Out for Precedent. Senator Hoagland in introducing Berger Will Fight the measure said this was an extraordinary session of the legislature and he wanted the senate to establish a new precedent by an extraordinary action in placing the ratification resolution, which bore the title of Senate File No. 1, on its first reading as the first measure to come before the body during the session. This was accepted by the senate, which then adjourned to Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

A motion was also made that when the senate met in session Monday, 30 minutes of the time would devoted to a memorial to the soldiers and sailors from Nebraska who had died in the service while enlisted in the great war for universal democracy and liberty. This was unanimously adopted.

Delayed in House. The prohibitory ratification amendment was also adopted in the house, but was ruled out of order until the fourth day of the session and consequently went over until Monday, this congress." when consideration of the senate esolution on the measure will also be taken up.

Before the adjournment of the enate former Lieutenant Governor Howard presented, in a felicitious speech, two gavels, each of historic interest to his successor, Lieutenant Governor P. A. Barrows. Each of the gavels came from Plymouth, Mass., and were fashioned of historic oak and had pieces of the famous Plymouth Rock imbedded in

OF BOOZE ESCAPE

MEN THOUGHT TO

Nebraska City, Neb., Jan. 9.— (Special Telegram.)—Early today four cars passed over the Burling-ton wagon bridge here, throwing the toll money to the keeper as they went by. Officers stationed on the bridge tried to stop them, sus-pecting they had loads of whisky, but the speed of the cars was too high and the officers were forced to let them pass. As the last car was passing the officers found themselves covered by a gun in the hands of one of the occupants of the car. The man jumped out and made his escape, although the officers fired at him repeatedly. Later in the morning another car attempted to run past the officers. but it was stopped and two men arrested. When searched the car was ound to contain about 100 bottles of whisky. The men were lodged in jail, but refused to give their names.
