Omaha Scattergun Shark Breaks Records in Iowa

Half Ton of Rabbits Fall Before Unerring Aim of Nimrod in Two Days' Shooting.

O. W. SCHENK. More than half a ton of rabbits, or, to be exact, 263 cottontails, fell before the shotgun used by O. W. Schenk, Omaha's champion hunter, who lives at 4838 South Twenty-fourth street, during a two days' hunt in which he engaged during his Christmas vacation in Johnson county, Iowa.

Schenk, by his marvelous shooting and his prowess as a nimrod in stirring up the rabbits, opened the eyes of the hunters of Iowa City. The great mass of game he brought in attracted the attention of scores of persons. When he started out it was with the intention of doing his "darndest," as he explained, and he purchased 500 shells. He was like Daniel Boone and Davy Crockett.

While he was in Iowa City Schenk was invited to participate in the shooting tournament held by the Johnson County Gun club in Iowa City. Blue rocks and clay pigeons, sprung as surprise chances, were the rule in the two principal events. He broke 47 out of a possible 50 Blue Rocks and 46 out of a possible 50 Clay pigeons, and was awarded a gold medal as first prize in the main events and was declared winner of the contest.

He made every shell count, and when he was through he had about 150 shells left. He sold the rabbits to local dealers at 5 cents per pound, realizing $60.30 for his two days of sport.

One of the most remarkable shots he made was at a bald eagle, which was flying over the hunting field at an estimated height of 175 yards. He brought it down on the wing and it measured seven feet four inches from the tip to tip of the wings. He is having the bird mounted, as it is one of the finest specimens of the proud bird of freedom that has ever been killed in the Hawkeye state.

NO IMMEDIATE PROSPECTS FOR WARM WEATHER

Thermometer Continues to Hover Around Zero; Same Conditions Extend to the Gulf.

Lincoln, Jan. 2.—The cold wave which began in Nebraska yesterday continued to prevail throughout the state today with no immediate prospect of high temperatures. Due to the intense cold, train traffic was greatly hampered and incoming trains from all directions were running behind schedule. Temperatures ranged from 12 degrees below zero at North Platte to zero at Omaha.

Western Iowa is also in the grip of severe winter weather, with temperatures as low as 10 degrees below zero.

The cold weather is putting train schedules all awry. Few of the trains are arriving on time and generally they are one to six hours late, it being impossible for the engines to make steam.

The cold weather has had the result of starting travel to California and the south and with the passing of the holidays a large movement is in sight. This year, however, it is going to cost the California tourists more than ever before to make the trip. In the past the round trip rate to California has been around $95 in addition to the dinner and sleeper. At times it has been down to $75 and occasionally as low as $50. This year, however, there is no cutting and about the best rate obtainable is $110 for the round trip. This does not include sleeper and meals.

Away Below Normal. Denver, Colo., Jan. 2.—Clearing weather, with slightly milder temperatures, was reported over the plains region at the Denver weather bureau today. Temperatures throughout the entire area, however, are still from 25 to 35 degrees below the normal for this time of year.

Zero weather was reported as far south as Amarillo, Tex., and in a westerly line from there to Flagstaff, Ariz. From there northward the zone extended as far west as Salt Lake City, centering in North Dakota.

Trains on all lines into Denver being arriving this morning, some as much as 48 hours late. All trains originating here left today and traffic men said the blockade had been lifted throughout the west.

Extends to Gulf. Dallas, Tex., Jan. 2.—The south-west opened the new year with the first cold weather of the winter. With the thermometer hovering around 10 degrees above zero in the northern part of the state, the cold extended way to the Gulf of Mexico. In Dallas the mercury went down to 18 degrees above, the coldest day since last January. The cold was preceded by a rain storm, which turned to sleet and snow when the temperature reached the freezing point. Authorities on agriculture agree that the snow will affect favorably small grains.
