MOTOR CAR CASE

Omaha Business Man Accused

of Being "Man Higher-

Up" in Connection With Auto Thefts.

Maurice Katleman was placed on triel yesterday afternoon in district court before Judge Redick on the charge of grand larceny. He is charged with being the "man higher up" in connection with the theft of an automobile from the corner of Seventeenth and Farnam streets on

The car was owned by C. J. Ta-mulewicz and was stolen by William lennings McKenna and L. C. Jones, both of whom have confessed.

This is the same theft under which "Red" Neal was found guilty of grand larceny in the same court three weeks ago. McKenna and

Jones were the principal state's wit-

The evidence in that trial involved

Katleman. McKenna and Jones testified that they went into Katleman's haberdashery store, the Washington

Shirt company, Sixteenth and Far-nam streets, and that he gave them $10 for "expenses" and told them what kind of a car was wanted.

They said they stole the car at Seventeenth and Farnam streets and drove it to Nebraska City, where, ac-cording to agreement, they left it on the east side of the court house completed before Tuesday morning.

paratively dull stock market was attributed not so much to the impending recess as to the disquieting tenor of the foreign news.

Intimations that events in central Europe might necessitate radical changes in the military policy of the peace conference impelled moderate selling in the early and later stages of the session.

An unexpected development was the favorable change in the market for metals. Reports of a broad inquiry for refined copper, the first since the series of drastic cuts in that commodify. lifted that group 1 to 2½ points, but much of this advantage was cancelled on publication of the reduced Anaconda dividend.

Sugars, several of the oils, notably Sinclair and Royal Dutch, American International, Wilson Packing and Sundry miscellaneous issues gave a semblance of strength at intervals, but equipments, motors and high grade petroleums were rescitorary.

At first, the corp market showed con-siderable weakness, owing to larger re-ceipts and fine weather that promised to than has been the rule of late. Another bearish factor was a current report that the government was to let go of much rye and barley. The word began to circulate that export demand for corn had resulted in actual business here, amount-ing to upward of 150,000 and that addi-
