Pollard), and Gracie's husband, Harry, are sick of their wives and decide to "swap." They encounter a little difficulty in convincing their wives that it is the proper thing to do but finally the women promise to try the new plan for a week. A lot of things happen during that week.

Tom has written a rich aunt in New York about how big his family s about to be and she arrives on the scene with a baby carriage for a gift at a crucial moment and further complicates the situation. The play ends with the husbands joing back to their own homes and falling in love again with their "honest to goodness" wives. Oliver Morosco has produced the play, Elmer Harris, the lyrics and Earl Carroll, the music.

Robert Harron displays unusual histrionic ability as well as physical fortitude, for the action includes his lying for some time in a shell hole filled with water, after his experience in the rain storm.

Another day after this remains for you to enjoy one of the most pleasing Orpheum shows that has been offered this season. An elaborate operatic act, Mme. Doree's Celebrities, is presented with a cast of ten admirable vocalists who impersonate famous stars of grand opera. Julius Tannen, the most amusing monologist on the vaudeville stage, is another headline attraction. His humor has the distinctive stamp of his humorous personality. His dramatic recitation, 'The Father of the Marine," is yet another admirable feature of his performance. Albert Vertchamp, the
