My ideal is a good, clean-cut, practical business man, with good morals and a love for all that is morals and a love for all that is good, and a lover of home, which is the sweetest word in the English language. To such a man I will not be found wanting, for I will bring with me peace and love and happiness to our own fireside, so what more can a poor girl do? I am of a retiring nature, which prevents me from becoming acquainted, I fear that is why I am still

WHEN is Jascha Heifetz coming again? It can't be too soon for many of those who ad the privilege of hearing him last Monday, nor for many others who did not have the opportunity of hearing him at all. The very perfection of his playing makes it all seem so simple and easy that one scarcely cares to linger upon the marvel-out skill of it, for through and above the notes, the sentences and periods of the music there is that quality which tricks the mind away from technic, that magic of art which is more than the composer, and imposing number, of dignity and the player and the instrument, although dependent upon all three for catta by Fletcher wil lopen the protection of the prot its expression. It is not always gram and other numbers featured there this quality even when music will be a Marche Russe, Fugeu in G there, this quality, even when music there, this quality, even when music is played faultlessly, but it is there in the playing of Heifetz. It was especially manifest in the limpid beauty of the "Larghetto" in the Mrs. Jensen will play the Andantino Handel Sonata, and in the joyous and infectious humor of the "alle-gro con brio," the closing move-ment. In the case of Heifetz, it is not necessary a handicap to be young, and not to have the breadth and conception of an Ysaye, Who can compare the sunrise and the sunset? Each is a phenomenon.
