

OMAHA BOY BACK, TWICE WOUNDED BY HUN BULLETS

Peter Baltzer, Former National Guardsman, Tells Vivid Story of Fighting in France.

Active participation in the battles of Chateau-Thierry, Soissons, Marne, Argonne forest and the Somme was the experience of Peter Baltzer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Baltzer, 3174 Farnam street. Baltzer was wounded twice in the battles of the Marne and Chateau-Thierry, and was gassed in the Argonne forest.

He returned to the states on January 3, and is in Omaha today to visit his parents.

"The American boys fought with the grit of a superhuman," he said. "No sooner had we got foot on French soil last July than we were trained for Chateau-Thierry and started fighting the same day that we landed. Actually, the French forces in that sector were lost until we fellows from the old Fourth Nebraska went at the Hun. The English were worn out at Soissons, and we lent a hand. We had no chance for hand-to-hand bayonet fighting because the boches were on the run toward Berlin."

Twice Wounded.
Corporal Baltzer received machine gun bullets in the right ankle and mouth. From the day he landed in France he was with the 16th field artillery, which remained intact since July, 1918.

"From the time we took our stand in the trenches, we were not given rest. We were at the boches every minute of the day and night. Whether it was 'over the top,' reconnoitering duty or barrage firing, the 16th field artillery did their share."

When the Germans began an offensive on September 26, Corporal Baltzer was gassed in the Argonne forest.

"My squad was just trying to crawl through a barrage of the enemy, when a gas bomb exploded near us," he said. "One man ahead of me was killed instantly. Another to my left was wounded, and before I could put on my gas mask I was out for the count, with chlorine gas in my lungs."

Brings Home Trophies.
Corporal Baltzer still suffers minor effects of the gas. Scars of bullet wounds on his upper lip and ankle are also evident.
"I saw many Omaha boys over there, who went through the same hell that I went through, and all say they wouldn't sell their experience for a gold mine."

He brought home a grip full of German war trophies that he took from dead Huns. Corporal Baltzer enlisted in the old Fourth Nebraska infantry two years ago, and until last spring was on the Mexican border. He will get to Camp Dodge Monday to receive his discharge from the army.

Woman Sent to Jail Says Soldier Lured Her from Her Husband

Clara Divers, 508 South Thirtieth street, was sentenced to five days in the Douglas county jail yesterday after she pleaded guilty in federal court before United States Judge Munger to charges of prostitution within the five-mile zone limit.

She confessed to improper relations with a soldier stationed at Fort Omaha.

The woman told a strange story. She said that the soldier called her away from the side of her husband, and induced her to go upstairs with him. She admitted taking money from him.

George Hunt Makes Search in Omaha for Lost Daughter
The fatted calf will be killed for Margaret Hunt, daughter of George Hunt, 4708 South Twenty-seventh street, if she will return to her father.

In 1894 Mr. Hunt's wife died, leaving six children. Unable to care for them as he believed they should be cared for he placed them in an orphanage. A number of years later Mr. Hunt married again. Having a home, he decided to share it with his children.

He found his son, and four of his daughters, but the fifth daughter, Margaret, had left the orphanage and there was no trace of her whereabouts. Several months ago he received word that she was married and living on the South Side. He immediately left his home at Fairbury, Neb., and came to Omaha. He found employment at a packing house, and has since been carrying on a systematic search for his daughter but as yet been unable to locate her, or to discover the name of her husband. He has asked the Bee to aid him in his search.
