SOUTH SIDE BOY DIES IN SEATTLE OF PNEUMONIA

Corp. Lowell Tagg, Veteran of Many Battles in European War, Succumbs on Pacific Coast.

Corp. Lowell Tagg, son of Mrs. Nellie A. Tagg, and brother of Harold Tagg, who died at Seattle, Wash., last Friday of pneumonia, was born in South Omaha July 11, 1898. He went to school in Omaha and enlisted in the coast artillery at Fort Worden, Wash., in October, 1915.

Early in the year 1918, he was one of the company from this post that sailed down the western coast, crossed through the Panama Canal, landed at New York City and then sailed from there to France the latter part of last March. He was in several battles in France and was wounded in the St. Mihiel drive and was ten weeks in Base hospital No. 59 recuperating from his injuries.

The 6th coast artillery corps, to which he belonged, returned from France February of this year on the English liner Havordrive. They were the first troops to land at Philadelphia, which place they reached January 30, and were then sent from there to Camp Dix, N. J. His company came through Omaha Friday, February 14, on its way to their old post at Fort Worden.

Corporal Tagg was stricken with pneumonia on the way west and was taken off the train at Seattle, Wash., on February 18 and placed in the Providence hospital, where he passed away at 3 a. m. February 28.

His mother left Omaha for Seattle on February 25, but did not arrive there until Saturday morning, March 1. The house service section of the Red Cross in Seattle did everything possible for Corporal Tagg during his illness. They also took charge of the body before his mother arrived and did everything in their power to assist her while she was in Seattle. Mrs. Tagg is returning with the body and should arrive in Omaha this afternoon.

Final arrangements for the services are not as yet completed, but it is very likely that the funeral will be held some time Thursday of this week.

Corporal Tagg was a nephew of A. W. Tagg and W. B. Tagg at the Live Stock exchange building.

Man Is Confined When He Would Not Be Fined

Sam Wolfson's objections to paying a $5 fine imposed by Police Judge Foster were soon overcome when the judge ordered that the offender be confined until he did pay it. Wolfson, who is the proprietor of a grocery store at 2503 M street, was haled into court on the charge of driving on the wrong side of the street and passing a street car which was taking on and discharging passengers.

Pioneer of South Side Dies Following Illness

AT THE THEATERS

ONE of the regular annual events on the program for Merchants' week, an Orpheum Theater party, will be given tonight. The Merchants' Week association has engaged 1,500 seats for this occasion. Those charming dancers, with elaborate costume changes, the Barr Twins, are offering what is termed a refreshing interlude of song and dance as one of the headline attractions this week. Sharing stellar honors with them is the vocalist of distinction, Maui Earl, who is presenting the elaborately staged offering, "The Vocal Verdict." Bessie Rimple in "A Child of Childs," appears as the waitress who is tired of her job and wants to be a "crook." How she is cured of her ambition is humorously presented in the clever mystery farce, "Gus Edwards' Annual Song Revue with a company of 30 comes next week.

The sheer novelty of "Maytime," appeals to all classes of amusement seekers. It has a human story which, enchaining the audience's interest at the outset, develops logically and entertainingly to a surprising climax, which is reached three generations later in our own busy times. The sprightly melodies with which the story has been framed, have the virtue of enhancing the play's action and smoothly dovetail into its progress. The company the Messrs. Shubert have assembled includes John Charles Thomas, John T. Murray and Carolyn Thomson as the featured artists and Russell Lannon, Howard Marsh, George Harmon, Eara Walck, Alfred Hemming, Jennette Mothven, Grace Studiford, Isabelle Vernon, Tilly Salinger, Clarice Snyder, Betty Kirkbride and Ofelia Calva, (the Spanish dancer), in other important roles. "Maytime" will be the attraction at the Boyd all next week beginning Sunday night.

As Colonel Philippe Bridau, Mr. Skinner, playing at the Brandeis the last two times today, has one of the most fascinating roles he has ever played, and the combination of a great actor in an out of the ordinary is resulting in an enormous patronage. The new production is of the usual Charles Frohman standard, supporting cast, and production is bound to be an event that will be remembered as one of the high lights of the current theatrical season. Beginning with Thursday night, March 6, "Uncle Sam's Minstrels" will open a three-day engagement at the Brandeis theater. This military organization is composed of returned United States soldiers, men who prior to the war were headliners in the minstrel and theatrical world. Included in the roster of the company is Baiden and Arnold, well known composers of wartime songs who will introduce some of their new songs here. Stuart and Rathburn, eccentric dancers, who were on the Orpheum circuit are also with the company.

The public is showing interest in the coming engagement at the Brandeis theater, next week of David Warfield. The play in which he will be seen is a revival of his first great success, "The Auctioneer," since the production of which 17 years have elapsed.

Twice a day the great film production, "The Birth of a Race," is being shown at the Boyd. It combines in a most attractive form the elements of allegory and drama, and with special music, provides one of the strongest features of the picture world today. Performances both afternoon and evening all week.

It there's a wee bit o' Scotch in you (blood, not whisky) you will thoroughly enjoy the Scotch comedy bit in the Great Star and Gaiety show now at the Gaiety. The two comedians and the straight man get no end of fun from it and it supplies no end of laughs for the big audiences. Incidental to it the entire beauty chorus, in Scotch costume, is introduced. Ladies' matinee daily at 2:15.

Diligent study and wide experience have contributed to the success of a spectacular scenic novelty, "Visions in Fairyland," which is the stellar attraction at the Empress theater. The production includes a number of exquisite drops, supported by special music composed by Esbort Vennor of New York.
