

CITY TO PROBE HIGH BUILDING COST IN OMAHA

Realtors Start Move and Towel Assures Them Commissioners Will Investigate.

The Real Estate board may demand an investigation by city commissioners, of the alleged local building material dealers' combine. Action will be withheld one week, pending a probable meeting of lumber dealers in the interim.

Harry Tukey introduced the motion at the weekly meeting of the Real Estate board Wednesday noon in the Chamber of Commerce.

Sparks flew during the heated discussion of prevailing high prices in building materials, prices said to be so high that Omaha's whole spring building program was blocked.

"The lumber trust is the tightest combine in Omaha. Ever since the lumber men quit cutting each other's throats six years ago, on an armistice made possible by Omaha bankers, they have formed themselves into the tightest business combine there is," said one of the speakers.

W. R. McFarland, president of the board, said he could not see how the Real Estate board could do anything in Council Bluffs than he could in Omaha.

Brick Prices Up.

Brick prices have increased beyond all reason, McFarland declared. "Brick in the new telephone company cost $8.50. That was a year ago. The same brick in my new moving picture house on Fifteenth and Douglas now in course of construction, cost $15.25."

Commissioner Towel, who was present at the meeting, promised to see that the resolution demanding an investigation would go through the city council.

W. V. Harrison, manager of the Lakeview Mill Works at Lakeview, Ia., believes he can furnish building materials to Omaha builders cheaper than they can buy in Omaha, he wrote in a letter to the Real Estate board.

In defense of Omaha realtors, Harry Tukey appeared before the Sales Managers club Tuesday night in the Fontenelle, to explain the present house shortage. At the last meeting of this organization the charge was made that real estate men are holding up rent prices, so that working people had no place to live.

"It is the high cost of building materials which prevented the necessary and normal construction of homes that is responsible. Real estate men have no houses to rent. They have houses to sell," Tukey explained.

Charge Big Profit.
"Lumber men are doing business at a profit of 33 1/3 to 35 per cent. Last year the profit of lumber was 22 per cent. That's why there is no building to take care of the demand for dwellings," he said. A rumor is current in real estate circles that M. E. Smith company is seeking a large site on which to erect moderate-priced dwellings for its employees. Arthur C. Smith and Floyd M. Smith of the firm are both ill with grippe at their respective homes and could not be interviewed to confirm the report.

Silk Stages Real Holdup When State Booze Hounds Attempt to Enter His Home

Three of Gus Hyer's Men Forced to Quit Search When Druggist Hurriedly Appears on Scene in Response to Call From Wife; Reads Riot Act as They Pass Out.

The victims of Bill Hart, hero and hold-up artist of the screen, never thrust their hands high into the atmosphere with a more lightning-like rapidity and docile obedience than did a deputy sheriff and two state "booze hounds" Tuesday night obey the command to "put 'em up" by James J. Silk in his home, 1817 Pratt street.

And in regular melodramatic style Silk made them tremble with fright and stare with wide-eyed wonder into the muzzle of a '44. He made them like it. In Bill Hart's own way he made them "keep 'em up."

He made them line up against the wall, listen to a scathing rebuke redolent of fire and brimstone, and then he made them turn right around and march right out again without even a glimpse of red contraband whisky.

Boozeless Party.
This was the climax to the little boozeless party staged by "booze hounds," P. C. Smith and J. Peters and Deputy Sheriff R. K. Johnson.

The opening scene shows the three officers of the law with their heads together in the court house. They are engaged in earnest conversation behind closed doors in the sheriff's office.

Next Mrs. Silk is shown seated alone in her home. There is a work basket on the table by her side. She is darning her husband's socks and oblivious to the plans of the three men, who contemplate the invasion of the peace and quiet of the Silk home.

Nothing is farther from Silk's mind, as he fills a prescription in his drug store at 1324 North Twenty-fourth street, than the intrusion of unwelcome guests at his home.

Buckle on Weapons.
The three men in the courthouse buckle on revolvers and badges. They place saps in their pockets and sally forth in quest of the demon rum.

Mrs. Silk responds to the summons at the door.
"Madam, we have come to search this joint."

Without further ceremony three men step across the threshold. Two go to the basement and one remains upstairs to search that part of the house.

Frantic, the woman rushes to the telephone. The next instant she is speaking to her husband over the wire.
"James, do come home. Hurry."

"You fellows, too," he covered the men who emerged from the basement. "Get the pose. Stick 'em up. Back up there. Back up against the wall, and all of you see how high you can reach. Keep reaching and mighty high, too, while I'm talking to you."

The man who reads the riot act, holds his door open and covers the three officers with his weapon as they pass out, single file, into the night.

Sam Melick, chief of the Omaha squad of state agents, declared he would have a warrant issued for Silk's arrest. He said the man would be charged with resisting and threatening an officer.

"I think my men showed splendid judgment in the way they handled the situation," asserted Mr. Melick. "They had a perfect right to shoot the fellow down. Had they not, the man, the law would have justified them. It is better, however, that the officers did not exercise their right and shoot him in his own home."

Day of Team Work.
"The day of team work has come—for husbands and wives, mother and son—and every type of team work that develops human rights."

"The women of France, Britain and America are strong enough to act as a lever and raise up the womanhood of the other lands—and Russia, wherever the soul of a woman is not sacred, but cheap."

Between the speeches there was an interlude of community singing led by Harry Morrison. He explained the place that community singing had and was gaining in civil life—as well as military and won smiles when he sang.

"The boys over there would wonder why folks back home don't smile when they sing since they have gone through everything singing."

Two prizes for the greatest increase in the number of new subscribers to the magazine of the D. A. R. were awarded to the Deborah Chapter at Lincoln through Mrs. Fred Williams, the delegate.

DR. LOWE AND DEAN TANKOCK TALK TO D. A. R.

Nebraska Hospital Service Described and What War Has Done for Women Discussed.

Two of Omaha's representative patriotic workers in overseas service—Rev. Titus Lowe and Dean Tankock—were the speakers at the patriotic meeting of the D. A. R. conference Wednesday night.

"In our hospital only an average of 400 out of 40,000 patients died," said Dean Tankock in speaking of his work as chaplain with the Nebraska Base Hospital Unit No. 49, "which makes an average of less than 1 per cent, while here under the most favorable conditions possible the best record would average 15 to 20 per cent."

"We lost all account of germ theories and came even to enjoy germs while building the hospital in the most impassable French marshes. We made it from panels sent from Belgium which were fitted together into wards. Twenty or 30 of these made the hospital capable of holding 40,000 beds."

Hospital Generously Supplied.
"We had the best equipment of any ten hospitals in the center," he continued, "and it is due to the generous supplies from Nebraska that the slogan for those in search of any equipment came to be 'go to 49 for it.'"

In speaking of the amusements for the patients suffering from shell shock and gas Dean Tankock told how he had seen boys for hours work hammering tin into pieces and in painting their names on laundry bags.

Rev. Titus Lowe chose the "Attitude of Womanhood Both in Our Own and Other Countries" as his subject.

"The war has brought womanhood into a stronger place than could have been given her in 100 years," he said, "but it is a different way than any feminist movement could have accomplished."

"Women must learn to hold together because they are women, for now they hold untold-of destinies in their hands. With this attitude I am not afraid of any feminist movement and I am quite a 'he man,' too."

Day of Team Work.
"The day of team work has come—for husbands and wives, mother and son—and every type of team work that develops human rights."

"The women of France, Britain and America are strong enough to act as a lever and raise up the womanhood of the other lands—and Russia, wherever the soul of a woman is not sacred, but cheap."

D. A. R. Member Descendant Of Two Colonial Governors

Wife of Judge J. Thomas of Columbus Traces Her Ancestry Back to Mayflower Pilgrim Conant and Governors Winslow and Bradford.

A colonial governor's daughter as well as a Daughter of the Revolution is Mrs. J. Thomas, wife of Judge Thomas of Columbus, Neb., who wears proudly the names of Governor Bradley and Winslow on the twisted blue bars of her badge.

Mrs. Thomas is a charter member of the D. A. R. at Columbus and during all these years has missed only one conference.

Back to the Mayflower Pilgrim Conant, her entrance into the D. A. R. showed her cousins have all become members through the names of those pioneer governors—Winslow and Bradford.

Owens Colonial Plate.

Her sister owns one of the early colonial plates used in the Bradford home with the Bradford crest and coat of arms engraved on it.

Mrs. Thomas is treasurer of her chapter and was alternate delegate in place of Mrs. A. McAllister.

Should those outside wonder at the number of badges appearing on the badges at the conference they need only approach and read the names—names of revolutionary ancestors who fought in the revolutionary war—to understand.

Omaha Wears 20 Bars.

Among the most numerous are those of Mrs. J. Stubbs of Omaha, who could wear 20 such enviable bars.

Miss Dove Mitchell could claim 18, and Mrs. Thomas above has three.

Mrs. Laura B. Pound of Lincoln, honorary state regent, who spoke yesterday on "Fifty Years in Nebraska," is one of the oldest Daughters of the Revolution in this state.

The reports of the conference Wednesday morning showed that more interest had been taken in the work and the principles for which the organization stood during the past years of the war than previously. An increase of 67 members was announced.

The memorial service of the conference was held Wednesday at 1:30 p. m. for the 12 Daughters who died during the past two years.

Mrs. R. W. Porter conducted a special memorial service for the three women who died during the year—Mrs. Laura S. Harris, Miss Jennie M. McKoon and Mrs. Eva E. Straight, whose death was very recent.

ENGLER AUTO IS STOLEN TWICE IN PAST FEW DAYS

Police on Look-Out for Well-Dressed Young Men, Believed to Have Stolen Car.

Two well dressed young motor car thieves are worrying the police and causing Frank W. Engler, president of the Engler Coal company, sleepless nights.

Several days ago Mr. Engler's silver trimmed automobile was stolen from the Athletic club entrance. Twelve hours later Detectives Murphy and Pzanowski found the car stuck fast in the mud in North Omaha. Residents there saw two young men abandon the machine.

The car was stolen again while Mr. Engler was in the Rialto theater. Detectives Rich and Anderson, scouting about the city in search of stolen cars, found the car mired at Twenty-first and Hickory streets.

Police have advised Mr. Engler to mount a guard with a machine gun to protect his property.

Missouri Woodmen of World Endorse Fraser

W. A. Fraser, sovereign commander, Woodman of the World, was sustained by the head camp of Missouri, which adjourned yesterday at Springfield, Mo.

An attempt was made by the "ants" to inject a recent Omaha Woodmen of the World labor controversy into the proceedings, but telegrams just received by Orson Stiles, chief clerk to Mr. Fraser, give advice of the election of administrative men in every instance.

Congratulatory resolutions were adopted commending Sovereign Commander Fraser particularly and the other sovereign officers in general upon the splendid manner in which the society was being conducted. Resolutions were also adopted endorsing the action of department heads in dispensing with employees whose services were unsatisfactory.

Mrs. Catherine Appleby of Benson Is Dead

Mrs. Catherine E. Appleby, pioneer of Douglas county, died at her home in Benson yesterday at the age of 54 years. Mrs. Appleby came to Elk City, Neb., when 15 years old, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Scott, from Wisconsin. She was married in 1897 to John Appleby and since that time has lived in Benson.

Surviving besides the husband is one daughter, Mrs. H. E. Gaines of Elkhorn and two granddaughters. The funeral will be held at the residence, 3804 Corby street, at 1 p. m. Friday, with burial at Elk City, at 2:30 p. m.

NURSES FROM OVERSEAS TO COME FRIDAY

Young Women, Members of Unit K, Depart From New York on Last Lap of Journey Home.

A telegram received yesterday morning announced the departure from New York of the Unit K nurses during the forenoon and that the train bringing them home would reach Council Bluffs Friday morning. When they arrive every whistle in the city will be screaming and every bell clanging and everybody will be shouting a noisy welcome home to the young women.

There will be, however, a little formality about the reception. Automobiles, one for each nurse and her relatives, are being selected and these cars will have the right-of-way at the railway station. All other cars will be kept back and the street may be roped off.

As fast as the young women leave the train and reach the cars with relatives and friends, these cars bearing them will head a procession and drive through the streets. Their wishes and the wishes of their friends will be consulted, however, and the moment the desire is expressed to be taken to their homes the cars will drop out of line and go wherever ordered. They will be permitted to rest and Monday night they will be given a public reception at the Auditorium and Eagles' building. It will be along the line of the big event of February 5, when 500 returned soldier boys were welcomed.
