SAY NEBRASKA MEN JOBLESS IN OLD GOTHAM

C. of C. Employment Office to Notify New York Bureau of All Openings Throughout State.

Nebraska soldiers are walking the streets of New York, looking for work, according to R. M. McDonald of the New York War Camp Community Service employment bureau.

The information was contained in a letter to the Omaha Chamber of Commerce soldiers' employment bureau.

"These men are native Nebraskans anxious to get back to their home state and settle down," he wrote.

The state of Nebraska has located in the Hall of States, a desk and secretary to look after welfare of returned Nebraska soldiers, discharged from military service, to meet this situation, according to Mr. McDonald.

"Many soldiers demobilized in the eastern states come to New York, when they could be used in their home state as a permanent producer."

Wants Notification of Openings. McDonald requested the local bureau to write or wire any openings here for these men.

Mrs. Mabel Walker, in charge of the local bureau which placed over 1,200 returned soldiers in employment since December, said this condition of Nebraska men remaining unemployed in New York is not at all necessary.

Plenty of Work Here. "We have plenty of work for them here. If the men are walking the streets of New York, it is because they want to see the sights.

All men demobilized from service are given transportation or money equal to the sum necessary to transport them from the camp to the point where they enlisted. It's because the boys spend this money to see the sights instead of getting a ticket for home, that they are placed in such a position.

Mrs. Walker will forward available openings to the New York office.

VOICE DEARER TO WOMAN THAN HUBBY AND 'KIDS'

Luther Blames Wife's Parents for Marital Trouble; Files Cross Petition for Divorce.

Alleging that his wife's parents tried to induce him to consent to a divorce because "married life affected his wife's voice," she being a vocalist by training, Ernest Luther filed an answer to the petition of his wife, Florence Luther, for a divorce.

The married life of the Luthers began only seven months ago, but has been filled with turbulence and quarrels according to his statement.

Married on August 10, 1918, the wife filed suit for divorce on January 10, 1919. A reconciliation was effected and they returned to live together on February 8, but the harmony is shattered anew.

He went to Camp Dodge in the military service last October. In November, he was taken sick and his wife came to see him. He alleges that she stated later that she wished "he would have died." He says she told him that she wrote to him while he was away, not because she loved him but because she "felt it was her duty."

He was discharged December 16. She refused, he says, to go to his father's farm in Dodge county to live but insisted on living at "high-priced hotels in the city of Omaha," and they lived at a local hotel for a time paying $25 a week, although he was making only $100 a month.

He charges that while they were living at another hotel, on February 1, she struck him in the face. He declares she said she "never had done any housework and was never going to do any," and that she said she would never raise any children.

He charges that she made untrue allegations in her petition for divorce, which caused him great mental anguish.

Her parents conspired with her, he alleges, to make married life intolerable and to cause him to submit to a divorce.

He now makes a cross petition, asking a divorce from her.

Advertisement for Hudson Super-Six Still Reigns No Car Disturbs Its Supremacy. It is the Permanent Type. That was pronounced for the Hudson when the Super-Six was first announced, three years ago. It proved its right to that distinction in countless tests made on the speedway, in hill climbs and in trans-continental touring. Its official records remain unequalled, though assailed by many rivals. The Hudson is known best because of its mechanical leadership, but in addition men in the trade acknowledge it as the leader in body designing. That is no more clearly shown than at this year's Auto Shows. Last year's Hudsons reveal how they have influenced many cars seen at this year's shows. And the new Hudsons with their square lines and other advanced appointments are regarded as a forecast of what to expect in the new cars next fall. 60,000 Delivered and the Supply is Still Short. Except for the few open models that some dealers may have, there are no open car Hudsons to be had just now. Factory production is confined to closed types. Every spring has witnessed the disappointment of thousands who could not get Hudsons. Only those who speak now will be sure of delivery when they want it.
