

The soul's dark cottage, battered and decayed, Late let new light through chinks that time has made; Stronger by weakness, wiser men become, As they draw near to their eternal home.

Listen to This! Annette Jealous of Omaha Women

And Too, World-Famed Diver Knew Her Claim to Being "A Perfect Woman" Would Be Smashed in a "Close-up" By the Camera Man.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX. A woman's reason is "because," but if you take pains to go back of the "because" there is invariably a good and sufficient reason for her many leaps or back-steps.

When the women of Omaha gathered at the Athletic club Thursday in their Kellerman suits, twiddled their toes in the pool waters and sighed as the hours flitted by while waiting for the fair Annette, they grieved pensively.

But the "perfect woman" did not appear and she sent her regrets with the insufficient reason "because." This did not satisfy, and some of the fair matrons took it as an insult. It wasn't that.

Not the Old Annette. Back of her "because" we find a most imperfect form the real reason. Annette is no longer the modern Venus, neither is she good-looking. The nymph-like pictures shown in advertisements are culled from the morgue of many years' standing. Her motion pictures are wonderful, but Annette (if you will observe) never permits the camera man to take a close-up. She is too keen to flatter herself that such pictures would be attractive. In her spectacular work in pictures Annette wears a wig of false hair which covers a multitude of irregular lines and awkward angles. She is a wise woman.

When the expert swimmer comes on the stage she laughingly announces that the public is being buncoed, or some such thing, by the posters which proclaim her the perfect woman. "What you really see," she admits, "is a mouth like the Mammoth cave, six hairs on my head and a made-up complexion. But who wants to be a 'perfect lady'?"

And she admits it. This from the woman herself puts the audience in a much better frame of mind—it dulls the sharp edges of disappointment and brings forth a laugh where there used to be a groan. And we all know that a laugh is worth a thousand groans in any market. But Miss Kellerman does not mention her figure—and it was her perfect lines that attracted audiences all over the world—since her great debut at White City many years ago. Had she mentioned her lines at all we feel sure she would have said something like this:

And then too, she knew there would be far more perfect women in that pool than Annette Kellerman.

Annette is still a woman and camera are the same the world over.

"I am advertised as the modern Venus with divine form and perfect lines so, naturally, that is what you expected to see when you came to this show tonight. This is what you really get: Heavy muscles, irregular arms, large joints with hands like huge fins and knees that do not belong to a perfect woman."

There is some divergence between the posters we see of the Diving Diana and the real woman. With the X-ray turned on, who can blame Annette for appearing, or not appearing, or doing any other thing she chooses to do. She is a wonderful swimmer—she is a clever woman; her motion pictures are worth anybody's time and money; she is an artist in her lines; but it is in an imposition on the "dear public" to call her the perfect figure. When there is so much good truth to tell about this unusual woman; when she has so many extra-ordinary achievements to her credit, we fail to understand why her press agent should disappoint her audiences by overplaying physical beauty when she has none.

Annette Still a Woman. Be kind, dear ladies and friends, for Annette's "because" was backed by good and sufficient reasons for her non-appearance at the Athletic club pool. The facts she performs have robbed her of beauty but isn't the feat what we wish to see after all.

know whether or not she loves me or not. Still I believe this being out with the other fellow was not to be found out, but as it was storming I believe that was the reason of about I ask her if she loves me or not? I would like to have an early answer, for I always take her to the train, and as she leaves this Friday I would cancel my date with her for that night. Please omit the name of city and my name. Sincerely, ALBERT.

It might be a good plan to ask her if she loves, if you care to know. Surely there is nothing wrong in being out with another man. There may have been a good and sufficient reason why he walked with her. I advise you not to mention the matter. If you discuss it at all act as though you treated her and that it was perfectly all right and just the proper thing to do.

Service Flags. Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: Have read your advice and am coming to you for some. Have heard of stripes and want to know what they are and would like to know what color is used for overseas service and what color is used when they return. Thanking you in advance, I remain, YOUR DEVOTED READER.

Kisses, Etc. Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: We have come to you for a little advice. We are two high school girls, 15 and 16 years old. We are deeply in love with two high school boys. They don't seem to care for each other as friends. How should we go about it to win their affection? Since it is not considered proper to
