Add to this vocal gift of hers that hard to define characteristic, an impressive personality and Mme. Galli-Curci stands out as one of the greatest singers ever heard. This is great good news indeed to the musical circles of Omaha. Mme. Galli-Curci was the sensation of the season when she appeared here in her first season under the auspices of the Tuesday Musical club. Many Omahans have been looking forward to her appearance for a long time, and barring any unforeseen complication this anticipation will be gratified next Friday evening. A news dispatch from Munich, dated December 23, reports the death, at Bayreuth, Bavaria, of Cosima Wagner, widow of the famous composer. Frau Wagner was 78 years old and her death was not unexpected as she had been in declining health for some time past. Frau Wagner was a daughter of Franz Liszt, and was married to Hans von Bulow before she became Frau Wagner. She and her son, Siegfried, have been the controlling artistic and executive heads of the Wagner Festprise at Bayreuth. She objected to the original Metropolitan production of "Parsifal." Dear Readers All:

Have you started your new calendars? Of course you wouldn't make the nonsensical mistake of writing the date 1918, but don't you have a terrible inclination to do so? Seems that everyone and all their friends and families have decided to make this a "beautiful" year, starting out, by attending every sale in town. My heart is quite satisfied for today I've helped several "Polly" friends choose "what you think most becoming," always a source of deepest joy.

If only we'd always be sincere with ourselves and get those things best expressing personality, individual garments not whims of ca-pricious taste. To be sure it takes time, lots of it, but that is what the fashion people are in the world for, to offer help in every way. Becoming taste in dressing is not due to locality (there are often very wonderful modes shown in our own western cities), it is largely a matter of comparative values. Study yourself and your possibilities, you'll be pleasantly surprised at the re-

You have, many of you, written asking the never-failing-in-interest query, "What will be worn?" Don't think me extravagant when say, everything! Just what this everything is to be, especially in the Omaha shops, will be better answered when the buyers return from the eastern fashion centers. Just now, Omaha's fashion folk are wearing charmingly attractive
