

South Side SOUTH SIDE MAN 'READS UP' ON HIS 'LIQUOR RIGHTS'

But State Agent's Alleged Interpretation of Law, Quoted in Newspaper, Doesn't Go With Judge.

Jack Woods, "bartender" in a soft drink parlor, 2218 South Twenty-fourth street, did not know he was violating the law when he carried four and a half pints of whisky in his hipper pockets.

Woods produced a clipping from an afternoon newspaper purporting to give an interview with a state agent and quoting him as saying a person was allowed to carry with him a "reasonable amount" of whisky.

That may be the state agent's interpretation of the law, commented the court. "You are fined $100 and costs."

Gets Off One Offense to Be Caught Soon for Another

William Taylor, colored, 2724 R street, in the "venacular" of the streets was a "lucky cuss." But luck, like all things else in this world, is only temporary and William soon found this out to his disgust.

Tuesday morning William was haled into the South Side police court on a charge of disturbing the peace by fighting.

But here is the sad part of William's story. About a half an hour after William's discharge Steve Stefanovich, accompanied by 10 doughy and dusky crackshooters, was brought before Judge Foster on the charge of gambling.

Public to Be Informed as to Packing Industry

James B. McCrea, president of the American Meat Packers' association, has announced that a bureau of public relations is being established by the packers for the purpose of keeping the public informed of the packing industry.

Packers Are Still Much in Need of Men at Plants

The packers are still in need of help. Seventy-five men are wanted immediately by the four packing concerns. They have applied to the Federal Employment agency on the South Side for aid in finding men but as yet their wants have not been supplied.

AT THE THEATERS

EARLY Leaten entertainment was provided by Mr. Warfield for those who have not yet put on sackcloth or even forsown the pleasures of the playhouse to the number of as many as could be packed into the Brandeis theater last night.

Mr. Warfield's attire of Simon Levi has improved with age. This is true for no other reason than that the fullness of experience gives him the power to express not only with added certainty and even increased authority the emotions, the sentiments, and the humors of the role, but a fuller understanding of life itself permits him to touch its chords with surer sweep.

Mr. Warfield does not try to win sympathy for the auctioneer of Hester street through his misfortune; nor does he forget that he is human and subject to the depression of sorrow and disappointment.

PROTEC BOND HOLDERS FROM FAKE SCHEMES

Information on Promotions Demanded in Questionnaires Sent out by Trade Commission.

Washington, March 11.—As a step in its campaign for protecting holders of Liberty bonds and war savings stamps from "exchange" proposals of doubtful or fraudulent stock promotion schemes, the federal trade commission today sent out a demand for information from many concerns whose literature has been turned over to the commission for examination.

Formal questionnaires sent out contain 32 questions bearing on the amount of promotion stock and sums actually invested and the company's organization, business, property, plans and financial condition. The commission requires that the information shall be furnished at once.

There are over 20 important speaking parts in "Keep Her Smiling," the brilliant comedy in three acts, in which Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew are appearing personally.

PLAINTIFF IN SUIT JUST FILED DEAD SINCE 1918

Documents in Case Against Bankers Realty Investment Company Show Peculiar State of Affairs.

Solomon Hublitz, one of three plaintiffs named, in a suit filed against the Bankers Realty Investment company last week, asking a receiver, has been dead since June 25, 1918.

This is the second involuntary plaintiff discovered in three suits filed in the last two weeks against the above company and an allied corporation, the North American Hotel company.

Mrs. Mary Hublitz, widow of Solomon Hublitz, who resides in Tobias, Neb., has made affidavit that her husband died June 25. Yesterday afternoon a motion was filed in district court of Douglas county asking that the suit against the Bankers' Realty Investment company be dismissed so far as she is concerned.

The homely story of "Old Matt" and "Young Matt," Sammy Lane and the gentle Shepherd of the Hills and all the big-hearted mountain folks, who were so realistically portrayed in Harold Bell Wright's novel of "The Shepherd of the Hills," live again in the picturization which will be shown at the Brandeis theater for the remainder of the week starting tomorrow.
