

FUNERAL OF MRS. GEO. A. HOAGLAND HELD YESTERDAY

Beautiful Floral Tributes Recall Founding of Flower Mission Nearly Quarter of Century Ago.

The funeral of Mrs. George A. Hoagland was held Sunday afternoon in her home, 510 North Fort-eighth street.

Flowers Recall Charity. The flowers, especially the cross of lilies and roses behind the casket, recalled one of the most charming parts of Mrs. Hoagland's life—the Emma Hoagland Flower mission, started in the days when the Hoagland family was where the Thompson-Helden store now stands.

Emma Hoagland Mission. But, although on June 5, the 25th anniversary of the Emma Hoagland Flower mission will be commemorated Mrs. Hoagland has missed only one Thursday in attending and keeping up the work of distributing these flowers to the poor and ill of the various hospitals, institutions or private families.

The floralists have donated weekly of their flowers during these 25 years and there has been a reserve fund from which to draw on other occasions.

The funeral services were in the Episcopal ritual and interment at Forest Lawn.

The two hymns, "Abide With Me" and "Lead Kindly Light," sung by Mrs. Hazel Eldridge so harmoniously beautiful with the ritual and services, was the only music.

The pallbearers were Charles L. Saunders, Hoxie Clark, Joseph Barker and M. G. Colpeter.

The honorary pallbearers included M. T. Barlow, W. T. Robinson, C. N. Dietz, Edward P. Peck, G. Stebbin and C. C. Belden.

TRIBUTE PAID ROOSEVELT IN WESTMINSTER

English and Americans Join in Memorial Service at Famous Old Abbey in London.

London, Feb. 9.—A representative gathering of Americans and English filled Westminster abbey this afternoon to pay tribute to the late Theodore Roosevelt in a memorial service, which, for the first time in history displaced evensong in the abbey.

Ambassador and Mrs. Davis, the staff of the American embassy, Robert P. Skinner, the consul general, and his staff, Vice Admiral Sims, many navy and army officers and the representatives of American societies were present.

The sermon was delivered by Archdeacon Carnegie, who said that the tribute shown here "at the shrine of the Anglo-Saxon race" proved the high place that Theodore Roosevelt held in the hearts of the British people.

Forceful Personality. "His was a forceful and magnetic personality, vital and strong in work or in play," said the archdeacon. "He was a warm hearted friend and a fair opponent. He was a good sportsman, entirely fearless and the soul of honor. He had all these qualities, which the Anglo-Saxon ever appreciates and admires."

Colonel Roosevelt, said the archdeacon, had cast his influence always on the side of right. Someone had said, the speaker remarked, that his greatest feat was the rediscovery of the 10 commandments. To him right was right and wrong was wrong, and at all hazards he ever chose the plain path of duty.

Archdeacon Carnegie referred to the outbreak of the war and how the British saw Belgium invaded and declared themselves on the side of right. Colonel Roosevelt saw it, too, and "he spent himself; he sacrificed his life," the speaker said, "but long before he died he realized that his allotted task was completed."

The choir sang "How Firm a Foundation," and then "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." Then as the archdeacon and the clergy left the abbey in solemn procession, the western sun poured through the abbey windows and the organ burst forth with "The Star Spangled Banner."

SILENT HONOR PAID RECTOR OF ST. CECILIA

Body of Father Harrington Lies in State at Cathedral; Four Guards Watch Beside Casket.

Vested in the robes of his holy office, the six long yellow tapers draped in the colors of mourning, throwing their soft glow upon his exposed face and four men guarding his remains, the body of Father Daniel P. Harrington lies in state at St. Cecilia's cathedral.

The cathedral, draped in somber black, wears an aspect of deep mourning. The magnificent edifice is nearly complete and its beauty is enhanced by the somber contrast offered by the drapings.

It is a strange coincidence that the death of the man, who had spent the better part of his life in laboring for the erection of this beautiful place of worship, should come just at the time when the cathedral is nearing completion.

Watch Throughout Night. Four immobile men, stationed two on each side of the casket, guard it constantly. As the members of the congregation stream past the casket to pay tribute to, and for the last time look upon the features of their deceased leader, no change is visible upon the countenances of the guards. They have volunteered for the night-long vigil and are paying silent tribute to the memory of their dead pastor.

The remains of Father Harrington arrived at the Healey and Healey undertaking parlors at 5:30 p. m. Saturday. Here the body was robed in the purple vestments of the priestly office and lay in state in the chapel adjoining the undertaking parlors. At 4 p. m. Sunday the body was taken to the cathedral over which he had been pastor for over 20 years.

The active pallbearers were Col. T. E. Quinlan, J. P. O'Keefe, C. M. Garvey, J. J. Daley, J. H. Beaton, Hugh McManus and William J. McCaffrey.

View The Body. As the procession wended its way towards the cathedral it was met by the members of the Holy Name society. They took their position just in the rear of the pallbearers. Father Leo F. Frank met the procession at the entrance to the cathedral. He blessed and made a prayer over the body. He then led the procession to a position just in front of the pulpit and beneath a huge American flag suspended from the ceiling. The body was deposited here and Mr. Harry Burkley sang "O Meritum Passionis," as the members of the Holy Name society passed by the casket. The married ladies' sodality and the young ladies' sodality followed the Holy Name society. Members of the congregation then passed the casket and glanced for the last time upon the countenance of their departed pastor.

The funeral will take place at 10 a. m. today from the cathedral with Archbishop Harty officiating.

"A French father said to his son, who was just back from a German prison camp: "How did you like those rawhide boots?" "Father," said the young man, "they were the best I ever tasted."

Hughes and Bryan Say Armenians Are Capable of Self-Government

New York, Feb. 9.—There is not more need for the United States assuming a virtual protectorate of Armenia than for Great Britain or France to assume one of Cuba, declared Charles E. Hughes in an address here tonight at a dinner given by the American committee for the independence of Armenia.

Both Mr. Hughes and William Jennings Bryan, another speaker, expressed confidence that Armenians are capable to the fullest extent of self-government.

James W. Gerard presided at the dinner, a feature of which was a pageant, staged by Armenians from all parts of the country, depicting 3,000 years of Armenia's history.

Messages were read from President Wilson, the foreign ministers of Great Britain, France, Italy, Greece and Roumania and Viscount James Bryce.

"IT'S THE TALK OF THE TOWN," STATES MRS. F. H. MELCHI

Her Improvement Since Taking Tanlac Is Talk of All Who Know Her.

"All of my friends, and it seems to me the whole town, are talking about the way I have improved since I took Tanlac," said Mrs. F. H. Melchi, wife of the well-known and popular station agent of the Northwestern railroad at Spear, Ill.

"It was about ten years ago that my nerves became so upset," she continued, "that I could hardly sleep at all, and many a night I have laid awake until daybreak without closing my eyes. Some days I had such blinding headaches that I could hardly see to walk around the room, and my temples would throb so I would sometimes just break down and cry from nervousness and pain. My stomach got in bad condition, too, so that everything I ate would sour and bloat me up and I had such dizzy spells every now and then I would have to catch hold of something steady to keep from falling. For a long time my face looked like every bit of blood had left it and I grew so thin the dresses I had been wearing didn't fit me any more. My husband spared no expense to find some treatment that would give me relief, and although I consulted specialists and took many different kinds of medicines, nothing did me any good. I was so miserable that I grew despondent and began to think I would never be well again. One night my husband bought me some Tanlac, and while I didn't want to take it because I didn't believe anything would help me, he insisted so much I finally consented.

"In a day or two after I started taking it I began to improve and was able to sleep all night long and it wasn't long before my appetite came back and I was able to eat anything I wanted and digest it perfectly. Now I can eat meats of all sorts and pickles and potatoes and many other things that used to be almost like poison to me, and I don't have any trouble afterwards. I don't have any more headaches or dizzy spells, and my nerves are as calm as they ever were in my life. I have been steadily gaining in weight and strength and my friends all comment on how fleshy I am getting, and how the color has come back to my face. For the first time in ten years I am in good health and my husband and myself both want everybody to know it so Tanlac can do for others what it has already done for me."

Tanlac is sold in Omaha by all Sherman & McConnell Drug Company's stores, Harvard Pharmacy and West End Pharmacy under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative. Also Forrest and Meany Drug Company in South Omaha and leading druggists in each city and town throughout the state of Nebraska.—Adv.

Mr. and Mrs. Drexel Take Apartment at Morris for Winter

Owing to an error the surname of the bride of John H. Drexel was incorrectly stated in the society columns of the Sunday Bee. The name should have been Hauelsen. The marriage of Miss Lulu Hauelsen to John H. Drexel was solemnized at the Kountze Memorial church, January 9. Rev. O. D. Balteley read the marriage lines.

Grand Jury May Take Up Ida Grove Pardon Case

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 9.—(Special Telegram.)—While it is improbable that the thirty-eighth general assembly will call Gov. W. L. Harding to account for his pardoning of Ernest Rathbun of Ida Grove, this does not mean that agitation over the case will be dropped.

Attorney General H. M. Havner admits that Judge Kennedy has been making a thorough investigation of circumstances leading up to pardon of Rathbun and when the grand jury convenes in Ida county February 17, it is very probable that some very startling testimony will be brought out in view of interest that is being taken in the case. It is believed that Havner will go to Ida Grove when the grand jury convenes.

Forty Years of Seed Business

It is my firm belief that if a fellow starts with a good idea and keeps everlastingly and honestly hammering away at it for 40 years, he's going to get something with it. If he doesn't, there's something wrong with either the man or the idea.

It's been just about forty years now since I first started selling seeds. A small start to be sure, just an 8-year-old country boy, with a basket of home-grown garden seeds in home-made envelopes. And the total sales out of that first attempt only $50. But I kept at it year after year, and out of that modest start, has grown the biggest and best seed business in the west, with over a million dollar yearly sales, half a dozen big buildings, and hundreds of acres of seed gardens.

And all of it right here in a country town in Southwest Iowa, and all the result of sticking to the one idea of good seeds, good service, and your "money's worth or your money back." In other words, the "Golden Rule in Business." Our business succeeds because

We Help Our Customers to Succeed. And when they find that we really deliver the goods, they pass the good news along. Most of our growth has come from customer-to-customer boosting. Our records show that we get ten times more new customers from personal recommendations of friends than we do from advertising. We are all like one big family, interested in helping each other.

Now I want you to be one of this big family with us. Nearly every one in this part of the country is planting Field's Seed and reading Field's Seed Saver and catalog already, but we might just as well make it unanimous. If you are already one of the bunch, send in the name of a friend. You'll be doing us both a favor. And if I can help you with any advice or information on anything in the garden or farm or seed line, speak up and tell me your troubles. Advice, such as it is, is free, also samples of anything you are interested in. Address me personally.
