OPINIONS OF THE PACKERS VARY ON LOW HOG PRICES

Cudahy's Manager Believes in No Immediate Price Change, While Armour Head Predicts Drop.

By having ceased to fix a minimum marketable price to be paid for hogs, a competitive system is again effective on the Omaha and other livestock markets.

Just how doing away with a minimum price on hogs is going to affect the producer and the ultimate consumer of pork and other hog products is a problem.

Discussing the removal of the minimum price that has been maintained by the government for several months, M. R. Murphy, manager of the Cudahy business said:

"I don't look for any immediate change in prices. At any rate, there is nothing to indicate that prices on hogs are going to be much higher, if any, at least they are not likely to advance until the present crop is disposed of. The supply of hogs in first hands is fairly large."

"As I understand the situation, we go back to a supply and demand proposition and with competition such as formerly maintained, hogs will sell for what they are actually worth. Should hogs go lower, of course that would mean lower priced pork when sold over the block."

Looks for Lower Prices. R. C. Howe, manager of the Armour is looking for lower prices and discussing the proposition, said:

"Eliminating the minimum price on hogs puts the packers back into a competitive market. That evidently will mean lower prices on at least the medium grade and poorer stuff. There is a large supply of hogs on the farms and in my judgment with supply and demand regulating the trade there must be a tendency to lower prices. I don't expect any great decline immediately, but I fail to see how it will be kept from coming later on in the year."

O. C. Mayberry of the Swift company said that he is unable to predict the future.

Members of Taxpayers' League to Capital to Protest Bill No. 165

Members of the Omaha Taxpayers' league will go to Lincoln this morning on the 8:20 Burlington train to voice their objections against features of Senate File No. 165, which has aroused considerable antagonism.

Opposition to Senate File 166, relating to public improvements in Omaha, will be heard next Monday morning at Lincoln.

The supporters of the bill contending giving to the city council authority to open or widen streets by a condemnation process which does not give property owners due notice, the opposition contends.

Under the existing law on this subject, the city council has power to order an improvement which will run up to a limit of $100,000 for the district.

A delegation of the Benson Improvement association also will go to Lincoln Friday, to oppose Senate Bill 165.

IN THE DIVORCE COURT

A divorce was granted to James A. Clarke from Elizabeth Clarke on the ground of abandonment. They were married in Council Bluffs in September, 1914.

Laura E. Long was awarded a divorce from Newton J. Long with custody of their child.

Estelle C. Brimmer secured a divorce from Ely C. Brimmer on the ground of abandonment. They were married in Alberta, Canada, in 1911.

James W. Dalbey was granted a divorce from Iona Dalbey.

Miles Whipple, in a petition for divorce filed in district court, alleges that his wife, Rebecca, has maintained a hostile attitude toward him, his most violent language and has encouraged their children to abuse and disobey him. They were married in Russia in 1914.

Conditions in Russia Explained to Sunday School Conference

The Douglas County Sunday School convention, which opened Wednesday in South Omaha, was transferred Thursday to the Presbyterian church in Florence.

The afternoon session was occupied by discussions led by Miss Margaret E. Brown, state secretary and W. H. Kimberly, state business manager of the Sunday School association.

Mr. Kimberly, among other things, strongly recommended a united Sunday school and church service as a means of linking the school more intimately with the church.

At the night session the Missionary society of the Florence church gave a pageant, "From Self to Service." This was followed by a steryopticon lecture by Miss Brown on conditions in Russia, based on her observations made during a trip through that country.

The Friday sessions of the convention will be held at Westminster Presbyterian church, Twenty-ninth and Mason. A morning session will be devoted to a conference on elementary work. In the afternoon in addition to conferences on a number of topics, there will be a children's song service conducted by Hugh Wallace and a story hour for children led by Miss Brown.

Dinner will be served by the ladies of the church at 6:15. The night session will be given over to a pageant, "The Heart of the Sunday School," in which a model workers' conference will be shown.

Packers Realize From Cold Weather; Cut More Ice Now

The continuation of cold weather has given the packers a longer lease on ice cutting than they had anticipated. The thing that now stands in the way of putting away the normal annual pack is the inability to find men who will work in the fields.

Armours are cutting ice at Memorial and the Omaha Ice and Cold Storage company and the Lakeside company on Carter lake. Altogether these companies are working 400 to 500 men. They would employ double this number, but they are not here. Officials of the government employment bureau have rounded up all the hotels and lodging houses in the east part of the city, but men who will and can work are not to be found.

Kate O'Hare Is Expected to Speak in This City Tonight

Kate Richards O'Hare, who has been sentenced to six years in prison on a charge of disloyalty, is expected to speak here tonight in the Swedish auditorium on "The New Americanism." Efforts to get in touch with her following the action of the supreme court in her case Tuesday sustaining the verdict of the lower court, have been unsuccessful. Mildred E. Kern, who will preside at the meeting, declared she had been unable to get a reply to her telegram to Frank P. O'Hare, St. Louis, her husband and manager.
