Chowders

One of the things the war did for us along food lines, was to make us willing to try new foods, and hence become acquainted with the special dishes of foreign countries and far parts of our own country.

It is a person has ever lived on the sea coast for any length of time, especially on the New England coast, he has learned to enjoy fish chowders.

While the original chowder was a fish dish, it is possible to make a delicious corn chowder, or to substitute meat or poultry for the fish.

Chowder. 1 lb. fish, fresh or canned or salt. 1/2 c. diced carrots. 2 medium sized (may be omitted). 2 fish cubes of salt. 2 c. milk. pork, or 2 T. fat. Salt and pepper.

Cut the salt pork into small pieces, and try it out with the onion for five minutes. Or cook the onion in the fat for the same length of time. Add potatoes, diced, and cover with boiling water.

Rabbit Chowder. Add meat cut into small pieces, with the vegetables. It is advisable, if meat is not very tender, to cook

Heart Beats

By A. K. He is a soldier Stationed at Fort Crook And he doesn't mind Soldiering when He is not thinking of A certain little Girl who lives Among the hills On South Thirty—street. But we found out this— That he hates the Fort When it comes time To make the journey On the "Overland Limited" At midnight after spending A pleasant evening And sometimes the price Of a show Or a good dinner Or any other thing which This young lady Happens to fancy But most of all He likes the atmosphere Of her cozy home And the log fire And mother and The piano, But when the coo-coo Called time on him At 11 o'clock The other night He sighed and said "Well, I should worry When I have An all night pass." But the young lady Sighed an accompaniment To his remark which Sounded much like this: "Well, I haven't An all night pass, So he hid himself To the furnace room And banked the fire And came back Upstairs and informed His hostess that he Believed he would stay At the hotel that night. But when he counted his Cash he sighed again And smiled And decided to take The "Overland Limited" Back to the Fort. IT'S A SAD LIFE!

Advice to the Lovelorn

"G" writes a storyette which points out that the color of a girl's face does not indicate her character—in three instances she knows of in her boarding school.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Storyette. Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I have been reading your column, especially since the "hand painted dolls" have been discussed, and have enjoyed it thoroughly.

Although I missed C. O. A.'s letters, I infer, from the other letters I have read, that C. O. A. is prejudiced to said "hand painting" and that he criticizes the character of girls who do so.

For the last two years I have been attending a girls' boarding school, and have had a chance to study three types of girls—all from the best families.

"Lucille" was a plain girl, used no powder nor paint, dressed simply, and seemed a quiet sort of girl. Yet she was bad, or, perhaps, I should say, her ideals were not the highest.

"Marian" was rather striking in appearance, she only looked more pleasing to the eye, when a touch of paint was added to her cheeks. I say she was attractive because she had a ready smile for every one, she loved in "fair play" was a "sport" to break the rules, but also a sport to report herself and take the punishment without grumbling.

All three girls were popular with the same boys, but in three different ways. "Lucille" and "Marian" were never "rushed" at the dances, though both were good dancers. They were seldom asked to go to the opera or any place where the boys' parents were to be.

After all— isn't it the heart of the girl that counts? I'll admit that "Adelaide" received the flowers and candy, the attention and admiration of all— yet "Adelaide" painted.

My opinion was printed January 30th, in the Evening Bee, and January 31 in the Morning Bee.

As to Invitations. Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: We have a question we would like to have you answer in The Bee for us.

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: We are two girl friends of the age of 18 and 17 and have been reading your column daily and would like to say a few things about "Should women paint and powder?"

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I am a girl 19 years old and live in the country. We have quite a few parties. A boy of 17 mostly takes me. He does not like it if I talk to the other boys. There is a certain boy who some time ago was my best friend. Whenever I talk to him the fellow that takes me to the parties gets jealous, and will scold me about it on the way home. What would you advise me to do, as I do not like to "scrap" with him? PUZZLED.

You are a very foolish girl in my estimation, and I can see that the jealousy of your friend pleases you immensely. Give him to understand that you are entitled to any number of boy friends you wish.

To Keep Thin. Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I am a constant reader of The Bee. I've always read your advice to others, so I am coming to you. I am a young girl, age 19. I have light hair, and blue eyes. I don't believe in painting and rouge, as I always think a plain, neat, clean and motherly face is always the nicest.

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I have come to you for advice. I am a girl of 14 and my height is 5 feet 2 inches. I am an Eighth B graduate. What is the proper way to fix my hair? I am light complexioned. Yours truly, BUBBY.

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I am asking you for advice, as I am quite interested in the way you give it. They tell me I am a jolly and sensible girl. I am 15 years of age, have brown hair, brown eyes, fair complexion and I am about 5 feet 2 inches in height.

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I have been going with a young man for three years, and we love each other dearly. He has asked me to marry him when the war was over, to which I consented.

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I am a daily reader of your "Advice to the Lovelorn," and see you help so many others, so I will come to you with my troubles.

"Mother's Tender Flowers"

Watch the tongue of your young! Children droop and wither if you permit constipation poison to be absorbed into their delicate systems.

Hurry! Give Cascarets to clean the little clogged-up liver and bowels. Children love harmless Cascarets because Cascarets taste like candy—only 10 cents a box! Grand!

When a child's tongue turns white, breath feverish, stomach sour, mothers can always depend upon safe old "Cascarets" to gently, yet thoroughly clean the little liver and bowels.

Make Your Skin Like Velvet. DON'T you wish your face was as smooth and fair as your body? It would be if protected from wind and dust. If you want a clear smooth skin. Follow this simple formula— "A little CREME ELCAYA rubbed gently into the skin; then if you need color, a very little good rouge spread carefully over the cheeks before the cream is quite dry, and after that the film of face powder over all."

HELP YOUR DIGESTION. When acid-distressed, relieve the indigestion with KI-MOIDS. Dissolve easily on tongue—as pleasant to take as candy. Keep your stomach sweet, try Ki-moids. MADE BY SCOTT & BOWNE MAKERS OF SCOTT'S EMULSION.

The Truth About the Price of Meat. "Impossible!" you say. "Why, market reports show that live hogs are selling for 17 1/2c a pound, yet I am paying 28c a pound for pork rib-roast and loin-chops." True enough. Yet these more costly cuts are only part of the animal.
