

South Side SAYS OMAHA BEE LIKE GETTING CASH FROM HOME

Local Boy Writes of Receiving Paper While in France; Wounded in St. Mihiel Drive in September.

A letter was received at the South Side Bee office from Emil R. Kasner, of 1820 O street, South Side, now with the American expeditionary forces in France.

"Just a line to let you know that I received one of your newspapers the other day," he writes. "It was just like getting money from home without asking for it. I am in the camp detachment at La Courvine, France. Was wounded slightly during the St. Mihiel drive on September 12.

"I notice by The Bee that they are going to urge every Omahian to join the Red Cross roll. Believe me, they ought to join, because the nurses are certainly the mothers to wounded soldiers. After I was wounded we rode on a Red Cross train for some distance. The Red Cross nurses were very good to us. Gave us cigars, hot chocolate and coffee. But best of all they spoke American. They were the first American girls I had seen in France.

"We have had quite a few bouts with Fritz, and although we had some casualties, Fritz had more. I left Funston in May in the Three Hundred and Forty-first machine gun company, with quite a few other Omahian boys. I don't know who sent me The Bee, but I thank him and hope he—or she—will send some more. Give my Omahian friends my best regards."

Young Kasner was a former member of the Mazdas and Nonpareil football teams. He was well known in athletic circles about the city. In his letter to The Bee he enclosed two "Overseas" post cards, advocating the purchase of Liberty bonds. One, which pictures a limitless expanse of huge ships, is captioned by the following: "We are about this many shells at the Huns every few seconds, Liberty bonds will buy more." The other card is a photograph of a fleet of tanks, extending over what seems to be a limitless expanse of territory. "The Huns don't like these tanks now, and if you buy more Liberty bonds they will like them less," is the statement on it.

January, 1919, Broke High and Low Record of the Hog Market

The month of January 1919 saw the breaking of two hog records on the South Omaha market. The low day's receipts in the history of the market were Friday when one car of hogs was unloaded. This low mark is due to the embargo.

January exceeded all months on hog receipts although frequent embargoes tended to keep them down. Had no embargoes been imposed General Manager Everett Bucklingham estimates that the receipts for the month would have exceeded the half million mark. The receipts of hogs for the month were 449,301 head. January 1917 was the nearest to equalling this record when 441,104 head was received.

Omaha Girls Suffer from "Nerves," Says Miss Marie Hoiness

Omaha girls do not play enough. They do war work, church work and other work, but don't play. This fact was brought out at a conference of girls' work leaders held in the Girls' Community house Friday afternoon.

"The absence of the play side in most girls' organizations is marked," said Miss Frances Range of the War Camp Community service. Miss Marie Hoiness of Scandinavian Y. W. C. A. reported Omaha girls were suffering from "nerves."

"That's the reason. If there was more play and physical culture, there would be less 'nerves,'" said Miss Vlasta Sterba, city recreational director. The importance of play and community singing in directing girls' activities in the right direction was emphasized by most of the speakers.

Other girl problems, nonemployment with the return of soldiers; that of the out-of-town girl who seeks work in the city and that of war brides and war mothers occupied much of the discussion. Meetings of the girls' work leaders will be held from time to time to outline a course of action.

Miss Range made an appeal for volunteer directors for club units, dramatics, sings, swimming, hikes, games, folk dancing, basketry, French and nursing classes.

"He Married You for a Meal Ticket," Judge Says, Giving Divorce

"I guess he married you to get a meal ticket," was the comment of Judge Day yesterday afternoon, as he signed a decree of divorce, releasing Bessie Norton from her marital obligations to John F. Norton, and restoring her former name of Bessie Beers.

Mrs. Norton was married in Lincoln on September 11, 1918, after an acquaintance of four months and two weeks with the man whose name she was anxious to discard. She related that she had $250 at the time of her marriage, and Norton thought she had more. After four weeks at her expense, Norton deserted her, leaving her a note which read, "Farewell to thee."

"He had four or five jobs in one week and did not work long enough at any one place to have a payday," was the plaint of the young woman, who appeared more cheerful when the court granted her a decree.
