

SHADOWED MAN THINKS POLICE COME TOO OFTEN

Worker on Coal Wagon Says
He Was Visited by Thirteen Detectives, Each Flourishing Gun.

Climbing off a coal wagon, A. L. Willoughby came into the Bee office and said, "I want some one to get me right in this case. I've got some relatives in and around Omaha that might get frightened when they read the articles about me being arrested."

Dressed in overalls and jumper covered with coal dust, Willoughby asked, "Do I look like a bank robber?" He looked anything but a bank robber to say the least. A little indignant and somewhat amused, Willoughby told the story of his arrest.

Five detectives called at his house about 7 o'clock Monday evening and talked to him a little while. They left and in a little while there were thirteen of them with a gun and a flashlight each, and with two guns apiece, all drawn. One of them remarked, "I guess we got you, kid, this time," and others used some more rough talk. Even then they left without a prisoner but an hour or so later, four of them came back and said they'd have to take him down to the station.

Later Sent Home.
Arriving at the station, the officers put Willoughby in a room with a police officer and they went into another room. Then after some questioning on the part of the officers, the officers came back in and discussed the matter some more, winding up by sending for an auto and sending Mr. Willoughby home in it, when it was discovered he was arrested without a warrant.

Today Willoughby is being "shadowed" wherever he goes, causing him no little inconvenience. His friends are hailing him with "Hello Bankrobber" and other terms are used in "kidding" him about it. If Willoughby is a bank robber, he is also a "camouflage" artist, for he would never suspect him of hiding a little thing like $30,000 away.

The inconvenience started, when the sheriff at Mena, Ark., wired the Omaha police that a bank had been robbed near there and $30,000 removed. One of the robbers was supposed to have come to Omaha where he has a friend at 519 South Eighteenth street, and advising that the friend be "shadowed." The detectives misunderstood the telegram and after two calls at this address, finally arrested Mr. Willoughby, who lives there and was probably having coal when the bank robbery took place.

Wants "Guys" Called Off.
Willoughby declared that if the police thought he was a bank thief or connected with them in any way, they didn't have to wait for extradition papers, but just furnish him with the fare and he'd go to Arkansas and prove his innocence. He said "I wish they'd get the real robbers and call these guys off of me. I'm getting tired of having someone tagging around after me when I go to deliver a load of coal."

He is amused at the suspected bank thief to think of the officers, thirteen of them, all pulling guns on him. Three of them having two guns each made it 16 guns held on him while they talked.

Chateau-Thierry Hero Married Two Days After Receiving His Discharge

War and romance seem to be inseparably linked. This it is that William Ralph Wade who has seen nearly a year of active fighting in France and who was wounded in the Chateau-Thierry engagement, was married to Miss Marie Berg of Omaha at Minneapolis just two days after receiving his discharge at Camp Dodge. They are happily established in their new home at 2415 Capitol avenue.

Mr. Wade before his discharge was corporal in company C, Twenty-third infantry, second division. He enlisted on April 19 and left for France from Hoboken September 6, 1917.

After a training spell of six months Mr. Wade's company was ordered to aid in holding the Verdun sector.

Here Mr. Wade went over the top twice before he succeeded in getting his boche.

In the latter part of May he was transferred to the Chateau-Thierry front.

"I was here until June 29, under constant shell fire," he said.

Mr. Wade was wounded while patrolling this sector. He lay in a shell hole for about 10 hours before being picked up by the stretcher bearers and taken to a dressing station.

He was invalided home November 13 and discharged at Camp Dodge on January 16. Two days later he was married.

He is now seeking a position in Omaha.

Lieut. George R. Bierman is back from "Over There."

Lt. George R. Bierman, former city ticket agent for the Union Pacific and later chief clerk in the Chicago offices is home from four and one-half months of overseas service as a member of the Blackhawk division. Last July Mr. Bierman entered the army as a private and returns as a lieutenant. While he had no part in the fighting, he was on the move to the front and when the unit was signed, was 20 miles from the firing line. He was close enough so that he heard the roar of the big guns.

Second Suit Against Keeline for Automobile Accident

Maria F. Kaseft has filed a damage action in district court against Arthur E. Keeline, pelting him for $25,000 damages on account of an automobile accident which occurred at Twenty-eighth and Farnam streets during the evening of January 11.

Another damage suit in connection with the same accident was for $50,000.

FLASHES from FILMLAND PHOTO-PLAY OFFERINGS FOR TODAY

AFTER a two months' vacation, Constance Talmadge returns again to the screen in a new and fascinating comedy drama, "A Lady's Name," which will be the booking at the Strand theater and for the remainder of this week. The scenario is written from the play by the same name by Cyril Harcourt. Effervescent Miss Talmadge appears in the role of a young woman novelist—not the short-haired bearded type, but a buoyant, whimsical soul who, in the search for literary material, gets herself engaged to a butler, through the medium of advertising for a husband in the daily papers. How she finally works out of the engagement into the arms of the man who loves and wishes to marry her is a confusing and amusing series of events that holds plenty of laughs for an audience and much clever acting on the part of the star.

Anna Case, well known prima donna, makes her bow to American motion picture audiences this month in her first screen effort, "The Hidden Truth." In the play she portrays the part of a dance hall girl in a western mining town and later as a member of society in New York. It is quite a step from the opera, but Miss Case seems to have proven that she can act as well as sing from all reports coming as to the picture.

"The Talk of the Town," the attraction at the Brandeis theater for the remainder of the week, is a direct wallop at parents who bring their children up to be prudes and in too strict seclusion.

Harold Bell Wright's novel, "The Shepherd of the Hills," with a photo-play is shown in ten reels and forms an evening's entertainment, being the attraction at the Brandeis theater all next week.

Kitty Gordon says of "Adele," in which she appears at the Mueh next week, "It is the finest picture I have ever seen. It is an opinion which is borne out by Robert Brunton of the Brunton Studios, Los Angeles, who states, 'the star is happy in her role, the story is strong, the supporting players the most versa-

AT THE THEATERS

WILLIAM FAVERSHAM and Maxine Elliott, at the head of a specially organized company, will open a week-end engagement at the Boyd this evening, presenting "Lord and Lady Algy." Mr. Faversham has been seen here in this play, but never by Miss Elliott. The combination, formed last season, was remarkably successful in New York, where the good old comedy was revived and proved a wonderful drawing card. Request for seats here indicate that the stars and the play are locally quite popular.

Three of the subordinate acts this week at the Orpheum score individual hits. One is the singing and piano feature, "Bright Bits of Mirth and Melody," offered by Florence Merritt and Gaby Bridwell. Another is the pantomime clowning of Reno, and yet another is Officer Vokes with Don, the inebriated canine. Headline attractions are the spectacular melodrama, "On the High Seas" and the most effective teller of humorous stories on the vaudeville stage, Walter C. Kelly.

An entire change of program greets Empress patrons today, the vaudeville program being headlined by Daisy Dugas and Variety Four in a singing number. The three Portia Sisters introduce feats never before attempted by women. Billy Gelet in banjo, songs and stories and McCormick and Wallace in a comedy singing and talking number completes the program.

Shades of Shakespeare or whoever wrote "Cleopatra"—if he could but have known in what a ludicrous manner Fred Krone's "Show Me" would burlesque his work surely he never would have written it! The travesty is but one of the many rich portions of the entertainment at the Gayety this week. It is placed way down at the close of the program so that auditors are unable to finish laughing until they are well out of the theater and homeward bound.

Ladies' matinee daily.

Gould Dietz Sells Lots on Farnam for Big Advance in Price

The first sale of Omaha real estate, for investment purposes, of any consequence in several months was made Tuesday, when Gould Dietz sold a frontage of 72 feet, 2205-79 Farnam street, running through to Harney, to J. F. Flack. The consideration was approximately $100,000. Harry Wolf made the sale.

This property was purchased by Mr. Dietz in 1903 for $16,000. He purchased at that time a total of 240 front feet and reports that this sale netted him more money than his original investment. He retains 168 front feet.

A one-story garage fronting Farnam street is the only building on the property purchased by Mr. Flack. The Harney street front is vacant. Mr. Flack has no plans for improving the property at the present time, but will build for a suitable tenant.

"TIZ" FOR TIRED AND SORE FEET

Use "Tiz" for puffed-up, burning, aching, calloused feet and corns.

Why go limping around with aching, puffed-up feet—feet so tired, chafed, sore and swollen you can hardly get your shoes on or off? Why don't you get a 25-cent box of "Tiz" from the drug store now and gladden your tortured feet?

"Tiz" makes your feet glow with comfort; takes down swellings and draws the soreness and misery right out of feet that chafe, smart and burn. BLACK HELD FOR HELPING WOMEN FLEE FROM HOME

Special Officer Charged With Taking One Hundred Dollars for Release of Two Inmates.

Jesse Black, negro, special officer stationed at the Women's Detention hospital, Twenty-second street and St. Mary's avenue, has been arrested on a charge of bribery in connection with the escapes of inmates of the institution.

The specific information that has been filed against him by the county attorney charges him with soliciting $100 for the release of Gladys Thompson and Emma Brown during November. The Thompson woman did escape.

Details of the affair furnished to the county attorney by the police are that Black asked for $100 and was given a note by Mrs. Thompson to her husband, George Thompson, 709 North Eighteenth street. When Black called on Thompson the latter is said to have given the caller $50.

Held in Jail.
Black is held at the city jail for appearance in court on Friday morning. His bond has been fixed at $2,000. He stated that he is ready for trial.

Mr. Thompson has been in conference with Chief of Police Eberstein.

Next Friday will be moving day for the Women's Detention hospital. It will be moved from the handsome, spacious old Woolworth mansion at Twenty-second and St. Mary's avenue to the old county jail building, Eleventh and Dodge streets.

Jail Renovated.

The jail building has been undergoing renovation and is now open and ready for occupancy. It is a far less pleasant neighborhood than the Woolworth property, which consists of a handsome home set in the midst of a large yard.

The first floor of the old jail building will be used as a living room by the inmates. On the second and third floors are the dormitories furnished with double-deck iron beds. On the fourth floor are the kitchen and dining room.

Police Commissioner Ringer says he believes the women will like it.

"Only a very trifling percentage of those confined in the hospital do not like it," he said. "One girl, Alice, who broke her leg in trying to escape the first day she was there likes the place so well now that her only worry is that she will have to leave when she is cured."

"VIRTUOUS WIVES"

(Copyright, 1918, by Little, Brown & Co.)

CHAPTER III.

At the age of 12, two years after the death of her mother, her father, in a moment of poignant affection, had said to Amy:

"Whatever you wish in this world, my little girl, tell me. You shall have it." Of how deeply her first lesson had cut into his capital, she had not the slightest conception. Her aunt had never interposed an objection to her whim.

Whatever she wanted, she bought for shopping was such fun.

"I am ready for his order, madam."

A trim young Japanese, in white pique, wobbled in, smiling. The blue eyes of Mrs. Forrester assumed an expression of appropriate gravity.

"We'll be two at luncheon," she said, frowning with the intensity of the mental effort involved. There was a pause.

"Bouillon—some fish?" She nodded and said firmly, "Yes—then after the fish a filet mignon."

"How?"

"Oh, with—" She came to a full stop. "Just fix it up in some nice way and get whatever's best in fresh vegetables. Then some sort of a salad and a dessert—the kind you made yesterday. And, Quito, we'll be going away over Sunday."

A long pause. "Get whatever's necessary for the kitchen."

Quito disappeared, smiling his toothy, Oriental smile, while Mrs. Forrester, these fatiguing household duties accomplished, returned to her reveries.

She felt that she had nothing to do. The third month of her married life found her restless and bewildered, and if to Andrew their marriage seemed the resolution of all his perplexities, to her it appeared the opening of all her problems. The sensation of being abandoned, isolated, and alone possessed her completely in the gorgeous apartment of which her hands had not chosen a single bit of furniture.

Only Half Near East Sufferers' Fund Obtained Thus Far

Only 50 per cent of the $85,000 pledged by the Advertising and Selling league for Douglas county has as yet been raised and plans for a more aggressive campaign were made by the captains of the drive at the Henshaw today.

Mr. C. L. Sykes, chairman of the local Armenian relief drive stated that although the people of Omaha seemed willing to make the contributions there were not enough solicitors to see the people and get their contributions. He also stated that Omaha business men were not responding with contributions sufficiently large.

How had it happened? She had passed through her first season without time for any other emotion but the appetite for changing fashions and multiple sensations. She had been sufficed with too much success. Her physical self had lived before breakfast for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup company."—Adv.

At this moment Elin Nordstrum burst into the room and precipitated herself into her arms, almost upsetting the chaise longue in the ardor of her embrace.

ARE YOU A FIGHTER?

Or, Are You a Fatalist?
Let Every Citizen Fight Disease. Never Surrender.

The Big Gun of Defense is Cadomene Tablets—Tonic.

What class suffered most from the epidemic of influenza? Authorities everywhere agree that those in a temporary state of "low vitality" made up the major portion of fatalities.

If you are a fatalist, you will not believe in preparedness, but if you are a "fighter" you will see the wisdom of keeping your body and nervous system strong so that disease will not find fertile soil in which to carry on its ravages.

Medicine rightly used at the right time is like the "Big Gun in War." If your vitality is low, you "catch cold" all too readily, you are weak, nervous and ailing with aches and pains of unknown origin, you tire easily and are irritable and often sleepless at night; digestion is faulty, liver and bowels irregular, appetite fickle and you never feel bright and happy as you once did. Strange tremors seize you, memory seems failing and many of the joys of life are denied you, through lack of energy and ambition.

These great Cadomene Tablets were formulated by a brilliant medical man, just for the treatment and restoration to health of those who suffer as perhaps you do.

Millions of packages have been sold in the past few years, and your druggist can supply you, and help you fight disease conditions.—Adv.
